London-Paris Accord.

By the United Press.

London, April 29.—Great Britain and France, answering Europe's heavily armed dictators with an unwritten military alliance never before equaled in peacetime, tonight prepared to open a diplomatic offensive to head off Nazi ambitions in central and southeastern Europe.

As the statesmen of the two powers concluded talks that may swerve Europe's course, a reliable source asserted a joint note to Germany in defense of Czechoslovakia's sovereignty was contemplated.

When Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Bonnet, of France, flew back to Paris in a military airplane at dusk they carried an agreement for iron-clad military collaboration—destined for peace, but ready for any war—making Britain and France the most powerful entente on the face of the earth in the event of conflict.

The prospect of such military cooperation as British warplanes roaring along with French fighting planes close to the German border in war games stood out as one of the prime accomplishments of two days of whirlwind conferences.

Added to this, it was reported, was an agreement whereby London and

Rome Paper Calls U. S. Hostile; Asks If We Want War

Rome, April 29 (AP).—The authoritative Fascist editor, Virginio Gayda, criticizing the United States for what he termed "hostile manifestations" toward Italy, today demanded whether the American people desired "war" with Italy.

In a three-column, front-page editorial in Il Giornale d'Italia, he took particular exception to Representative Byron Scott's proposal that violators of the Kellogg Pact be identified as "aggressors."

Also included as "hostile manifestations" cited by Gayda were an article by Ernest Hemingway, regarded as reflecting on the valor of Italian troops in Spain; speeches by Secretary Ickes and William E. Dodd, former American Ambassador to Germany, and statements by Admiral William D. Leahy regarding Italian-German designs on South America.

Big Hailstones Wreak Heavy Damage Here

Reginald Carpenter presents an unusual spring picture as he scoops up ice pellets, a fraction of the tons which pounded the Capital in yesterday's hail storm and did extensive damage to window panes, auto tops and plants.

Greenhouses Shattered, Valuable Plants Crushed and Automobile Tops Riddled; Pedestrian Blinded and Hit by Car.

Hail struck the District and nearby sections of Maryland and Virginia yesterday, causing damage estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars. The huge stones, some more than an inch in diameter, smashed greenhouse windows, ruined valuable plants and riddled automobile tops.

A pedestrian was injured critically when he was blinded by the hail and struck by an automobile in College Park. An airplane was grounded in a field when the storm confused the pilot. It nosed over, but both pilot and passenger escaped injury.

The stones which bombarded the Capital and its suburbs from the sky were the largest in the memory of life-long District residents, who fled indoors when the pellets crashed like bullets around them.

There were two distinct periods of hail, officials at the Weather Bureau said last night.

110 Airplanes Fight Orient's Biggest Battle

300 Reported Killed as Japanese Bomb Hanyang Tenements.

By the United Press.

Hankow, April 29.—The greatest aerial battle in Far Eastern history, with 110 planes engaged and both sides claiming victory, was fought today when Japanese fliers celebrated the thirty-seventh birthday of Emperor Hirohito by a massed bombing raid on the big military arsenal in Hanyang, adjacent to this provisional capital.

[Dispatches reaching Shanghai, the Associated Press reported, stated 300 persons were killed and 700 wounded by Japanese bombs.—Editor's note.]

At the same time, an official Chinese announcement said a Chinese counter attack had smashed a Japanese offensive northeast of Suchow, resulting in Chinese reoccupation of Tancheng. Two thousand Japanese were killed, it was claimed. A Japanese attack at Yihsien was repulsed, the announcement said.

$142,25[illegible] D. C. Building Plan Drafted

President Announces 10-Year Program of Public Improvements.

Timed to coincide with agitation for a new "pump priming" program, a $142,257,000 public buildings development plan for the District was announced yesterday by President Roosevelt.

Plotted as two five-year plans, the first of which could be launched as soon as appropriations were granted by Congress, the study represents 15 months of work by a special committee appointed by the President.

Representative Ross Collins (Democrat), of Mississippi, chairman of the House sub-committee on District appropriations and a member of the five-man group that drew up the report, voiced the belief Congress would take up the program next year.

H. N. Randolph, Jefferson Kin, Dies; Rites Set at Monticello

Heart Disease Is Fatal to Noted Lawyer at His Home Here.

Hollins Nicholas Randolph, 66, descendant of Thomas Jefferson and a member of the Jefferson Memorial Commission, died yesterday at his home, 2230 California street northwest, of heart disease.

He had been ill several months and recently had been confined to his home.

Mr. Randolph will be buried in the family plot at Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson near Charlottesville, Va., reserved for direct descendants of the third President. He will be the second member of the family buried at Monticello since 1916. One member of the family was buried there about a year ago.

Born at Dunlora, Albemarle County, Va., February 25, 1872, he was the son of William Lewis and Agnes Dillon Randolph. He was graduated in law at the University of Virginia in 1895 and was admitted to the bar in Georgia in 1896, where he was a member of the firm

Heavy Vote For Suffrage Urged Today

Size of Ballot Demand Should Be Known by Midnight.

62 Polling Places to Be Open 12 Hours, From 9 A. M. to 9 P. M.

Washington will tell it to Congress with votes today. With polling places in 62 precincts open from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., results of the suffrage referendum are expected to be known by midnight.

Estimates of the probable vote ranged from 40,000 to 100,000, although leaders of the suffrage campaign pointed out that even the smaller figure would represent an impressive turnout for a completely unofficial poll. A forecast of fair and cooler weather today improved prospects for a heavy vote.

Ballots will be gathered tonight by trucks, guarded by police and tabulated by machinery under supervision of six District judges.

Free Transportation.

Transportation to polling places will be furnished to any citizens who would otherwise be unable to vote, campaign officials announced. Telephone calls to the District number, National 5000, will be referred to the various schools serving as balloting places, where precinct chairmen will dispatch automobiles to bring voters to the polls.

Last-minute appeals for city-wide participation in the plebiscite stressed importance of a decisive vote for local self-government and national representation, with the House Judiciary Committee scheduled to consider the suffrage question May 18 and 19.

Pointing out that today's poll represents Washington's first opportunity to mark a ballot in 67 years and that the May meeting of the Judiciary Committee will bring the long-disputed suffrage question before that body for the first time in ten years, speakers termed the "election" a unique opportunity for impressing Congress with the District's desire to vote.

Open-Air Rally Held.

At an open-air rally held last night at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, representatives of Federal employes, business and professional men and organized labor urged that citizens march to the polls en masse and vote "Yes" for local and national representation.

15,000 Loyalists Defend Pyrenees; People Evacuated

By the United Press.

Hendaye, France, April 29.—The loyalist general staff, forcing peasants to evacuate farms and villages along the Pyrenees frontier, tonight moved 15,000 troops into the area for a last-stand defense of the anarchist stronghold of Puigcerda.

An insurgent army of between 15,000 and 18,000 under Gen. Emilio Solchaga is driving eastward along the Pyrenees border upon Puigcerda, lying to the east of the tiny mountain republic of Andorra, in an attempt to close the last three gateways open between France and loyalist Catalonia.

On the southern end of his long front, Gen. Franco's insurgent armies were bogged down in ankle deep mud.

Hawker Arrested In Castle Art Theft

Ashford, Kent, England (Saturday), April 30 (U.P.).—George Owen, 39-year-old street hawker, today was charged with burglarizing the 17th century Chilham Castle from which five paintings worth $500,000 belonging to Sir Edmund Davis, art collector, were stolen April 22.

Owen was arrested by Scotland Yard operatives at the London office of Tyler & Co., when he appeared with two of the paintings, Gainsborough's "Lady Clarges," and "Pitt in Red Robes," valued at $150,000, wrapped in newspapers.

Rules Group Pigeon Holes Pay-Hr. Bill

Mrs. Norton Plans New Move to Gain Floor by Petition.

House Committee's Vote Paradoxically Betters Measure's Chances.

By Sidney Olson.

The beleaguered wage-hour bill, most consistently resisted reform sought by the Administration, suffered another setback yesterday when the House Rules committee, by an 8-to-6 vote, pigeon-holed the measure.

By a political paradox, the Rules Committee's refusal to give the measure right of way to the House floor actually improved the bill's chances of House passage this session.

Chairman Mary T. Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey, moved at once to file a petition, which if signed by 218 members (a majority), would blast the latest "escalator" version of the bill from the strangle hold clutch of the Rules Committee.

Senate Filibuster Feared.

Even bitter opponents of the measure conceded that many House members, anxious to make amends to the Administration for opposing the President's Government reorganization bill, not only would sign the petition but would vote for the bill.

So certain were some Southern Democrats that the petition would be signed and the bill passed by the House, that talk of Senate filibuster when the bill comes back again from the House was heard yesterday.

Opponents chose, as the point of filibuster, the parliamentary moment when the bill reappears in the Senate, where a more drastic version was passed last year. Instead of allowing the bill to go to conference, and then filibustering against the conference report, it was believed Senate opponents would make their fight over a motion to concur in the bill.

Ordinarily, a motion to disagree with the House bill would be made and sustained, and then conferees from each chamber would be appointed to agree on a final bill. This bill then would come back as a conference report. But conference reports, while debatable, are not subject to any motions of delay, nor to dilatory amendments, which are the favorite weapons of filibustering legislators. In fact, a Senate parliamentarian said yesterday, a conference report is the most difficult thing to filibuster against, as no Senator may make more than two speeches on a report in one legisla-

D. C. Youth Killed In Crash Going to Blossom Festival

En route to the Winchester Apple Blossom Festival, John Elliott, jr., 18-year-old Eastern High School student was killed yesterday as an automobile overturned on a curve a mile west of Leesburg, Va.

The victim was the son of a special clerk in the Postoffice Department, and lived at 1318 Massachusetts avenue southeast.

Two young companions of Elliott were cut and bruised.

They were Frances Fischer, 17; of 433 Seventh street southeast, a student at St. Cecilia's Academy, and Joseph Sabin, 17, of 1830 Massachusetts avenue southeast, a student at St. John's College. Sabin is the son of Joseph C. Sabin, Washington contractor.

The accident occurred at 7 a. m., about an hour after the young people left Washington.

Trust Inquiry Asked By Roosevelt; Specific Business Plan Invited

President Grateful For 'Co-operation'

Calls on Security Board to Act to Liberalize Age Pensions.

By William V. Nessly.

President Roosevelt yesterday invited "specific suggestions" for business recovery from the 16 industrialists, bankers and insurance executives who, earlier this week, pledged co-operation with him in fighting the depression.

At the same time he made something of an offer of assistance to business, in his anti-trust message to Congress, and, in another phase of his efforts to lessen distress, called on the Social Security Board for a study looking to liberalization and extension of the old-age benefit system.

The President's statement that he would welcome specific plans to aid recovery was made in a letter to John W. Hanes, Securities and Exchange commissioner, who brought about the issuance of the statement by the business leaders. Mr. Roosevelt asked Hanes to thank the signers for their "excellent statement," and told the commissioner "it is mainly a question of finding the methods."

Text of His Letter.

The letter read:

"Dear Commissioner Hanes:

"Just before leaving, I want to let you know that I am grateful for the expression of co-operation which was extended in the excellent statement you brought to the White House.

"I wish you would thank each of the 16 signers for me personally, and tell them if they have any specific suggestions, either as a group or individually, which they would like to have reach me, I will be glad to receive them either directly from them or through you.

"As you know, I am looking for these specific steps which will bring closer co-operation between business and Government and which will encourage them to take the initiative to stabilize their industry.

"It is mainly a question of finding the methods and the more concrete suggestions that we have, the quicker we will find the proper solution.

"With best wishes to you,

"Very sincerely yours, Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Conciliatory Note Struck.

The letter was in harmony with the President's conciliatory attitude toward industry and trade in his recent fireside chat, and in harmony, likewise, with one portion of his message to Congress yesterday in which he said:

"In gauging the market for their wares businessmen, like the farmers, should be given all possible information by Government and by their own associations so that they may act with knowledge and not on impulse. Serious problems of temporary overproduction can and should be avoided by disseminating information that will discourage the production of more goods than the current markets can possibly absorb or the accumulation of dangerously large inventories for which there is no obvious need."

Other developments along the lending-spending recession-fighting front included:

Union Chiefs Plan to Fight Rail Pay Cuts

Brotherhood President Sees Attempt to 'Embarrass' Roosevelt.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 29.—A notice of a 15 per cent wage cut for 1,000,000 employes of the Nation's major railroads evoked a promise of stiff opposition from union chieftains today.

The Association of American Railroads, embracing 142 class one lines, voted to put the reduction into effect July 1 to save $250,000,000 a year and offset dwindling revenues and increased operating costs.

The organization contended the financial position of the carriers was more desperate than in 1932.

A challenge came quickly from D. B. Robertson, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen. He declared at Cleveland:

"There will be no wage reduction agreed to by railroad employes."

He described the move as an attempt to "embarrass" President Roosevelt in his "efforts to bolster recovery," and asserted the railroads had slashed their payrolls by $40,000,000 a month since last October.

Southern Methodists Approve Union With Northern Church

Birmingham, Ala., April 29 (AP).—Notwithstanding threatened secession of an uncounted bloc of adherents, Southern Methodism's body of government voted today to unify the denomination that was split into South and North divisions by the slavery dispute before the Civil War.

The action opened the way for joining approximately 8,000,000 members in "the Methodist Church."

The Methodist Episcopal Church (Northern) and Methodist Protestant churches previously sanctioned unification.

Southern anti-unificationists, who have raised the color question, turned immediately after the vote to plans for carrying through their pledge to perpetuate "a separate church for Southern Methodists, forever."

This group indicated it would go into the courts, if necessary, to forestall what it viewed as "death of the Southern church."

The vote to unify Methodism, cast by official delegates to the twenty-third quadrennial convention here of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, was:

For 434.

A two-thirds majority was necessary for adoption.

Opponents contended a merger would violate church laws.

By Robert C. Albright.

President Roosevelt yesterday asked Congress to authorize a comprehensive anti-trust investigation by three Federal agencies "to stop the progress of collectivism in business and turn business back to the democratic competitive order."

The long-awaited monopoly message asked an attack at once through existing anti-trust laws. But it said these laws are "inadequate" and asked an investigation to gear them to new economic conditions. It recommended immediate controls over bank holding company systems and investment trusts.

The President charged private enterprise is "becoming a concealed cartel system after the European model" and warned the country to guard against "Fascism—ownership of Government by an individual, by a group, or by any other controlling power."

Message Is Lengthy.

The message, one of the longest the President has written, was read to the Senate. The House was not in session. Such arch foes of monopoly as Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, hailed its objectives, but warned that the investigation should be limited to formulation of legislation for action next session.

Both Borah and Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Montana, said they would continue to press for action on their joint bill for Federal licensing of corporations.

Most outspoken of the conservative wing, Senator Royal S. Copeland (Democrat), of New York, called the message "terrible."

"He's sand-bagging everybody," said Copeland.

To finance a thorough-going inquiry into business power concentrations, price systems in industry and the effects of Government tax and patent policies, the President asked $500,000. The study would not be conducted by Congress, but by the Federal Trade Commission, the Justice Department, the Securities and Exchange Commission, and other agencies.

To provide for the "proper and fair" enforcement of the existing antitrust laws, the President asked $200,000 additional for the Justice

Roosevelt Travels South to Fish for Week on Cruiser

Aboard Roosevelt Train, April 29 (AP).—President Roosevelt traveled southward tonight for a week's fishing cruise in the south Atlantic and possibly the Caribbean.

His special train left Washington at 8:11 p. m. for Charleston, S. C., where he will board the new 10,000-ton cruiser Philadelphia tomorrow morning.

The President expects to spend a week on the Philadelphia, probably going as far south as the Virgin Islands. Accompanying him were Marvin H. McIntyre, secretary; Capt. Walter B. Woodson, naval aide; Col. Edwin M. Watson, military aide; Dr. Ross T. McIntire, naval physician, and Rudolph Forster, executive clerk at the White House.

Norris Warns Of Liberal Split Over 3d Party

If Roosevelt Runs Again, 'Reactionary' Will Win, Senator Asserts.

By the United Press.

Senator George W. Norris (Independent), of Nebraska, last night warned that President Roosevelt faced probable defeat if he sought a third term, so long as the strong Republican-Democrat coalition in Congress continues to thwart New Deal aims.

Norris made his statement after Gov. Phil La Follette of Wisconsin announced the formation of a new third party, a move which Norris said might split liberal ranks and cause election of "a reactionary" to the Presidency in 1940.

He argued that the people elected President Roosevelt on a liberal platform but that if the coalition opposition to his objectives was continued, the demand for a "third term will be so active among the people that he will be forced to run."

"If he should run, and a third party nominates a progressive, it is conceivable that both would be defeated and a reactionary would be elected," he said.

Senator Sherman Minton (Democrat), Indiana, a New Deal supporter, also felt that the proposed third party might increase possibility of election of a "reactionary" President in 1940. "It is an old trick of generals to divide their opposition," he said.

Makes Bid in Iowa.

Des Moines, Iowa, April 29 (AP).—Gov. La Follette tonight carried his National Progressive Party's political sales campaign into Iowa, the State which gave his father 275,000 votes for President in 1924.

Speaking on a national radio hook-up, he paid tribute to President Roosevelt's "brilliant leadership" but said "the Progressive Party leaders within the Democratic Party have become an outer fringe."

La Follette took issue with the theory that overproduction is a basic problem.

"It is not reasonable to speak of a third of our people as 'ill-fed, ill-clothed and ill-housed,' and then conclude that we are in trouble because of overproduction," he continued.

Glenn Frank Skeptical.

Detroit, April 29 (AP).—Dr. Glenn Frank, chairman of the Republican national policy-formulating committee, said in an address today that he believed the Progressive Party launched by Gov. La Follettee was nothing more than "a modified New Deal, with the obviously futile aspects of the Roosevelt Administration's program discarded."

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 29.—Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, whose recent Western tour was attributed by some observers to an active interest in the 1940 Presidential picture, tonight said he considered Gov. Philip La Follette's third party plans "very interesting."

"He is doing what every American who has an idea should do," said the mayor. "That is to speak out.

"Everyone will agree with the point he stresses, that in a land of abundance, and a land so rich in natural and other resources there should be work and gainful employment for everyone. To bring that about requires the finest kind of unselfish co-operation. The situation is such as to make the desire for political advantage most obnoxious."

Leaders of the American Labor Party, which polled nearly 500,000 New York City votes in the election last November, withheld judgment on the formation of the La Follette party.

"The A. L. P.," said Alex Rose, executive State secretary, "was not invited to the conference."

"The More the Better."

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt told reporters yesterday he would stand on his comment of last Tuesday, when asked his reaction to formation of the new party by Gov. La Follette.

At his Tuesday press conference the President said the more liberal forces organized to promote progresive policies and action the better it would be for the country.

Thomas Likes Speech.

Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., April 29 (AP).—Norman Thomas, leader and three-times Presidential nominee of the Socialist Party, said today there was much he liked about the speech of Gov. La Follette, "including his analysis of the shortcomings of the New Deal."

"Those shortcomings, however, are, I think, more inherent than Gov. La Follette recognizes in the capitalist system, which he does not care openly to repudiate."

$4,000,000 Allotted Norfolk Navy Yard

By the Associated Press.

Representative Hamilton (Democrat), Virginia, said yesterday the President and the Budget Bureau had approved nearly $4,000,000 worth of improvement work at the Norfolk Navy Yard in preparation for capital ship construction there.

Fifteen items provided, Hamilton said, would be included in the forthcoming deficiency appropriation bill making funds available July 1.

This work, Hamilton said, affords a strong indication one of the new battleships to be laid down before the end of the calendar year would be assigned to the Norfolk yard.

He said he was advised by the Navy that work on rehabilitating the ways at Norfolk was "progressing satisfactorily," and would be completed in August.

It will be at least two weeks after Congress adjourns before the committee actively begins preliminary work, and the assembling of evidence will require all summer, Heffernan predicted. Yesterday was a postmasters' day in the Senate. The President sent some 250 postmaster nominations to the Hill, the offices being located in 24 States. Before the day ended most of those on hand previously had been confirmed. Tempers flared again yesterday in the Senate Agriculture Committee's investigation of the American Cotton Co-operative Association. N. C. Williamson, president of the co-operative, declared the investigation, with others, had been brought about by the cotton trade and "those who want to cripple the farmer co-operatives." Chairman Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, replied, according to the Associated Press:

"Any insinuation that I was motivated by the cotton trade in sponsoring this investigation is a malicious or vicious attempt to discredit all I've done for agriculture, and especially cotton, in the past 30 years."

The total amount in the new flood control authorization bill is going over the $300,000,000 mark previously estimated, it was indicated yesterday by Chairman Whittington (Democrat), of Mississippi. Members of Congress are hearing from the farmers back home who have complaints against regulations under the soil conservation act. Representative Nelson (Democrat), of Missouri, yesterday received from Secretary Wallace a reply to complaints the Missourian had forwarded from some of his constituents.

Wallace wrote that in speeding acreage allotments to farmers before planting time, the department "no doubt slighted our educational work of acquainting the farmer with the real aims and purposes of the 1938 farm act." He added that the act "places responsibility for the administration of the program in the hands of the farmers themselves."

Nelson had written that "the objectionable features as to crop bases must be removed and common sense substituted."

Senator Hattie Caraway (Democrat), of Arkansas, meanwhile, had forwarded complaints from her State that regulations requiring farmers to divert land from soil-depleting crops did not allow them to grow enough feed to seed crops for their own use.

Roosevelt Asks Cash to Start 2 Additional Battleships Now

By the United Press.

President Roosevelt yesterday asked Congress for $25,597,000 to start immediate construction of two new dreadnaughts and to improve Government ship building facilities in anticipation of the greatest naval expansion program in the country's history.

The new battleships would be in addition to the two under construction—the North Carolina and the Washington—the two provided for in the $550,000,000 Navy Department appropriation for 1939, and the three authorized in the President's $1,167,000,000 expansion bill now being debated by the Senate. Keels for the two new dreadnaughts would be laid before July 1.

Expansion Debate Limited.

The President said the new vessels would replace the "overage" New York and Nevada, built in 1914 and 1916.

If Congress grants the President's request, the United States would have at least six battleships under construction within a year and possibly more if the pending expansion program is enacted.

After receipts of the President's message, Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley (Democrat), of Kentucky, obtained a limitation of debate on the expansion bill and practically assured a final vote early next week. Passage by a substantial majority was predicted.

World's Biggest Program.

The United States is building or has appropriated for 96 fighting ships, including four battleships, three aircraft carriers, one heavy cruiser, 11 light cruisers, 57 destroyers and 22 submarines. These are in addition to the 46 men-of-war authorized in the pending expansion bill, including three battleships, two aircraft carriers, nine cruisers, 23 destroyers and nine submarines.

Compared with this program, Great Britain has only 85 warships under construction, France 45, Italy 75, and Germany 51, according to latest information received by the Navy Department. Japan's program is believed to be smaller.

Only $5,000,000 of the supplemental estimate submitted by the President would be used for laying the keels of the two battleships, while $13,752,000 would go for expansion of Navy yard facilities to handle the proposed program.

Would Be 35,000 Tons.

The new battleships, construction of which is authorized by the Vinson-Trammell act of 1934 to bring the Navy up to treaty strength, will be only 35,000 tons as compared with 45,000 tons authorized for battleships under the pending program.

Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, remarked on the floor that it was "interesting to note that the President is calling for two 35,000-ton battleships, while later, if the Navy constructs 45,000-ton vessels, they will render completely obsolete those he is asking for in this message."

Beginning Monday no Senator will be permitted to speak more than once or more than 20 minutes on the bill itself, and not more than once or more than ten minutes on any amendment.

Naval officials believe present and contemplated naval and commercial shipbuilding will exclude construction of foreign war vessels in American yards. They made this statement in connection with a report that a New York firm of naval architects is preparing preliminary designs for a Russian battleship to be approximately 1,000 feet long—the largest warship ever designed.

Debate on the Navy program and the Administration's foreign policy continued in the Senate with Senator Gerald P. Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, urging immediate independence for the Philippines to sidetrack possibility of conflict between the United States and Japan.

He said military authorities are agreed that the United States would require a navy "many, many times" stronger than the present fleet to prevent Japanese occupation of the islands.

Pa. Grand Jury Called to Study Fraud Charges

Special Inquiry Into Earle-Margiotti Row Will Be Started May 11.

By the Associated Press.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 29.—Campaign charges naming figures high in Pennsylvania's Democratic State administration brought on today a special grand jury investigation to start May 11. The primary election is May 17.

The Dauphin County Court here summoned the June grand jury to study evidence submitted by Democratic gubernatorial candidate Charles J. Margiotti. He was dismissed as Attorney General Wednesday by Gov. George H. Earle who seeks the Democratic nomination to the U. S. Senate.

Laws Bought, Is Claim.

The petition, presented by District Attorney Carl B. Shelley, directed the inquiry toward Gov. Earle, Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence who also is secretary of the Commonwealth; Matthew H. McCloskey, chairman of the party's finance committee and Philadelphia contractor, and Ralph M. Bashore, secretary of labor and industry and secretary of the Democratic State committee.

It charged that legislation was "bought" in the 1935 General Assembly, that irregularities existed in purchasing supplies for the State, that highway equipment was used for political purposes, that there was an "improper relationship" between McCloskey and the State's $65,000,000 building program, of which he holds nearly $10,000,000 in contracts. It mentioned a $26,500 loan Earle said he obtained from McCloskey.

Clashed on Wednesday.

These points, District Attorney Shelley noted, were raised by Margiotti, by Mayor S. Davis Wilson, of Philadelphia and by State Senator G. Mason Owlett.

Wilson is a candidate for the U. S. Senate on the ticket with Lieut. Gov. Thomas Kennedy which has the backing of Senator Joseph F. Guffey. This group is opposing Margiotti and also the State committee's slate of Earle for the Senate, and Charles Alvin Jones for Governor. Owlett is running for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate.

Margiotti has insisted upon a grand jury investigation of his charges and the others, but Earle contended that the proper procedure would be to swear out warrants. They clashed heatedly Wednesday. The attorney general was fired, Earle insisting that Margiotti had refused to substantiate "before the public" the charges which had put "these men under a cloud."

Shelley said he was assembling all evidence, but was unable to say whether he would call Margiotti to testify. Margiotti said he was willing to be a witness "at any time."

Norman A. Genaro, 36, charged with larceny after trust, was found guilty in a three-minute deliberation by a District Court yesterday of fleecing Mrs. Emilie K. Wunderlich, an elderly widow, of her life's savings of $1,150.

The widow was persuaded to trade stock and money for stock in a quick-silver producing concern. She testified she had never received the quick-silver securities.

Mrs. Wunderlich testified that on her way to raise an additional $750 on her home at 718 C street southeast, she stopped in her lawyer's office. She said he advised her not to pay out any additional monies.

First Lady Blames Divorce Attack on Partial Quotation

Boston, April 29 (U.P.).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today said criticism of her stand on divorce probably resulted from a "pure misunderstanding."

Mrs. Charles Feehan, president of the League of Catholic Women, had sharply criticized Mrs. Roosevelt for saying that divorce had become an accepted fact in American life.

"That was only a partial quotation," Mrs. Roosevelt said in an interview.

She believed Mrs. Freehan had based her criticism on the First Lady's recent article on the Ladies Home Journal characterizing divorce as "necessary and right" only if every effort at reconciliation had been honestly attempted and if religious beliefs did not conflict.

About Mrs. Feehan's assertion that "it is most unfortunate, unfair and dangerous for the wife of the President . . . to make political pronouncements that gave offense,"

Arlington Plans Substitute for Military Road

County Board Votes to Accept $25,000 From Airport Company.

Acceptance of $25,000 from the Washington Airport Corporation to provide funds for construction of a substitute highway to replace Military road was approved yesterday by the Arlington County board.

The action, on a resolution presented by William P. Ames and seconded by George M. Yateman, will permit completion of the transaction as soon as the War Department approves the necessary legal papers.

Thomas W. Philips, attorney for the air terminal, said he will confer with the War Department today to obtain the necessary agreement.

He also stated that as soon as the money has been paid Arlington County the part of the road crossing Washington Airport will be deeded to the landing field. The remainder of the highway, he added, will be leased to the terminal at $1 a year for a 50-year term, or for as long as the airport shall be operated at its present location.

While the exact location for the new route has not been determined, assurances have been given by Arlington County officials that work would be undertaken in the near future.

Samuel J. Solomon, manager of the airport, has been carrying around the $25,00 check, made out to Arlington County, for nearly a week, waiting for the War Department to complete its examination of the terms governing the Military road transfer.

In the meantime, members of the House Public Building and Grounds Committee made arrangements to view some of the outstanding sites proposed for a new airport. Included in the tour will be a location at Kensington, Md., brought to the attention of the committee by former Representative Jeff Busby, of Missouri, acting on behalf of six property owners who possess most of the 2-mile square site.

It was also learned that John A. Brickley, local realtor, has addressed a letter to Chairman Andrew J. May of the House Military Affairs Committee, calling attention to the testimony in favor of the Camp Springs, Md., site presented to the Public Buildings and Grounds Committee on Wednesday by James C. McNary, a licensed radio engineer.

During his appearance before the committee, McNary declared that electrical apparatus and radio activities connected with the proposed terminal would not greatly interfere with receptions at the Navy's new receiving station at Cheltenham, Md.

Brickley pointed out in his letter to May that McNary had testified reception at Cheltenham would be subject to interference whenever the air channels above large cities of the country are in use and added, "In my humble judgment, this testimony by Mr. McNary, conclusively proves either one of two things—that the Navy's radio engineers are far behind the times in the science of radio, or else the Navy is just downright stubborn in refusing to admit the blunder that has evidently been made in selecting the Cheltenham site . . ."

Ft. Myer Soldier Freed After Quiz On Girl's Claims

Arthur Addelsberger, 21-year-old Fort Myer soldier, was released from military custody last night after being questioned about statements by Rita Lowell, 19, of New York, that he was the father of her baby boy and promised to marry her.

Fort Myer authorities said he declared he had first met the Fifth avenue dress shop clerk seven months ago.

Meanwhile Greensboro, N. C., police said they had issued a warrant for Miss Lowell's arrest. She is reported to have left her infant in the care of Watson Tuttle, jr., North Carolina truck driver, early this week before coming to Washington.

Suffrage—Pro and Con

Capital in 'Parliamentary Peonage,' Proponent of Vote Says.

Washingtonians today march to the polls to ballot on the question of suffrage for this voteless city. The Post here presents the two sides of the question.

By William H. Mondell.

Chairman of the Elections Committee Citizens Conference on District Suffrage.

Today the people of the District of Columbia can, if they so desire, take a positive step in the righting of a great wrong. They can, if they wish, go to the polls and demand the restoration of their former rights.

MONDELL.

They can register their resentment of, and opposition to, the system of parliamentary peonage under which 680,000 American citizens exist in the Capital of the world's most enlightened democracy. The people of the District of Columbia can, and, in my opinion, should do this. I believe they will.

Local self-government, which the City of Washington once enjoyed, derives from those common law rights which the Constitution of the United States restated and perpetuated for this country.

City's Birthright "Sold."

In 1870, under pressure of social and economic conditions resulting from the Civil War and the reconstruction era in the South, the residents of this District bartered their popular government for an arbitrary rule by appointed officials, and the promise of a Congressional contribution of half of the costs of its maintenance. That generation, now long gone, faced with problems now buried in the past, lacking the courage to guide its own destinies, sold not only its own birthright but ours for a gratuity since withdrawn.

With the disappearance in the District of Columbia of popular government and representative officials, there arose the historically and physiologically inevitable Invisible Empire. An unnamed "Council of Ten," barons of banking and princes of politics, "advised" Congress of the needs of the City of Washington.

The pressure of national affairs forced Congress to rely upon the recommendations of those persons most readily available concerning District legislation. Selfish members of Congress turned our municipal affairs to their own advantage. Patronage trades were, and are made for city offices. This is the system under which Washington is now ruled.

"Whispering Campaign."

The obvious justice of the District's demands for the return to it of the right and duty of municipal self-government is proven by the nature of the opposition to today's referendum. No reasonable or straight forward objection to the extension of the franchise to the residents of the city of Washington has been advanced.

A whispering campaign has been waged based on the assumption that a racial minority of 25 per cent will dominate the city; that minority religious communities will rule our politics; that corruption will reign unhampered and that unchecked extravagance and oppressive taxation will result. No minority, racial or religious, can, has, or ever will dominate a majority which is enfranchised. Municipal governments are honest or corrupt, careful or extravagant as the inhabitants of the municipality demand. Washington will have just such a municipal administration as its residents desire and insist upon.

A further campaign has been waged amongst those persons who desire to maintain their voting citizenships elsewhere while residing in the District of Columbia. It has been said that those persons will lose their state voting rights by participating in this plebiscite and that if suffrage is secured for the District they cannot participate in its elections.

State Votes Not Affected.

Neither of these statements is true. The voting qualifications for today's plebiscite require only that the voters be presently living in the District of Columbia whether or not they maintain voting citizenship elsewhere. Participation in this referendum cannot effect a person's voting rights in a State.

The question of the status of non-citizen residents, once the franchise is accorded the people of the District, is of more importance. I and my associates in this movement, have no desire to enfranchise one portion of our citizenry and leave others without the right to vote. We would object, and I believe the Congress would not countenance, the creation of an elective government in the District of Columbia which did not permit all persons actually residing within the District of Columbia to participate.

It is my opinion that every person inhabiting the District of Columbia over the age of 21 years should avail himself of the opportunity of voting in today plebiscite. It is likewise my opinion that, for the reasons I have above outlined, he should vote in favor of both local and national suffrage. If, however, for reasons of his own he is opposed to the creation of popular government in the District, he should at least have sufficient civic pride and sense of responsibility to record that dissent so that the Congress of the United States may be informed of the wishes of the residents of the City of Washington.

D. C. 'City State' Might Be First of 40, Wrecking U. S., Says Ayers.

By Grover Ayers.

Executive Secretary Ten Mile Square Club

To hear the proponents for suffrage in the District of Columbia talk, to hear them compare Washingtonians with voteless criminals, aliens and lunatics, one would think this Capital city never did have a vote.

The fact is, of course, that the District of Columbia had some form of suffrage from 1800—the year when Federal Government moved here—to 1874. In the beginning we had the mayoralty form of local government.

AYERS.

This became so bad by 1870 that a territorial form of government was established, with a governor, a local legislature and a voteless delegate in the House of Representatives. This form was even worse than the other. Graft was rampant; the city became bankrupt; city employes were paid in script and citizens of Washington pleaded with Congress to rescue them from their plight.

Graft Ended in 1878.

The result was that Congress set up the Commission form of Government for the District of Columbia, temporarily in 1874 and permanently in 1878, and thenceforward the City of Washington was regarded as a model by graft-ridden cities in other parts of the country.

So much for local suffrage. As for "national representation," that is, an opportunity to vote for President and Vice President and to have representation in the Senate and House, one must go back to the Constitution itself and find out what the Founding Fathers had in mind for the District of Columbia.

The Constitution says, with respect to the District of Columbia, that Congress "shall have exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever over such District." What did this mean? It meant that the Founding Fathers wanted a Capital City free from the control of petty politics and local disturbances.

Ex-Soldiers Charged Congress.

Riots in London and Paris had much to do with this decision. And it must be remembered, too, that our own Congress had been chased from Philadelphia to Trenton by a mob of unpaid Revolutionary soldiers. This was to be essentially a Federal city.

Those who have been demanding all kinds of District suffrage in the present campaign would achieve the honor of creating the first City-State in these United States. There are now about 40 other cities in this Nation which could qualify under some one, or two, or all three reasons given by the proponents of Washington City Statehood. Thus we might have many City-States in the Union.

This political situation, might, and probably would, be the beginning of the decline of this country as a Nation. This possibility becomes more significant when attention is called to the fact that both Chicago and Detroit have such bills pending in their own State Legislatures.

Colored Vote Is Issue.

I am the acknowledged leader of the opposition at the present time. All the main leaders among the proponents of suffrage know that I am the leader. They have charged me with the crime, and feel, or some of them do, that I should be dealt with summarily. But they won't debate the issue with me.

I expect to show in the near future that the referendum to be taken today is a farce, that it is unrepresentative of one-sided—in short, that it approaches a hitlerization of politics.

We do not have a Jewish problem here, but we do have a color problem. That is the real issue among proponents of suffrage. Their own leaders disagree on how best to meet the issue. In consequence, the public has been fed with dope that confuses it.

In the past, politicians used the colored vote as they intend to do should Congress grant the District any kind of suffrage today. That is what is worrying the suffrage leaders.

My advice to those who oppose suffrage is to stay away from the polls today. The opposition has been given voice in this referendum. Everything has been arranged by the proponents of suffrage, and they are in complete charge of all the machinery. As a referendum it is meaningless.

Tulane Investigates Revels of Students

New Orleans, April 29 (U.P.).—Rufus C. Harris, president of Tulane University, tonight told a general fraternity meeting a complete investigation would be made of a student's charge that mixed groups of undergraduates held wild Easter house parties on the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Karl Clauset, student, wrote the Tulane newspaper Hullabaloo that "for years the reputation of Tulane and Newcomb (Girls' College) has suffered at the hands of a few fraternities and sororities giving house parties during the Easter week-end on the Gulf Coast from Waveland to Gulfport."

Festival in D. C. To Be Replete With Folk Lore

Three New Groups Accept Invitations to Take Part in Event.

Stray bits of colorful American folk history will be picked up at the fifth annual National Folk Festival in the offerings of three additional groups announced yesterday —musicians from Wisconsin, a French number from Vincennes, Ind., and a bunched fiddling gang from eight States.

The group from Wisconsin will be under direction of Dr. Charles E. Brown, director of the State Historical Museum at Madison, and Mrs. Brown, leader in the Wisconsin Folklore Society.

French Songs on Bill.

One-string salmodikons and eight-string hardangers will be among the unusual musical instruments used. Due to the many immigrant groups which poured into Wisconsin and the care with which folklore organizations have worked, the State has many rich folk offerings. A lumberjack from the State also will appear on the festival program, under different auspices.

From Vincennes will come Mrs. Josephine Theriaque Caney, 80-year-old woman who will sing French songs that were old when George Rogers Clark wrested the early "northwest territory" from her ancestors. Mrs. Caney will join the Acadians from Louisiana in some of their songs, and an opportunity will be given to see the difference in the French that has survived in the two States.

The old-time fiddlers represent the pick of the Nation, and will play the old favorites, as well as special songs known only to part of the country. W. R. Smith and his son, Billy, of Chicago, for instance, will present "The Green Fields of America," a rare tune brought by Smith to the United States from his native Canada. It is a tune he has never heard in this country and he believes it dates back to England and the days when all American fields were pictured as lush and inviting.

Others in the fiddling group are: W. Henry Quillen, of Florence, Ala., whose appearance is being sponsored by a group of Alabamans now living in Washington. Quillen is the star of a family that has entertained Alabama for four generations. He sent in a list of 150 fiddle tunes known to him. On the festival program he will play "Sally Goodin" and "Flahers' Hornpipe."

A fiddling band from Commerce, Tex., composed of members who have played with the same organization, some of them, for as long as 25 years. As a tribute to the work of the band in playing at civic meetings, Commerce organized an "on-to-Washington" committee and collected contributions to make the trip of the band possible. The least contribtuion was 30 cents from an elderly gentleman who once was a member of the band. "Pop Goes the Weasel," "Devil's Dream," and "Old Joe Clark" will be among the band's offerings.

Boy, 12, Will Play.

John D. Weaver, of Landrum, S. C., who is being sent to the festival by the Farmers' Federation of Tryon, N. C., and who will play "The Cackling Hen" and "Fox Chase."

Ed Smithers and his band from Norwood, Ohio, to whom will go the distinction of playing "Arkansas Traveler" and "Turkey in the Straw," favorites with both fiddlers and audiences. Concerning "Turkey in the Straw," Carl Sandberg declared "It's as American as Andrew Jackson and corn on the cob."

Rena Reed, from Kokomo, Ind., who will sing and play numerous tunes.

Jimmie Powers, 12-year-old fiddler from Cincinnati. Jimmie played in the Ohio Valley Folk Festival and fiddles the oldest tunes along with the oldtimers. He wrote that he wanted to come to the National Festival and believed that his will would find a way. Already, he wrote, he had saved $1. His parents proved to be the way. Giving in to pressure, they agreed to defray their son's expenses and are coming with him as his sponsors.

A. F. L. to Seek Mine Recruits In Radio Drive

Green Gets Partial Control of Chicago Station, Plans to Combat U. M. W.

By the United Press.

President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, last night announced his group planned a powerful radio campaign to organize workers under the A. F. L.'s newly-chartered Progressive Miners of America, rival of John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers.

He said the American Federation of Labor had obtained partial control of radio Station WCFL, "The Voice of Labor," owned by the Chicago Federation of Labor.

"The station will be an instrumentality through which the new miners' international union can communicate with miners in a wide area in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and Ohio," Green said.

He did not mention Pennsylvania, stronghold of the U. M. W.

Green's announcement came after Joseph A. Padway, federation counsel, in a report to the A. F. of L.'s executive council, renewed charges that "maladministration" of the wage act threatens to shackle workers instead of freeing them.

Recent decisions by the board, Padway said, indicate a strong tendency to "assume jurisdiction to regulate and to control the normal activities of labor unions which never was contemplated." He cited five cases in defense of his claim that the National Labor Relations Board has exceeded its authority:

"It has invalidated existing contracts entered into between employers and labor unions.

"It has directed employers not to enter into contracts because a complaint was pending.

"It has ordered employers to abstain from recognizing the union of a majority of employes because charges have been filed by a rival union.

"It has set aside the choice of a majority of the workers registered in an election held and supervised by the board's own staff.

"It has called formal hearings tending to disrupt existing contractual relations between an employer and the union representing a majority of employes merely because a rival union has filed a petition for a hearing."

Ex-D.C. Policeman Cleared in Death Of Numbers Man

Thomas H. Hook, 40, former Washington policeman and numbers operator, and two co-defendants were acquitted of a murder charge yesterday in the Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro.

Hook had admitted firing the shot that killed Samuel Jeffrees, colored numbers "writer," in the latter's beer tavern at Camp Springs. He insisted, however, that he did it in self-defense—that Jeffrees made a motion toward his hip pocket.

The other two defendants, Fred Shinman, 44, and Frank Guy, 47, colored, took the verdict calmly.

Hook told during the trial how he and Shinman, while in the numbers racket, had arranged to back all the play which Jeffrees took in. On September 30 last, they called on Jeffrees to collect $370 that he owed them in bets. Jeffrees, according to Hook, refused to pay and menaced them.

Judge Signs Order For Disposition of Loan Firm Assets

Last obstacle to disposal of the major portion of the assets of the Montgomery Building & Loan Association was cleared in District Court yesterday when Justice Peyton Gordon signed an order permitting the Perpetual Building Association to take them over.

Securities with face value of $526,332.54 are to be transferred at that value, while assets in nearby Maryland and Virginia, valued at more than $23,000, will be taken over if an offer by the Perpetual is accepted. The Perpetual offered $23,889.31. Three appraisers were appointed to consider the offer. They are Adam and Ralph Weschler and E. Catesby Rowzee.

Justice Gordon's order is expected to enable substantial payments now to Montgomery depositors and creditors.

Man, 72, Kills Wife, Sister, Shoots Self

Reading, Pa., April 29 (U.P.).—Frank Kleckner, 72, killed his blonde 32-year-old bride and her younger sister tonight and then fired two bullets into his own chest. Bullets pierced the hearts of both girls. Kleckner was taken to the Homeopathic Hospital, where surgeons said his condition was critical.

F Street Jeweler Robbed 2d Time Within a Week

Jewel thieves early yesterday raided Castelberg's jewelry store, 1004 F street northwest, for the second time in a week, and escaped with nearly $200 worth of goods.

The thieves smashed the front window without setting off the burglar alarm.

Celler Pledges 'Hill' Backing in Helium Refusal

Writes Ickes Sale of Gas to Germany Might Mean 'Our Destruction.'

Secretary of the Interior Ickes was urged last night by Representative Emanuel Celler (Democrat), of New York, to refuse to sell helium to Germany even if a money bond were supplied to guarantee that it would not be used for military purposes.

"We on the Hill will back you to the limit," Celler wrote to Ickes.

The Representative revealed he had written the letter in a speech over a National Broadcasting Co. network. The address was devoted to an attack on what he termed "Hitler Sadism," and charged "bestial barbarism" to the Nazis.

Celler declared that in the event of war with Germany, "our sending helium to Germany might be the sowing of the seeds for our own destruction. Hitler would not hesitate one moment to use that helium to inflate dirigibles that could hover over our cities and bomb and slaughter innocent people."

"We are spending millions and millions," he added, "for our military anti-aircraft guns and projectiles to defend our cities from hostile air attacks. Shall we now supply the means by which such defense can be rendered ineffective?"

He said he had the highest regard for Dr. Hugo Eckener, Zeppelin pioneer, who "showed rare courage in refusing to slavishly serve Hitler for propaganda purposes."

"Very likely under dire threats of cruel punishment, however," he added, "he is now coming over here to be used as a stalking horse to persuade the President to override the actions of Secretary Ickes."

Ickes has held up sale of the helium, authorized by Congress, on the ground that Germany has given no adequate guaranty that it will be used solely for commercial purposes. Secretary of State Hull has approved the sale.

a torchlight parade up Pennsylvania avenue, organized by the Junior Board of Commerce.

Malcolm McConihe, Democratic National Committeeman for the District, told 200 citizens gathered in front of the Commerce Building that "Congress stole our vote from us and is now paying us a little alimony, $5,000,000 out of an annual budget of $45,000,000."

Labor Vote Pledged.

Participation in today's plebiscite will in no way affect voting privileges in the States or civil service standing under the State quotas, declared Franklin C. Salsbury, FCC employe.

John Locher, president of the Central Labor Union, stated that his organization had long been on record in favor of votes for Washington.

The interest of business and professional men in securing a voice in solution of the Capital's fiscal problems was stressed in a speech by Lyle F. ORourke, president of the Junior Board of Commerce.

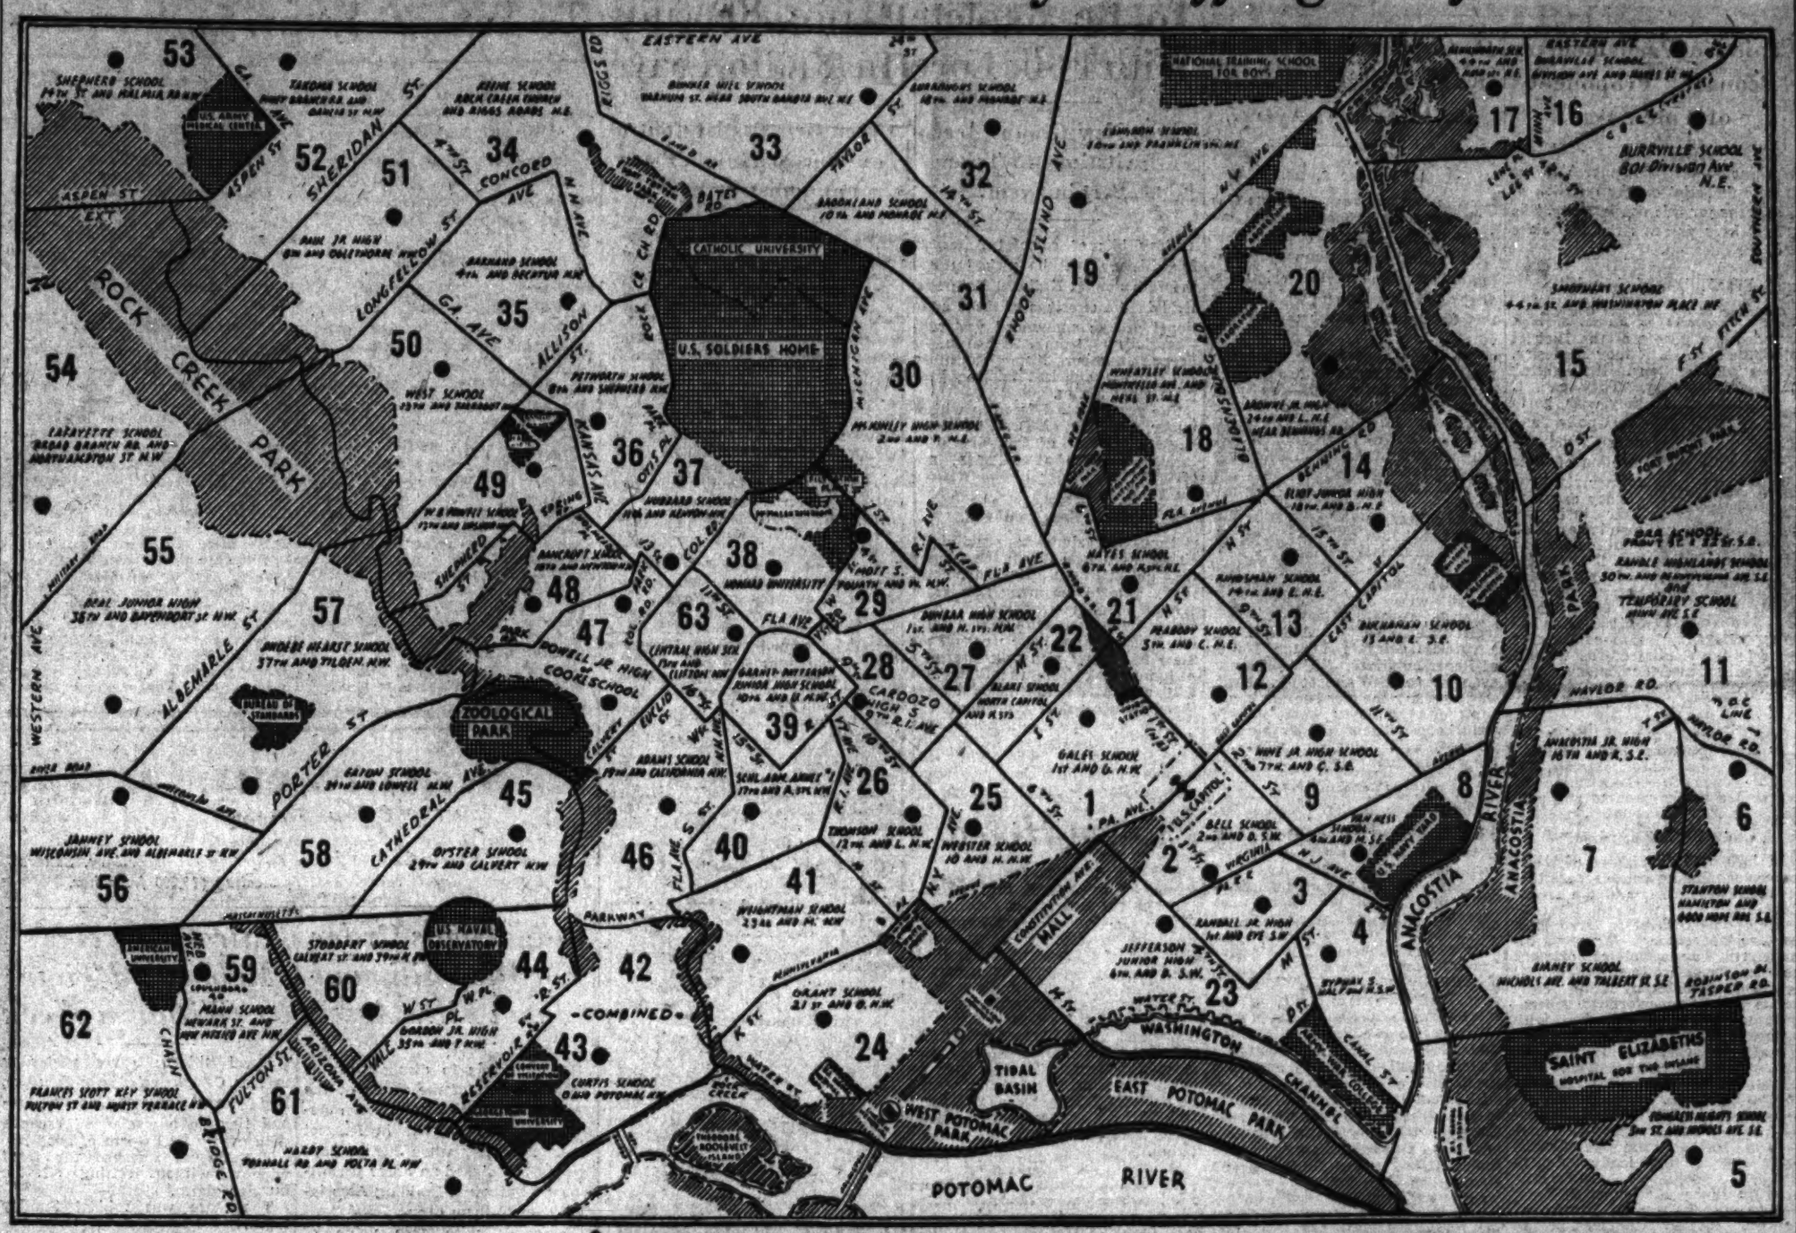
Where to Cast Your Vote in Today's Suffrage Referendum



among the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas, "The Mikado" has claims to first place when it comes to an international poll. More than any of the other works by these initimitable collaborators, it has enjoyed popularity in countries where English is a foreign language. The reason for this is probably the exotic nature of the subject.

Contrary to general opinion, "The Mikado" was not intended by its authors as a humorous travesty of life in Japan. At the time that the operetta was written, it had a strictly topical application. In 1885 at Knightsbridge a Japanese village was exhibited, and it was at this popular rendezvous of Londoners that the satire was directed. Thus the subtitle, "The Village of Titipu," had its special lure for the auditors who first flocked to hear Sullivan's latest melodies linked with Gilbert's quips.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

J. Franklin Viola presents Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado, or The Town of Titipu" in the Rialto Theater Friday night. The cast:

The Mikado ..... William Danforth
Nanki-Poo .... James Montgomery
Ko-Ko ..... Frank Moulan
Pooh-Bah ..... Detmar Poppen
Pish-Tush ..... John Eaton
Yum-Yum ..... Junia Culbertson
Pitti-Sing ..... Frances Baviello
Peep-Bo ..... Eleanor Gilmore
Katisha ..... Anne Yago
Conductor: Max Fichandler.

At the resumption last evening of "The Mikado," with J. Franklin Viola's company, will close its engagement in the Rialto Theater today, a sizeable and friendly audience assembled to witness the debut on the professional stage of Junia Culbertson in the role of Yum-Yum. Winsome in appearance, vivacious in action, and at ease in her impersonation, the young soprano made a pleasing impression. Her lyric voice is fresh and pliant, with a dulcet quality that falls agreeably on the ear. The cordiality of her reception was a good omen for the career upon which she is entering.

It was Miss Culbertson's good fortune to be introduced in the company of such experienced Gilbertians as Anne Yago, William Danforth, Frank Moulan, Detmar Poppen and John Eaton, who could make her feel thoroughly at home. Traditions are of more value on the stage than is fully realized by those sitting on the other side of the footlights, and it was the inheritance of the Savoyard traditions that made last evening's performance move so smoothly and with such good timing, down to the last flip of a fan in a chorister's hand. chorister's hand.

President Asks Trust Inquiry By 3 Agencies

Monopoly

Department. But he said Congress should not confine the new study to this "traditional" approach, as existing laws are "inadequate."

Action this session was recommended on only one subject—legislation to effectively control the operation of bank holding companies. But Mr. Roosevelt said action to bring investment trusts under strict control "need not be delayed." And he said the Securities and Exchange Commission should be authorized to investigate insurance company investments "with particular relation to their use as an instrument of economic power."

Concentration of Power.

Although free from direct personal attacks, the message said "a concentration of private power without equal in history is growing" in the country. He said liberty of democracy is not safe if private power becomes stronger than their democratic state.

And he warned those people "in and out of the halls of Government" who encourage growing restrictions on competition that "consciously or unconsciously they are working for centralized business and financial control."

"Private enterprise is ceasing to be free enterprise and is becoming a cluster of private collectivisms," he said, "masking itself as a system of free enterprise after the American model. It is in fact becoming a concealed cartel system after the European model.

Quotes Finance Statistics.

The President said Bureau of Internal Revenue statistics show that one-tenth of 1 per cent of all of the corporations own 52 per cent of the assets of all of them, and the same percentage earned 50 per cent of the net income of all of them.

Mr. Roosevelt said events abroad "have retaught us two simple truths about the liberty of a democratic people." The "first truth," he said, is that democracy is not safe when private power grows to the point of "fascism." The second "truth," he said, is that democracy is not safe when the business system fails to provide employment and goods distribution to sustain "an acceptable standard of living."

He said "both lessons hit home" because unprecedented private power concentrations are growing in this country.

"This concentration is seriously impairing the economic effectiveness of private enterprise as a way of providing employment for labor and capital and as a way of assuring a more suitable distribution of income and earnings among the people of the nation as a whole," he said.

The President declared the small business man is "being driven into a less and less independent position in American life" as "that heavy hand of integrated financial management and control lies upon large and strategic areas of American life."

Mr. Roosevelt enumerated seven subjects to be incorporated in his proposed anti-trust investigation, ranging from improved anti-trust procedure to "tax correctives."

His suggestions for anti-trust law strengthening embraced the following:

Placing on those charged with violating the laws a larger burden of proof.

Making proof by the Government of identical bids, uniform price increases, price leadership and higher domestic than export prices "prima facie evidence of unlawful actions."

More power for the Justice Department and the Federal Trade Commission to investigate violations of the anti-trust laws, and recommend remedial legislation in "border-line" cases.

Power for a court issuing injunctions against violations to remove officials of corporations from their job if responsible for wrongful action.

Withholding of Government purchases from corporations guilty of unfair or monopolistic practices.

He recommended the bringing of investment trusts under strict controls. He said the Securities and Exchange Commission has completed a two-year study of investment trust operations, and will report its findings to Congress.

The President said tremendous investment funds controlled by insurance companies have a certain kinship" to investment trusts and recommended these be investigated by the SEC.

Then he urged that Congress at this session enact legislation to prevent holding companies from acquiring control of more banks, and prevent banks under their control from establishing more branches. He asked that it be made illegal for a holding company or any concern in which it is interested to borrow from or sell securities to a bank in which it holds stock.

This legislation, he said, should provide for the gradual separation of banks from holding company control. Senator Carter Glass (Democrat), of Virginia, has a bill on this subject, but he recently indicated no action was likely this session.

Other points specifically recommended for study were:

Supervision and publicity of the activities of Trade associations, to enable them to combat unfair competitive methods, but to guard against their interference with legitimate competitive practices.

Amendment of the patent laws to prevent their use to suppress inventions and to create industrial monopolies.

Tax policies to "give affirmative encouragement to competitive enterprise" such as increasing the intercorporate dividend tax "to discourage holding companies" and further graduation of the corporate income tax "according to size."

Further study of the undivided profits tax (modified to a narrow range in the pending tax bill) and consideration of its "real value in working against a further concentration of economic power and in favor of a freer capital market."

Finally, the President recommended establishment of a "Bureau of Industrial Economics" to supplement and supervise the collection of industrial statistics by trade associations, and to perform functions for business men similar to those performed for farmers by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

The President warned that "big business collectivism in industry compels an ultimate collectivism in Government." He served notice on industry that "enforcement of free competition is the least regulation business can expect."

Bars Rash "Trust-Busting."

But he said he was not proposing "any ill-considered 'trust-busting' activity which lacks proper consideration for economic results." He favored rather a "program to preserve private enterprise for profit by keeping it free enough to utilize all our resources of capital and labor at a profit."

Members of House and Senate, straining at the leash toward adjournment, welcomed the President's abandonment of efforts to whip a comprehensive program through Congress this session. Authority for monopoly studies is expected to be speedily voted, but not without some fight for a Congressional, rather than an administrative investigation.

Senator Borah, who recently conferred with the President on the scope of the inquiry, said he had "no objection to the investigation proposed in view of the fact that it will be very difficult to legislate before next session."

"The great fear I have," said Borah, "is that the investigation will string along and finally reach the dust of the upper shelf in the form of 10 or 20 volumes which few will ever consult. We know now that monopoly exists in this country; that it is undermining our whole economic and social structure.

"Procrastination" Assailed.

"But both of the old parties have for years adopted the attitude of procrastination; thus actually betraying the interests of the people, until we are right now in the midst of this long-continued depression paying for this criminal delay. We certainly ought to be ready by next session to act."

The veteran crusader against monopolies said the President's statement "leaves really only one question for study; that is how to deal with the subject." He said there can be no doubt "that the problem is here and the only question is how to meet it."

"If the investigation is confined to the question of remedy and the form of legislation, all very well and good," the Idahoan told reporters.

Favors Licensing Bill.

Borah reiterated his faith in the corporate licensing bill he has drawn in conjunction with O'Mahoney, and said they will continue to push it.

Senator O'Mahoney echoed:

"The result of these studies will, I am sure, only strengthen the position already established by Senator Borah and myself that a National law defining the powers, duties and responsibilities of corporations engaged in national commerce is essential."

O'Mahoney said he "welcomed the message as the beginning of a positive administrative program to meet the greatest problem of our day—the domination of the eco-centrated wealth, and I shall conomic life of the Nation by the conoperate in every possible way to secure immediate Congressional authority for the proposed study."

First Lady Makes Whirlwind Boston Tour, Visits Hospital

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

Wage-Hour Bill Pigeon-Holed By Rules Committee in House

Wage

tive day, which would quickly wear down the opposition.

But a motion to concur, he said, is preferential to the motion to disagree, and so is a motion to concur with an amendment. Thus, this is the most vulnerable point, it was observed, and the attack on the bill, supposing it clears its two hurdles of petition and passage in the House, will be directed there.

The line-up in the Rules committee had been known for some time, and occasioned no surprise yesterday. Five conservative Southern Democrats who bitterly oppose all wage-hour legislation joined with three Republicans to defeat five Administration supporters and one Republican.

The vote:

For: Democrats: Adolph Sabeth, Illinois; A. H. Greenwood, Indiana; Byron B. Harlan, Ohio; Lawrence Lewis, Colorado, and Chairman John O'Connor, New York—total, 5.

For: Republican: Joseph W. Martin, Massachusetts.

Against: Democrats: E. E. Cox, Georgia; W. J. Driver, Arkansas; Howard W. Smith, Virginia; J. Bayard Clark, North Carolina; Martin Dies, Texas—total, 5.

Against: Republicans: Carl E. Mapes, Michigan; J. Will Taylor, Tennessee, and Donald McLean, New Jersey.

The committee's action came just before the Congress received the President's monopoly message, in which the President once more urged the necessity of a wage-hour bill, saying:

"The exploitation of child labor, the chiseling of workers' wages, the stretching of workers' hours are not necessary, fair or proper methods of competition.

"I have consistently urged a Federal wage and hours bill to take the minimum decencies of life for the working man and woman out of the field of competition."

The bill now locked up in the committee seeks a minimum wage of 25 cents an hour, to be stepped up in three years to 40 cents an hour. It starts with a 44-hour work-week requirement, to be whittled down to 40 hours in two years. The administration of the law would be conferred on the Labor Department.

Representative Robert Ramspeck (Democrat), of Georgia, ranking member of the House Labor Committee, hauled a stack of legal tomes into the committee room to back his opposition to the new bill on grounds of unconstitutionality. He particularly opposed the new bill on the basis that it grants no differentials to the South.

But when Ramspeck sought to show that President Roosevelt did not appove of the new bill, Mrs. Norton, present in the committee room, immediately asserted that she had "just discussed" the bill with the President and that it met with his "entire approval."

The Norton petition to get the bill out of the Rules Committee must be signed up in two days, an almost impossibly short time in the view of some leaders. Then it could be brought up on May 23.

Confidence that the petition would be immediately signed in full was expressed by Chairman Norton and by many bloc leaders. Numerous chiefs of State delegations have promised Mrs. Norton that they will deliver their entire membership to the bill, not only for the petition but for passage.

Union Leaders Promise Fight On Rail Pay Cut

Rail

Railway Labor Executives Association, as he entered the White House to confer with Mr. Roosevelt stated:

["I am disappointed that the railroads would launch a movement to cut wages and dry up purchasing power in view of the effort of the President to increase purchasing power. The railroad problem is not as acute as management representatives are endeavoring to make the public believe."]

Drop in Income Cited.

The association, however, cited a drop of $13,710,822, or 10 per cent, in net operating income during the four months ending in January, 1938, compared with a similar period ending in January, 1932.

"Even more significant is the fact that net operating income in January, 1938, fell 36 per cent below that of January, 1932," it added. "Freight traffic has now fallen below the 1932 level."

As the first step toward the contemplated cut, the association served formal notice upon the 21 brotherhoods. A spokesman explained that, if the unions objected, negotiations between management and employe representatives would ensue.

If these failed to yield an agreement, he aded, the National Mediation Board could intervene upon the request of either side. And, if arbitration brought no settlement, President Roosevelt could appoint a fact-finding group to make recommendations. He estimated such procedure would require three or four months.

Slash Accepted in '32.

The brotherhoods accepted a voluntary reduction of 10 per cent in 1932. This was restored during the subsequent general business improvement.

Pay increases were granted amid strike threats last year. The 16 non-operating unions obtained an advance of 40 cents a day August 1. The five operating unions won an increase of 44 cents a day October 1. This was calculated at about 6.6 per cent. The raises would have amounted to $133,000,000 a year on the basis of 1936 operations.

The association termed the recent freight rate increases inadequate but announced it would make further study before deciding to seek another boost in those tariffs.

$142,250,700 District Improvement Program, To Take 10 Years, Is Announced by President

Build

the President's special committee on public buildings envisaged a program whose magnitude eclipses even the $100,000,000 Federal Triangle.

Ickes Is Chairman.

Secretary of Interior Ickes is committee chairman and the other members, besides Collins, are Senator Elmer Thomas, chairman of the Senate sub-committee on District appropriations; Frederick A. Delano, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, and Rear Admiral O. J. Peoples, chief of the Procurement Division of the Treasury.

Pointing out that the Federal Government's annual rental bill in the District alone is $2,900,000 and that the proposed construction program would "not only supply needed Government space but * * * greatly help to relieve unemployment," the advisory group urged:

Erection of a home for the Social Security Board and the Railroad Retirement Board.

Demolition of the old Postoffice Department Building to make way for extension of the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Enlargement of the National Museum by two wings, an improvement sought for years by the Smithsonian Institution.

Building of new homes for the General Accounting Office, now housed in the antiquated pension office Building; the War and Navy departments, whose present quarters are semi-temporary structures; the Coast Guard, now in rented quarters, and the Maritime Commission.

Improvements Slated.

Among additions and improvements to existing structures which are provided for are a long-sought tuberculosis ward at Freedmen's Hospital, an annex to the Treasury Building, additional structures at Howard University, St. Elizabeths Hospital, National Training School for Boys, National Zoological Park, Department of Agriculture and Columbia Hospital, and enlargement of the Central Heating Plant.

The first five-year program would embrace 20 projects at an estimated cost of $94,717,500. The second five-year plan provides for 22 projects totaling $47,539,500.

President Roosevelt was reminded that an annual appropriation of $14,000,000 would bring the gigantic program to fruition in a ten-year span. That does not take into consideration, however, a separate $52,000,000 District improvement program which concerns the municipal, rather than the Federal, government.

"Projects listed for the District government," said the report, "are included for information only, as the committee considered these projects outside the scope of its authority."

Among them are the long-discussed Municipal Center, a new jail, health centers, new library and school buildings, expansion of Gallinger Hospital, a National Guard armory and additional fire houses.

May Buy District Building.

One of the items on the recommended list is purchase of the District Building for Federal uses at an estimated cost of $3,700,000. This step is predicated upon allotment of funds for the Municipal Center, which would house all activities of the local government.

APRIL SHOWERS

SPRING is here today and gone tomorrow, making the homemaker's meal planning doubly difficult. So we must plan ahead. Did you know that our old standby, tomato juice, is equally delicious served hot as well as icy cold? Try it the next time the weather plays you false. A meat loaf is also a two-timer. Garnished with watercress, and served with a Spring Salad it will provide a languid, lazy day dinner but, presto!...with a gust of cold rain you can plan to serve it piping hot. A can of mushroom soup, seasoned well, will give you a fine sauce. However, the variety of sauces to serve with a good meat loaf are endless.

MEAT LOAF RECIPE

1 Lb. Round Steak Chopped
½ Cup Bread Crumbs
1 Beaten Egg
2 Tbsp. Melted Fat
½ Cup Tomato Juice
Cubes of Salt Pork to dot top
1 Tsp. Salt
¼ Tsp. Pepper
¼ Tsp. Celery Salt
¼ Tsp. Dry Mustard
¼ Tsp. Paprika

METHOD: Add tomato juice to bread crumbs with seasonings. Mix well. Let stand 20 minutes. Add chopped beef, beaten egg and melted fat. Put in well greased small bread tin and bake ½ hour at 400° (medium hot oven). Water, milk or canned consomme may be used in place of the tomato juice. Slices of bacon may cover the top instead of salt pork but the combination of tomato juice and salt pork is delicious.

Industrialists Asked for Plan By White House

Spend

program, announced that a bill to authorize the program would be given to the House next Friday or Saturday. Chairman Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, said it was not the assumption that all of the undertakings in the program can be put into one measure.

Bell to Be Questioned.

The committee, after hearing officials of the employment service and the airport division of the Commerce Department, planned to question next Acting Budget Director Bell on some of the proposed authorizations and on unexpended balances still available for spending.

The House Interstate Commerce Committee decided to delay until next session study of the President's suggestion for creation of a Federal transportation authority to deal with common carrier problems generally. Representative Pettengill (Democrat), of Indiana, said there is a strong feeling in the committee that all rates of common carriers should be handled by one body.

Mellett's Appointment.

Mr. Roosevelt said at his press conference that the appointment Thursday of Lowell Mellett to head the National Emergency Council was part of a move to revitalize the NEC to co-ordinate the lending-spending activities. The council was to have passed out of existence last December 31 but was given an extension of life until July 1. In recent months, however, it has been largely dormant.

Postmaster General Farley, speaking at Panama City, Fla., declared "chaos" would result if the Administration abandoned its new recovery plans. He said, according to the Associated Press, that "the rule of chaos would come so fast that those self-same critics (who have attacked the program) would be taking the first airplane to Washington to plead for Roosevelt's aid."

Earlier in the day he had said at Pensacola that the recession was due to defeat of essential portions of the President's program, which, since 1933, he said had been designed to save the country from dictatorship.

Hopkins Makes Address.

Harry Hopkins, relief administrator, addressing the American Seminar, said the Nation's income had dropped an estimated $12,000,000,000 in the past six months, and that 3,000,000 workers had lost their jobs in that time.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, former NRA chief, speaking at Hot Springs, Va., said the present depression was due to "paralysis of our traditional forces of recovery and prosperity," and said the paralysis itself was caused by "colossal uncertainities, incredible inconsistencies and inexcusable ignorance of the essential fiscal, economic and spiritual forces which are the engines which activate our American life."

He said that when the capitalistic system is permitted "to work again" the depression will be over, the Associated Press said. Then he added:

"From all indications, it won't be long now."

Old-Age Benefits.

The President wrote to Chairman Altmeyer, of the Social Security Board, asking that changes in the old-age benefit system to made ready for the next session of Congress. He requested the board to consider the possibility of commencing the benefit payments earlier than January 1, 1942, as now is provided, and asked that larger benefits be provided for those retiring within the next few years, as well as larger benefits for widows and children.

Altmeyer, at a press conference later, indicated the board already had given much attention to the matters suggested.

He said that "perhaps" adoption of the suggestions would mean an increase in Federal taxes, but insisted the increase, if any, would be small.

President Roosevelt was asked by reporters whether reduction of social security payments into the social security reserve fund was being considered, and he said that was one matter being studied by the board.

Vandenberg Critical.

Senator Vandenberg (Republican), of Michigan, who opposed the building up of a tremendous reserve fund, agreed in general with the President's suggestions but criticized the Chief Executive's failure to discuss limiting the reserve, which he said will eventually be $47,000,000,000 as the act now stands.

Altmeyer said that the "pay-as-you-go" plan advocated by Vandenberg does not take into consideration accumulating liabilities.

President Roosevelt emphasized again yesterday his contention that the social security act must be altered from time to time in the light of developments. In his letter to Altmeyer he said:

"The successful operation of the act is the best proof that it was soundly conceived. However, it would be unfortunate if we assumed that it was complete and final. Rather, we should be constantly seeking to perfect and strengthen it in the light of our accumulating experience and growing appreciation of social needs."

of Randolph, Parker & Fortson at Atlanta.

Mr. Randolph was general counsel for the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta and chairman of the board of the Atlanta Georgian-American. He was a delegate to Democratic national convention at Baltimore in 1912, at St. Louis in 1916 and at San Francisco in 1920. He was chairman of the Georgia delegation to the New York convention in 1924.

During and after the World War Mr. Randolph was engaged in alien property custodian work and was a member of the Capital Issues Committee. He was honorary president of the Stone Mountain Confederate Monumental Association.

As a member of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Commission, he vigorously opposed destruction of the Japanese cheery trees at the Tidal Basin to make way for a Jefferson memorial. In 1934 he became a member of the legal staff of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Funeral Set Sunday.

Mr. Randolph was married on October 17, 1899, to Caroline Tison Walter, of Savannah, Ga., who survives him. He is survived also by a brother, W. M. Randolph, of Charlottesville, Va.

He was a member of the Descendants of Signers of the Declaration of Independence, the Capital City Co-operative, Piedmont Driving, Athletic and Druid Hills golf clubs, of Atlanta, and of the Racquet Club, of Washington. He was an Episcopalian.

Funeral services will be held Sunday at 10 a. m. at Gawler's, 1758 Pennsylvania avenue northwest changed to hail at 12:32, to rain two minutes later, and back to hail at 12:36. The second hail bombardment, which lasted until 12:54, was the more severe and brought destruction to hundreds of thousands worth of greenhouses and the precious plants inside.

Hail

Violent up-drafts of air, due to a general disturbance moving northward over the eastern section of the country were blamed for the storm.

The hail was formed in a snow area about 10,000 feet above the earth. Size of the stones was due to tossing back and forth by the currents between clouds until the ice and snow formed around them.

Weather Bureau officials said there were two separate local storms. One was the storm which swept Washington and cut a swath to southern Maryland, where it spent itself.

The other struck the Eastern Shore, smashing hot-houses, damaging crops and covering roadways with hail stones in two counties.

Confused by the hail, Charles Olivet, barber to University of Maryland under-graduates for 27 years, stepped from the curb in front of his shop into the path of an automobile driven by George F. Weil, of New York. He suffered a compound fracture of his left leg and possible internal injuries. At Garfield Hospital physicians said his condition was critical.

Suitland Men Crash.

The storm forced down a private plane in which Pilot James Erdman, of Suitland, Md., and C. C. Cox, also of Suitland, were flying from Wilmington. Near the Marlboro race track Erdman tried for an emergency landing. When his ship struck the soft dirt just outside the track, it nosed over. Both men escaped injury, but the plane was damaged.

The icy balls literally showered some sections of the city, particularly the Southeast, with fragments of glass.

Seventy-four panes were broken at the Van Buren School, but not a child was hurt. Police reported many lights on the Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge were shattered.

Florists were hardest hit, many of their greenhouses reduced to framework during the storm. Most of them reported they were not insured against hail.

Arthur C. Garden, wholesale flower grower and dealer, of 1740 Minnesota avenue southeast, estimated his loss at $75,000, heaviest reported.

Gude House Ruined.

Fifteen greennouses, with 50,000 square feet of glass, fell prey to the hail, he asserted. In addition he lost thousands of dollars worth of valuable plants. Garden's forebears founded the business more than a century ago. At the time of the storm his stock, consisting of all sorts of potted plants, was ready for market.

About 300,000 square feet of glass were smashed in the greenhouses of A. E. Gude, at Eighteenth street and Good Hope road. Damage was placed at only $10,000, as Gude explained there were few things of value inside. He has been moving to new greenhouses near Rockville.

Damage estimated at $3,000 was caused at the greenhouse of L. L. Bowdler, Seventeenth street and Benning road northeast. L. N. Burch, who has a greenhouse at 1520 Good Hope road, tentatively fixed his damage around $3,000.

Numerous panes were broken at the greenhouse of the Botanic Gardens, on Maryland avenue, between First and Third streets southwest. The stones ripped up tulip and pansy beds, and ruined them.

One-third of the windows at the Poplar Point Nursery, in Anacostia, where there are eight large greenhouses, were broken.

None of the florists has hail insurance, it was said last night.

"Mr. Garden's business has been here for a hundred years and more," said an employe there last night.

"But now everything is smashed and ruined. There's nothing but wreckage left."

At the Poplar Point Nursery Robert Sidwell, of the 4400 block of Bowen street southwest, was driving a cultivator when he was caught in the storm.

He found shelter at a nearby tree, but not until he was severely bruised. He refused hospital treatment, however. "They were the biggest hail stones I've seen," he said.

Tops of four automobiles parked in front of the Eleventh Precinct station house were ripped and slashed. Three of the cars belonged to policemen—Howard Hiltner, C. W. Richmond and R. W. Davis, and the fourth was the property of a prisoner.

So great was the noise of the pounding hail as it rumbled on the skylight of the Senate that it interrupted a Senate debate on the Naval expansion bill for about 10 minutes.

Inch Stone Measured.

Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, who was speaking against the bill, was forced to halt temporarily. Senator Lundeen (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota, then suggested the absence of a quorum. The clerk began to call the roll. He had trouble making himself heard. When the storm subsided the debate was continued.

"I measured a stone and found it at least an inch in diameter," said Mrs. Elizabeth M. Phillips, of the 2300 block of North Custis road, Arlington, Va.

Other residents in Washington and nearby, however, claimed some of the stones were more like golf balls, and measured more than an inch.

At the Weather Bureau officials said they found many stones to be at least ⅞ of an inch across. The size varied in the various parts of the city.

WHAT YOU WILL SEE IN THE 5th ANNUAL NATIONAL FOLK FESTIVAL

SPONSORED BY THE WASHINGTON POST FOLK FESTIVAL ASSOCIATION

Five years ago, yearly folk festivals were originated to bring together the people who have inherited American traditions—and to let these people present the folklore of the Nation—completely and expertly. Thus in Constitution Hall on May 6, 7 and 8 will come Indians out of the West . . . sailors from the North . . . lumberjacks from the Northwest . . Mexicans from the Southwest—to show you their traditions in song and dance and play. These pictures show you only 21 of the 500 performers who will come from 29 States to take part in the 5th Annual National Folk Festival.

Back to biblical days goes the dulcimer—a musical instrument of very gentle tone now heard in the Appalachian region in this country. A many-stringed dulcimer is shown here—and it will be played in the Folk Festival.

Here is one of the famous Mexican guitarists who will participate in "Las Posados." Singers form a candlelight procession and march through the streets seeking posados (shelter). Many Mexican tunes will be sung, and "El Jarabe," will be danced during the folk festival.

This isn't a swing band, but a string orchestra from Tennessee. In the folk festival they will "swing it" in the Tennessee mountain fashion. And they will also provide arrangements played for Tennessee square dances.

Lumberjacks from Michigan like to swing a ballad as well as ax. This group will give you solos as well as ensembles of the songs they sing in their bunkhouses. You'll hear such famous lumberjack songs as "Never Take the Horseshoe From the Door" and many others.

Washington At The Polls.

As Washingtonians go to the polls today, for the first time in 64 years, they will be confronted by two relatively simple questions: Do you want the right to vote (1) for officials of a local city government and (2) for President of the United States and for members of Congress from the District? These are reasonable and sincere queries. They ought to command the attention of every adult resident of the voteless Capital City.

An overwhelming majority of affirmative replies may be confidently expected. Many residents of the District are deeply perturbed over the haphazard methods by which it is now governed. Others are disgusted by the continued neglect of public health, education and adequate law enforcement. And, of course, a great number will go to the polls as a protest against denial of the voting privilege to adult citizens in any part of this democratic country.

Already the poll has served a useful purpose. More than any other event in recent years, it has centered public attention upon the plight of the District. The campaign of the last few weeks must have captured the interest of many legislators. Senator Capper and Representative Norton have actively taken the lead in the fight for representative local government. The prospect for making vital improvements in the municipal set-up appears to have been substantially improved.

Perhaps even more significant is the interest aroused among local citizens. The present makeshift form of government has persisted since 1874 largely because of public indifference and apathy. If an aroused citizenry attacks this problem, there is every reason to believe that a satisfactory solution can be worked out.

It would be futile to pretend, however, that the issue at stake is a simple one or that it would be automatically resolved by a grant of District suffrage. Washingtonians must not forget that their city was built to serve the Nation as a Capital in which the power of Congress should always be supreme. Whatever system of government is adopted here must be fitted into that fundamental policy.

When all the suffrage votes have been counted, therefore, the problem of devising a satisfactory local government will still be with us. It is well to recognize that a large number of Government employes and other residents here will prefer to maintain their voting residences in the States. Should this group be excluded from participation in local elections, the officials chosen would scarcely be representative of the people actually living and paying taxes in Washington. That situation gives rise to a very real dilemma.

To the solution of these difficulties today's poll can make no contribution. It will remain for civic groups and Congress to evolve a system of municipal government that will be responsible to the people in as large a measure as is consistent with the preservation of Washington's unique status.

Many citizens who are perplexed by the intricate problems attending suffrage here will doubtless vote for the vote today. That is entirely reasonable. Their ballots will emphasize in the mind of Congress the necessity for some remedial action. The poll should be a new starting point for reconsideration of the District's form of government. It cannot be the last word as to what turn this reform should take.

The New La Follette Party.

Gov. La Follette's purpose in organizing a new political party at this time is not entirely clear. Until recently the La Follette brothers—Senator Bob and Gov. Phil—have been ardent supporters of the Roosevelt Administration. Now they have chosen a moment when the President is greatly in need of support to criticize his policies and proclaim the founding of the National Progressives of America.

It may be that the La Follettes have adopted this means of strengthening their influence with the Administration. By taking an independent line perhaps they can force the President to make a more attractive bid for their support. Maneuvers of this sort are well known in American politics.

On the other hand, it is not improbable that the La Follette brothers are making a bold effort to assume future leadership of the New Deal. They have seen the President defeated on several fundamental issues in Congress. They realize that his prestige has shrunk because of the current depression. In any event, Mr. Roosevelt will probably be retiring from office at the conclusion of his present term two and a half years hence. If the frequently predicted realignment of political parties should take place, with the decline of the President's influence, the La Follette movement would be in a strategic position to bid for the support of left-wing groups in both the Democratic and Republican parties.

If this is Gov. La Follette's objective, however, he will have to offer something more substantial than the platform outlined in his Madison speech. After eight years of depression the people are not likely to be won over by glittering generalities about the use of "every power of government to open the frontiers of this age," and the dedication of this hemisphere by the Creator "for the ultimate destiny of man." The son of "Fighting Bob" La Follette gives scarcely an inkling of the methods he would employ to create more jobs, eliminate the abuses of relief and grant the people real security.

Successful political parties grow out of ideas that are vital, basic and concrete. To date there is small indication that the "progressive" wind blowing out of Wisconsin has any of these qualities.

To Undermine The Press.

In his Reichstag speech of February 20, three weeks before the forcible annexation of Austria, Chancellor Hitler devoted a large amount of attention to "the poisoning of the world's public opinion by infamous press articles."

As the sequel indicated, it was intelligent journalistic prediction of what soon actually happened which chiefly irritated the Fuehrer. By happy contrast with the "unbridled slander" perpetrated by a free press, he said, is the example of Germany and Italy. There "State policy and press policy tread the same road." The success of these two dictatorships in eliminating all newspaper opposition, said Hitler, is one of the factors which has "strengthened our sympathy with Italy."

Senator Minton, judging by his speech in the Senate Thursday, is right in line with the Berlin-Rome axis in this respect. Like Hitler, he is outraged by the fact that there are still countries in which it is not true that "State policy and press policy tread the same road," with the press slavishly hailing the government at every step. Like Hitler, Senator Minton believes that the press of the United States should be muzzled. His bill designed for that end will certainly be acclaimed by the Fuehrer, who in the speech referred to said:

> I do not understand it when I am told by foreign statesmen and diplomats that there is no legal possibility in these countries (the democracies) of putting an end to the lies (in newspaper reports).

No honest newspaper is going to assert that its record is free from blunders and occasional inaccuracies, either in the selection and presentation of news or in editorialization thereon. No honest newspaper will maintain that snap judgments made under the pressure of rapid production are above criticism, or even that its executives are completely free from bias. Indeed, few individual newspaper publishers will assert that the American Newspaper Publishers' Association is solely concerned with altruistic motives and indifferent to the commercial interests of what Senator Minton rightly says is itself "big business."

But the Senator did not stop with criticisms of that constructive character. As his bill shows, it is the guaranteed right of a newspaper to publish news to which he takes exception.

Because a recent issue of The Post was used as a text for his remarks we are particularly interested in this attack. On April 20, Senator Minton pointed out, this paper carried on its front page three stories which might be classified as anti-Administration. Each of them concerned charges made by Republican Congressmen. In retrospect it might be reasonably argued that the best possible judgment was not exercised in displaying all three of these stories so prominently. Incidentally the same might be said of the first-page display given on April 26 to Congressman Rayburn's reading of an anonymous letter to the President, charging that a chain-telegram campaign against the spending program is being incited by "a large corporation in Detroit."

But Senator Minton does not attack The Post's judgment in news presentation. He attacks any presentation of what might be called opposition news. Although the headline to each of the reports in question stated its source, and although the reports were in each case purely factual, they were sweepingly dismissed by him as "propaganda." And to bolster his case he made the absurd statement that "The Administration cannot get a story into the 'free press' of this country; they will not print it. They never have."

Unfortunately the extravagance of this attack cannot be laughed off. It indicates that what irritates Senator Minton is not so much the publicity given to opposition as the fact that there is opposition. It is the fact that Congressmen Church, Taber, and Engle have dared to use their constitutional right to criticise which really hurts the Senator. But a press which reports criticisms as they are made is a convenient horse to flog.

All too evidently Senator Minton is sold on the Hitler-Mussolini technique. Those clear-headed dictators know perfectly well that the easiest way to eliminate an opposition is to deny it the privilege of publicity. The simplest way to stifle criticism of any government with a dictatorial bent is to shout loudly that all who give publicity to such criticisms are "propagandists." But it is more subtle, to give Mr. Minton due credit, to undermine public confidence in the newspapers than it would be to put them under the control of party censors, as Lenin, Mussolini and Hitler did.

There need be little concern over Senator Minton's ridiculous bill. At first glance there may seem nothing excessively unreasonable in its provision that executives of a newspaper publishing as a fact anything known to be false should be liable to two years in jail plus heavy fines. But the joker is that such a law would automatically prevent publication of much legitimate and important news, primarily because of the implicit censorship involved in the broad wording of the proposed statute.

The best indication that the Minton bill need not be taken seriously is found in the Senator's own speech Thursday. His assertion that "this Administration cannot get a headline in the newspapers" is false. Every newspaperman and every literate citizen knows that it is false. But under Mr. Minton's bill publication of Mr. Minton's own words would be a felony, carrying jail terms for newspaper executives and a six-months' suspension of the paper from the mails.

This Fascist legislation, however, is not the real issue. It may be assumed that Senator Minton throws that into the ring merely for its potentially terroristic effect. What he is after is what all dictators are after—suppression of the faculty of criticism. The simplest way to achieve this end, as Hitler has emphasized, is to undermine public confidence in a free press. That this is Senator Minton's purpose could be stated confidently even if the Minton bill were on the statutes. And a challenge of that character, whatever their various shortcomings and deficiencies, the newspapers of America are prepared to meet.

Conversations In London.

It is now 24 years since Great Britain and France, pushing aside the accumulated rivalries and hatreds of centuries, buried the hatchet and formed what came to be known as the entente cordiale.

No diplomatic combination of modern times has proved more durable. To be sure, on numerous occasions since 1904 Great Britain and France have not seen eye to eye in matters of foreign policy. Vast differences continue to divide them. But now, as heretofore during the last generation, the factors operating to keep Great Britain and France together greatly outweigh the circumstances tending to split them apart.

The events of the past few years and particularly of the past few months have borne this out in full measure. The successive blows struck at the status quo by aggressor powers have made the two great democracies of Western Europe more dependent on each other than ever before. It is a striking fact that even those groups in Great Britain and France that have been clamoring for separate deals with Italy and Germany have also insisted that such deals must under no circumstances be at the expense of the Paris-London entente.

It is recognized in France that without British support, the republic would be dangerously at the mercy of its enemies. That is why, since 1936, successive French governments have clung tenaciously to the British tie, even to the extent of abandoning any line of policy definitely distasteful to Downing Street. On the other hand, Stanley Baldwin's dramatic statement of 1934 to the effect that Britain's frontier is now the Rhine is accepted in London as an indisputable axiom.

It is more than a coincidence, therefore, that since Hitler's rearmament of the Rhineland, the erstwhile Anglo-French entente has been transformed into an alliance. The year 1935 saw the beginnings of naval cooperation between the two powers. In the following year military conversations began to dovetail defense efforts of the two nations. And now at London the capstone has been set on this effort toward defense unity by a comprehensive agreement regarding the co-ordination of British and French air forces.

Great Britain and France are today more clearly and more definitely pledged to come to each other's assistance than they were in 1914. But there is as yet no agreement as to the implications of this alliance.

France, for instance, stands committed to go to Czechoslovakia's assistance should that Central European democracy be attacked by the Third Reich. British policy, in this particular, remains equivocal. On the other hand, it is by no means certain that, except in perfunctory fashion, France is prepared to make the same kind of a deal with Fascist Italy that Great Britain recently made.

Nonetheless an increasingly larger measure of Anglo-French co-operation in European affairs is now a certainty. The very circumstance that collective security is today an unrealizable ideal operates in that direction. For the alternative to collective security is power politics. And that, in turn, means the maintenance of defensive alliances as a bulwark against aggression.

"Professor Einstein thinks a hitherto unexperienced force of gravity is slowly exerting its influence on the earth." We had been thinking for some time that something unusual was keeping things down.

The District Suffrage Poll

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Some of your recent contributors opposed to District suffrage have laid special stress upon the woes undergone by the District under the territorial form of government of 1871 to 1874.

I refer particularly to Henry A. Hayward in the Post of April 28 and John Hadley Doyle in the issue of April 22, who accuse the suffrage advocates of being ignorant of what the District suffered in those years, whereas, I think Mr. Hayward and Mr. Doyle would do well to learn just why those bad conditions of the 1870's came about. The story is to be found in histories of the District, and there is a good, concise account in the third chapter of W. F. Dodd's Government of the District of Columbia.

Under the territorial form of government, the governor, the board of public works (which was mainly responsible for the large debt cited by Mr. Doyle and in the Congressional reports quoted by Mr. Hayward), and even the upper house of the local legislature were appointed by the President of the United States. The people's elected representatives in the municipal governments of 1800 to 1871 had been prevailingly conservative about developing the Capital, and it took some powerful Federal appointees to lead them into an overdose of spending which ended in receivership in 1874.

The system of three receivers (commissioners) with very limited powers under Congressional direction was made permanent in 1878 when Congress gave up trying to agree on something to fit the situation in a more democratic way. Sixty years later we are still in political receivership.

If the elective portion of the territorial government failed to hold the spending spree in check and also showed other signs of unwisdom and susceptibility to corruption, the blame is largely to be laid to the special conditions prevailing in the District so soon after the Civil War. In that same period looseness and corruption were especially prevalent in American politics.

Some American cities still have notoriously bad politics, but others have shown that we don't have to give up American municipal democracy as a failure. The District is in a peculiarly favorable position to start fresh with a system embodying the best experience elsewhere, with no already existing corrupt political machine to be ousted from entrenched power.

Of course the District still has a problem in having two major racial groups in its population, but so do various other localities. I see no reason to conjure up the specter of one-fourth of our population acting as a racial bloc to take control away from a strangely impotent three-fourths.

I certainly cannot go along with those whose spoken or unspoken opposition to the fifteenth amendment was undoubtedly a factor in leading them in the 1870s to revoke the enfranchisement of the District's Negroes by the nominally constitutional method of disfranchising both races alike. I do not choose to be deprived of my right to vote, as some people seem to, in order that our colored neighbors may be legally deprived of theirs.

GEORGE W. HODGKINS.
Washington, April 28.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Who is furnishing all the fume and hullabaloo about the rights of the people of the District of Columbia being disregarded because they have no vote in Congress, and who are setting up the old worn-out banner "Taxation without representation?" They are the politicians who want to make Washington a replica of such places as Kansas City and other large American cities where politics are running amuck.

People in the District do not know what it means to pay taxes; when they pay 5 per cent on four-fifths valuation on real property then they may have some reason to complain; but the tax here is only 1.75 per cent.

To those who are hollering their heads off for a return of the vote in the District let me say just wait till you get it and see where your taxes will gradually rise each year until they become confiscatory and unbearable. We have already had one "New Deal" in the National Government, and what taxpayer relishes such a change. Think twice and ponder well the matter before you go to the polls Saturday and vote away the good thing you already possess, for a substituted speculation, inspired by ingenious politicians who would make you believe that you are really missing something. A TAXPAYER.
Washington, April 28.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I should like to know the desire of the populace of the District of Columbia on the matter of daylight saving adoption. Personally I favor it, and I believe the majority of residents do, also. As we are casting our ballots this Saturday on the suffrage question why not also give our "yes" or our "no" on the daylight savings question? R. J. Q.
Washington, April 27.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post extended an editorial invitation to those opposed to granting the franchise to residents of the District, to offer their reasons for such opposition.

Regardless of a few hysterical words from a woman writer on the subject, men of practical experience know that the colored vote in the District would control the common council and very likely elect the mayor. If they did not elect a colored man mayor they would easily determine the election of any white man in a closely contested election.

Is there any significance to the fact that Senator Thomas, of Oklahoma, prints in the Congressional Record of April 25, 1938, page 7593, a speech he made two years ago, in which he said, "One-third of our colored population is found in the North and in many States the balance of political power is held by the colored race, and such power is sometimes used through the exercise of the ballot."

The colored men in Chicago and in Kansas City know their power. Kelly-Nash and Tom Pendergast praise the loyalty of the colored workers who do such good work for the organization.

EDWARD MONTGOMERY.
Washington, April 27.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Before the citizens of Washington decide to plunge into the muddy waters of local politics, let them consider this solemn judgment pronounced upon the old regime by one who blessed our household for many years with her stately presence and her inspired cooking:

"Was votin' here corrupt? I'll say it was! Why, my Henry would cast his vote jest like they told him to, and what did he ever git fer it? A bar'l of sugar that was half sand—half hand—that's all he'd git! I'm askin' you, was that honest?"

Was it? I'm asking you.

ANTI-SUFFRAGIST.
Washington, April 28.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Tomorrow I'm going fishing. I see no point in voting a ballot that has no point. This is not our city. There is no way in which we can be yielded a privilege to vote for a President short of granting us two Senators and several Representatives, or else disrupting the entire Constitutional set-up. So I'm going fishing.

The Constitutional provision (Article VIII, sub-section 17) giving Congress exclusive jurisdiction in all legislation concerning this District, was neither thoughtlessly nor unjustly conceived. The District is the Government's workshop. Its laws are not intended to benefit the butcher, the baker and candlestick maker, not even the boarding House keeper, the lawyer nor the editor.

Under the Constitution the voter in Nevada has as much say as 100 voters in New York. This is not accidental or unjust. It is a part of the very definite vision of the founding fathers—for suffrage is not an inalienable right, but a limited privilege.

The Congress will never by a two-thirds vote submit such a proposal to the States. Thirty-six States will never be induced to accept it. But fishing is realistic—that thrill that comes at dawn, down toward Solomons Island, when the hardheads are biting. Yes, I'm going fishing!

B. MERCER HARTMAN.
Washington, April 29.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Tomorrow will be a momentous day in Washington. Our citizens' referendum will be more than a petition for a redress of grievances: it will be our declaration of independence from subjection to the 48 States. It will see the first gun fired of our revolutionary war which must subsequently be fought out in Congress and in the legislatures of the States.

Every brave and patriotic citizen will go to the polls today to vote "yes" that the reverberations of the suffrage referendum may be loud enough to precipitate the immediate surrender of the Congress and the legislatures to our just and righteous cause.

Gov. La Follette's announcement of the formation of a third party lends ever greater weight to the outcome of our plebiscite. Every intelligent citizen will want to have suffrage, the tool of democracy, in his hands so that he may be able to add his voice to the coming struggle.

MINNIE FROST RANDS.
Washington, April 29.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of April 29, under "Views on District Suffrage," Fred B. Woodward has contributed a very interesting excerpt from some ancient manuscript. I have no quarrel with the first verse, but I suggest that for the remaining verses the following be substituted as the more authentic version:

Now it came to pass that when, in obedience to the King's command, the Royal Surveyor had completed the plan of the place set apart for the King's palaces, the King perceived that the construction and maintenance of the magnificent avenues and beautiful gardens would be a serious drain upon the royal treasury. Then the King took counsel with himself and with his wise men and it was decreed that all who should desire, including the King's servants, might purchase land among the King's palaces and among the King's gardens. And it was further decreed that those so favored should pay a part of the cost of building the King's highways and his gardens, and of the cost of keeping them in good repair, and that they should be permitted to erect at their own expense the statues of marble and bronze that the King desired in his gardens.

And the people were satisfied, for the King was fair and paid out of his own treasury the greater part of these costs. In the fullness of time, however, the King repented of his agreement and began to pay a smaller and smaller proportion of his expense and to require the people to pay a larger and larger proportion, whereupon the people began to fear that eventually they would be required to pay the entire amount of such costs.

Then the people living in the royal district began to murmur and to say: "Why should we who live here and pay taxes into the King's treasury not have some voice with respect to the taxes that we pay and the manner in which they shall be expended? Are we of less account than our fellows who dwell beyond the walls of the King's city and to whom the King has guaranteed the right of suffrage? Is it not written that 'Taxation without representation is tyranny?' We do not ask to spend our nights in the King's palace or to sup therein, or to interfere with the King's servants, but we pray the same privileges that the King has granted to his subjects without the city."

The Post Impressionist

Newspaper Wife.

SHE may be the very young wife of the very poor reporter, cherishing her trousseau lounging pajamas against those weird hours when he comes in with one of the boys for a cup of coffee and wants to be proud of her. If so, she squanders her dollar-a-week allowance on a finger wave instead of an aluminum saucepan.

She may be the middle-aged wife of a top rewrite man or some minor executive, pampering her husband's digestion against the carton of black coffee and hash-house chile. If so, she saves to pay doctor's bills.

Or she may be an harassed quip-tongued woman herself, trying to fit her snatched free time in with his. If so, she splits her weekly pay envelope and their expenses, saying when she sees that even so there is practically nothing left, "Come on, let's go down to Mike's and catch a quick one for the Revolution. And I pick the Old Man's head to chop off." Only she would stay up 36 hours until her eyes were gritty with sleep, to help the Old Man's lousy sheet get ahead of all the other lousy sheets.

But no matter what type she is, she has certain things in common with all other newspaper wives. She has the same gripes, and she makes the same boasts.

First of all, she's agin her man's hours. If he's on an afternoon paper he has to get up with the roosters, then hasn't sense enough to come home and rest when work is over, but sits in some beer parlor holding a post-mortem over the dead and gone news of the day. If he's on a morning paper—well you know what that means—working all night, sleeping all morning, grouching all afternoon.

Though heaven knows she thinks he has a good kick coming, what with the injustices he has to swallow—the bullying from above, the incompetence from below, and the jealousy of his equals. It's almost excuse enough for all the beering around he does after hours. Still she feels embarrassed when he makes a fool of himself in his cups, while his hangovers are surely no fun. Besides, think of the money it costs!

That's his worst fault of all—he has no sense of responsibility about money. He's such a soft-hearted sap that any old derelict wandering in for a night's work on the rim, and unable to get it, can touch him for five or two dollars, or even the last quarter in his pocket—so that later he has to borrow his own lunch money from the man at the next desk. No wonder she meets him near the cashier's window on pay day to get the household money and make tracks for the nearest chain grocery to lay in food enough—if only canned beans—to last out the week. Somebody in the family has to use his head.

But if ever any sedate suburban matron tries to sniff at newspapermen for a raffish lot, the Fourth Estate's wife will bare her fangs in his defense. How many salesmen, she wants to know, or clerks or lawyers, could stand living under the hammer of Time? The story's got to come in, the copy must be read, the presses have to roll, the world's got to know—about life and death and graft and God. The newspaperman must beat every deadline. That's enough, she thinks, to excuse his hours of loafing, his drams too many, his ribald cracks at the whole creation.

At any rate she is proud of him. And so are some other people she could name. She can remember how the city editor all but kissed him the day he scooped the Dope's Decision, and the time when the managing editor told the new cub to get an eyeful of her husband if he wanted to know what a real newspaperman was like. Her John had given the kid many a steer, too. He was ready to help a fellow. There was not a mean bone in his body.

She, for one, would rather have him like that, easy-going, foolhardy about generosity—taking out on a spree, then next day looking at her like a bewildered small boy when he found his pockets empty except for some assorted match folders. Rather that, than a man stingy and forever carping about the load he carried. Why, when his load grew a bit too heavy, he shucked it off and sat down on it to rest a spell.

And she had caught from him, whatever else her characteristics, some of his nonchalance and jauntiness. Which wouldn't let her grow old for all the gray that might come into her hair. Oh, the fun she'd had with him in the times when the headline was their family motto and a train whistle their mating call. She'd seen the country, and history, and the courage of a breed as rootless as that space in thin air called the Hour, which is the only deity worshiped by a real newspaperman! X.

Disraeli's Words.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The following utterance, made by Disraeli 68 years ago to a prominent statesman, would seem especially applicable to the present period and to the New Deal:

"You have now had four years of it. You have threatened every corporation and every endowment in the country. You have examined into everybody's affairs. You have criticized every profession and vexed every trade. No one is certain of his property, and no one knows what duties he may have to perform tomorrow. I believe that the people of this country have had enough of this policy."

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler.

Rout of Idealism.

WHEN Mr. Roosevelt's original program for recovery first began to roll, a few shrewd old cynics immediately set up a holler against the danger that vast amounts of public money would be used for political purposes. They were howled down as cruel and selfish die-hards, and many honest people joined the clamor, unable to believe that any man, even a politician, claiming to possess a spark of decency or patriotism would take advantage of a terrible national tragedy to promote his own interests.

PEGLER.

Most of us were innocent then, and Mr. Roosevelt's spirited speeches, in immediate contrast to the rather stuffy delivery of Herbert Hoover, were an inspiration not only to the unemployed but to millions of others who hadn't had a chance to study him or to reflect that, after all, his organization was composed of practical politicians not much different from the practical men of the Republican administrations.

It was unthinkable, in the fervor of the moment, that anyone would be so traitorous as to permit personal ambitions to influence the distribution of money which would be handed over to the new government, in full confidence, to save the country. Still, the few cynics insisted that human nature and the nature of the politician had not changed and never would, and they stood their ground in the face of popular scorn, insisting, "You'll see."

• • • •

TIME and the development of the New Deal as a political organization have vindicated their early judgment. It was not long before Huey Long found himself in the dog house, not for any of his outrages against the Constitution in Louisiana but for his refusal to play ball, and several members of his machine were indicted under the income tax law. The sincerity of the indictments was indicated by the fact that after the reconciliation between his political heirs and the New Deal those indictments which had not already been tried were dismissed. Since then Huey's principal heir, Dick Leche, the current Governor, has used as a political boast the claim that he has been able to obtain $75,000,000 of the Federal money for Louisiana.

In Washington, recently, as the reorganization bill went to a vote in the Senate, routine dispatches told of promises and threats to Senators by lobbyists for the New Deal. If a Senator can be intimidated by an Administration which has billions to allot, and if the allotments are governed by his attitude toward the Administration's demands for more power, any lobby to the contrary would seem too feeble and petty to deserve more than passing notice.

Yet now the Senate Lobby Committee, dominated by the Administration, is investigating the counter-lobby and ignoring charges that unnamed Senators were offered inducements and others threatened. The President has authorized the committee to inspect the income tax returns of persons summoned before the committee, but these returns, under the present procedure, will not include those of the "White House messengers" who were reported to have lobbied for the bill. James Roosevelt was named specifically, not as a lobbyist, which is a vulgar word, but as one who worked for the bill. But efforts to examine Jimmy's tax returns in detail failed a year ago, notwithstanding challenging remarks by Representative Treadway, of Massachusetts, which called for a showdown. And the most significant thing about those reports out of Washington of pressure on the Senators is the fact that they were carried not as sensational and shocking news but merely as familiar routine.

• • • •

NOW the WPA in Pennsylvania is being investigated, and Representative Bruce Barton charges that Democratic leaders in Philadelphia have instructed their committeemen to urge WPA jobholders to vote Democratic or lose their jobs. Even that is not a sensational accusation. It is just the normal thing which the country, by a gradual sacrifice of the idealism which inspired the people in the early days of the New Deal, accepts as decent.

And in Tampa a grand jury foreman who indicted local politicians was promptly canned from his WPA job and the State head of the WPA blandly refused to discuss the case with the new grand jury. The fact that the man was hurriedly reinstated does not alter the fact that the WPA flatly reserves the right to intimidate grand juries which pester politicians.

It's a safe bet that at some point in that chat between President Roosevelt and Henry Ford, the President asked, "I know, but why does the water boil over so often?"

There is a story that Richard Whitney got a loan from Warden Lawes recently, putting up a dozen guards as security.

Partial Text Of The Monopoly Message

The partial text of President Roosevelt's monopoly message to Congress follows:

Unhappy events abroad have retaught us two simple truths about the liberty of a democratic people.

The first truth is that the liberty of a democracy is not safe if the people tolerate the growth of private power to a point where it becomes stronger than their democratic state itself. That, in its essence, is fascism—ownership of government by an individual, by a group, or by any other controlling private power.

The second truth is that the liberty of a democracy is not safe if its business system does not provide employment and produce and distribute goods in such a way as to sustain an acceptable standard of living.

Both lessons hit home.

Among us today a concentration of private power without equal in history is growing.

This concentration is seriously impairing the economic effectiveness of private enterprise as a way of providing employment for labor and capital and as a way of assuring a more equitable distribution of income and earnings among the people of the Nation as a whole.

Economic Statistics Show Concentration.

I. The growing concentration of economic power statistics of the Bureau of Internal Revenue reveal the following amazing figures for 1933:

Ownership of corporate assets:

Of all corporations reporting from every part of the Nation, one-tenth of 1 per cent of them owned 52 per cent of the assets of all of them; and to clinch the point:

Of all corporations reporting, less than 5 per cent of them owned 87 per cent of all the assets of all of them.

Income and profits of corporations:

Of all the corporations reporting from every part of the country, one-tenth of 1 per cent of them earned 30 per cent of the net income of all of them; and to clinch the point:

Of all the manufacturing corporations reporting, less than 4 per cent of them earned 84 per cent of all the net profits of all of them. . . .

Nineteen twenty-nine was a banner year for distribution of stock ownership. But in that year three-tenths of 1 per cent of our population received 78 per cent of the dividends reported by individuals. This has, roughly, the same effect as if, out of every 300 persons in our population, one person received 78 cents out of every dollar of corporate dividends, while the other 299 persons divided up the other 22 cents among them.

47 Per Cent Earning Less Than $1,000 Yearly.

The effect of this concentration is reflected in the distribution of national income.

A recent study by the National Resources Committee shows that in 1935-36 47 per cent of all American families and single individuals living alone had incomes of less than $1,000 for the year; and at the other end of the ladder a little less than 1½ per cent of the Nation's families received incomes which, in dollars and cents, reached the same total as the incomes of the 47 per cent at the bottom.

Furthermore, to drive the point home, the Bureau of Internal Revenue reports that estate tax returns in 1936, show that: 33 per cent of the property which was passed by inheritance was found in only 4 per cent of all the reporting estimates. (And the figures of concentration would be far more impressive, if we included all the smaller estates which, under the law, do not have to report.)

We believe in a way of living in which political democracy and free private enterprise for profit should serve and protect each other—to ensure a maximum of human liberty not for a few but for all.

Interlocking Rule Of Business Cited.

II. Financial control over industry.

Even these statistics I have cited do not measure the actual degree of concentration of control over American industry.

Close financial control, through interlocking spheres of influence over channels of investment, and through the use of financial devices like holding companies and strategic minority interests, creates close control of the business policies of enterprises which masquerade as independent units.

That heavy hand of integrated financial and management control lies upon large and strategic areas of American industry. The small business man is unfortunately being driven into a less and less independent position in American life. You and I must admit that.

Industrial empire building, unfortunately, has evolved into banker control of industry. We oppose that . . .

III. The decline of competition and its effects on employment:

In output per man or machine, we are the most efficient industrial nation on earth.

In the matter of complete mutual employment of capital and labor we are among the least efficient . . .

If you believe with me in private initiative, you must acknowledge the right of well-managed small business to expect to make reasonable profits. You must admit that the destruction of this opportunity follows concentration of control of any given industry into a small number of dominating corporations . . .

Managed industrial prices mean fewer jobs. It is no accident that, in industries like cement and steel, where prices have remained firm in the face of a falling demand, pay rolls have shrunk as much as 40 and 50 per cent in recent months. Nor is it mere chance that in most competitive industries where prices adjust themselves quickly to falling demand, pay rolls and employment have been far better maintained. By prices we mean, of course, the prices of the finished articles and not the wages paid to workers.

When prices are privately managed at levels above those which would be determined by free competition, everybody pays. . . .

Housing Shortage Called Example.

Our housing shortage is a perfect example of how ability to control prices interferes with the ability of private enterprise to fill the needs of the community and provide employment for capital and labor.

On the other hand, we have some lines of business, large and small, which are genuinely competitive. Often these competitive industries must buy their basic products from monopolistic industry, thus losing and causing the public to lose, a large part of the benefit of their own competitive policy . . .

Competitive and which does not curtail production below normal needs, to find a market for its goods even at reduced prices. For at such times a large number of customers of agriculture and competitive industry are being thrown out of work by those non-competitive industries which choose to hold their prices rather than to move their goods and to employ their workers . . .

IV. Competition does not mean exploitation.

Competition, of course, like all other good things, can be carried to excess. Competition should not extend to fields where it has demonstrably bad social and economic consequences. The exploitationof child labor, the chiseling of workers' wages, the stretching of workers' hours, are not necessary, fair or proper methods of competition. I have consistently urged a Federal wage and hours bill to take the minimum decencies of life for the working man and woman out of the field of competition . . .

The justification of private profit is private risk. We cannot safely make America safe for the businessman who does not want to take the burdens and risks of being a businessman.

V. The choice before us.

Examination of methods of conducting and controlling private enterprise which kept it from furnishing jobs or income or opportunity for one-third of the population is long overdue on the part of those who sincerely want to preserve the system of private enterprise for profit . . .

Says Power of Few Must Be Diffused.

The power of a few to manage the economic life of the nation must be diffused among the many or be transferred to the public and its democratically responsible government.

• • • •

Those people, in and out of the halls of government, who encourage the growing restriction of competition either by active efforts or by passive resistance to sincere attempts to change the trend, are shouldering a terrific responsibility.

• • • •

The enforcement of free competition is the least regulation business can expect.

VI. A program.

The traditional approach to the problems I have discussed has been through the anti-trust laws. That approach we do not propose to abandon. On the contrary, although we must recognize the inadequacies of the existing laws, we seek to enforce them so that the public shall not be deprived of such protection as they afford. To enforce them properly requires thorough investigation not only to discover such violations as may exist but to avoid hit and miss prosecutions harmful to business and government alike. To provide for the proper and fair enforcement of the existing anti-trust laws I shall submit, through the budget, recommendations for a deficiency appropriation of $200,000 for the Department of Justice.

But the existing anti-trust laws are inadequate—most importantly because of new financial economic conditions with which they are powerless to cope.

The Sherman act was passed nearly 40 years ago. The Clayton and Federal Trade Commission acts were passed over 20 years ago. We have had considerable experience under those acts. In the meantime we have had a chance to observe the practical operation of large-scale industry and to learn many things about the competitive system which we did not know in those days.

To meet the situation I have described, there should be thorough study of the concentration of economic power in American industry and the effect of that concentration upon the decline of competition. There should be an examination of the existing price system and the price policies of industry to determine their effect upon the general level of trade, upon employment, upon long-term profits and upon consumption. The study should not be confined to the traditional antitrust field. The effects of tax, patent and other Government policies cannot be ignored.

The study should be comprehensive and adequately financed. I recommend an appropriation of not less than $300,000 for the conduct of such comprehensive study by the Federal Trade Commission, the Department of Justice, the Securities and Exchange Commission, and such other agencies of government as have special experience in various phases of the inquiry.

Enumerates Items Proposed for Study.

I enumerate some of the items that should be embraced in the proposed study. The items are not intended to be all inclusive. One or two of the items, such as bank holding companies and investment trusts, have already been the subject of special study, and legislation concerning these need not be delayed.

(1) Improvement of antitrust procedure. A revision of the existing antitrust laws should make them susceptible of practical enforcement by casting upon those charged with violations the burden of proving facts peculiarly within their knowledge. Proof by the Government of identical bids, uniform price increases, price leadership, higher domestic than export prices, or other specified price rigidities might be accepted as prima facie evidence of unlawful actions.

The Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission should be given more adequate and effective power to investigate whenever there is reason to believe that conditions exist or practices prevail which violate the provisions or defeat the objectives of the antitrust laws. If investigation reveals border-line cases where legitimate co-operative efforts to eliminate socially and economically harmful methods of competition in particular industries are thwarted by fear of possible technical violations of the antitrust laws, remedial legislation should be considered.

As a really effective deterrent to personal wrong-doing, I would suggest that where a corporation is enjoined from violating the law, the court might be empowered to enjoin the corporation for a specified period of time from giving any remunerative employment or any official position to any person who has been found to bear a responsibility for the wrongful corporate action.

As a further deterrent to corporate wrong-doing the Government might well be authorized to withhold Government purchases from companies guilty of unfair or monopolistic practice.

(2) Mergers and interlocking relationship. More rigid scrutiny through the Federal Trade Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission of corporate mergers, consolidations and acquisitions than that now provided by the Clayton act to prevent their consummation when not clearly in the public interest; more effective methods for breaking up interlocking relationships and like devices for bestowing business by favor.

Would Restrict Financial Operations.

(3) Financial controls. The operation of financial institutions should be directed to serve the interests of independent business and restricted against abuses which promote concentrations of power over American industry.

(a) Investment trusts. Investment trusts should be brought under strict control to insure their operations in the interests of their investors rather than their managers. The Securities and Exchange Commission is to make a report to Congress on the results of a comprehensive study of investment trusts and their operations which it has carried on for nearly two years. The investment trust, like the holding company, puts huge aggregations of the capital of the public at the direction of a few managers. Unless properly restricted, it has potentialities of abuse second only to the holding company as a device for the further centralization of control over American industry and American finance.

The tremendous investment funds controlled by our great insurance companies have a certain kinship to investment trusts, in that these companies invest as trustees the savings of millions of our people. The Securities and Exchange Commission should be authorized to make an investigation of the facts relating to these investments, with particular relation to their use as an instrument of economic power.

(b) Bank holding companies.

It is hardly necessary to point out the great economic power that might be wielded by a group which may succeed in acquiring domination over banking resources in any considerable area of the country. That power becomes particularly dangerous when it is exercised from a distance, and notably so when effective control is maintained without the responsibilities of complete ownership.

We have seen the multiplied evils which have arisen from the holding company system in the case of public utilities, where a small minority ownership has been able to dominate a far-flung system.

Fears Repetition Of "Banking Evils."

We do not want these evils repeated in the banking field, and we should take steps now to see that they are not.

It is not a sufficient assurance against the future to say that no great evil has yet resulted from holding company operations in this field. The possibilities of great harm are inherent in the situation.

I recommend that the Congress enact at this session legislation that will effectively control the operation of bank holding companies; prevent holding companies from acquiring control of any more banks, directly or indirectly; prevent banks controlled by holding companies from establishing any more branches; and make it illegal for a holding company, or any corporation, or enterprise in which it is financially interested, to borrow from or sell securities to a bank in which it holds stock.

I recommend that this bank legislation make provision for the gradual separation of banks from holding company control or ownership, allowing a reasonable time for this accomplishment—time enough for it to be done in an orderly manner and without causing inconvenience to communities served by holding company banks.

(4) Trade associations. Supervision and effective publicity of the activities of trade associations, and a clarification and delineation of their legitimate spheres of activity which will enable them to combat unfair methods of competition but which will guard against their interference with legitimate competitive practices.

Suggestion to Amend The Patent Laws.

(5) Patent laws. Amendment of the patent laws to prevent their use to suppress inventions, and to create industrial monopolies. Of course such amendment should not deprive the inventor of his royalty rights, but generally speaking, future patents might be made available for use by any one upon payment of appropriate royalties. Open patent pools have voluntarily been put into effect in a number of important industries with wholesome results.

(6) Tax correctives. Tax policies should be devised to give affirmative encouragement to competitive enterprise.

Attention might be directed to increasing the intercorporate dividend tax to discourage holding companies and to further graduating the corporation income tax according to size. The graduated tax need not be so high as to make bigness impracticable, but might be high enough to make bigness demonstrate its alleged superior efficiency.

We have heard much about the undistributed profits tax. When it was enacted two years ago, its objective was known to be closely related to the problem of concentrated economic power and a free capital market.

Its purpose was not only to prevent individuals whose incomes were taxable in the higher surtax brackets from escaping personal income taxes by letting their profits be accumulated as corporate surplus. Its purpose was also to encourage the distribution of corporate profits so that the individual recipients could freely determine where they would reinvest in a free capital market.

It is true that the form of the 1936 tax worked a hardship on many of the smaller corporations. Many months ago I recommended that these inequities be removed.

But in the process of the removal of inequities, we must not lose sight of original objectives. Obviously the Nation must have some deterrent against special privileges enjoyed by an exceedingly small group of individuals under the form of the laws prior to 1936, whether such deterrent take the form of an undistributed profits tax or some other equally or more efficient method. And obviously an undistributed profits tax has a real value in working against a further concentration of economic power and in favor of a freer capital market.

(7) Bureau of Industrial Economics. Creation of a Bureau of Industrial Economics which should be endowed with adequate powers to supplement and supervise the collection of industrial statistics by trade associations. Such a bureau should perform for businessmen functions similar to those performed for the farmers by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

It should disseminate current statistical and other information regarding market conditions and be in a position to warn against the dangers of temporary overproduction and excessive inventories as well as against the dangers of shortages and bottleneck conditions and to encourage the maintenance of orderly markets. It should study trade fluctuations, credit facilities and other conditions which affect the welfare of the average businessman. It should be able to help small businessmen to keep themselves as well informed about trade conditions as their big competitors . . .

The Other Axis

By Barnet Nover.

Britain, France Pool Their Strength.

AS A RESULT of this week's conversations at London, Great Britain and France have been welded into a monolithic bloc constituting the most formidable diplomatic combination in Europe.

The power which this bloc is capable of wielding is tremendous. It commands a combined and increasingly integrated army of 1,230,000 men with a trained reserve of many millions more; a vast pool of naval power; a rapidly expanding air force; and last, but by no means least, economic and financial resources second to none on the continent.

The Franco-British alliance is thus far more than an axis, to use the terminology made popular by Mussolini and Hitler. It is, in fact, a gigantic wheel capable of digging a very deep furrow in Europe's troubled soil. Compared to it the Berlin-Rome combination seems a rope of sand.

• • • •

BUT IF the London and Paris governments now have a powerful weapon in their hands it does not follow that they are prepared to use it except under extreme provocation. On the contrary the re-cementing of the Franco-British alliance coincides with and is the natural outgrowth of the shrinking of British and particularly French diplomatic aims and ambitions in Europe.

As long as the League of Nations was a going concern, as an agency potentially capable of preventing war or at least of punishing the aggressor, Great Britain was nominally bound to come to the assistance of nations whose sovereignty and independence were threatened. But even when the League system was at its zenith the British were not wholly prepared to carry out the implications of the Covenant to their logical conclusions.

• • • •

THUS IT WAS Great Britain whose opposition led to the scrapping of the Geneva protocol of 1924, which sought to strengthen the status quo in Europe. And in the course of the Locarno negotiations, Great Britain made it clear that she was not prepared to extend to Poland and Czechoslovakia the same guarantee of assistance, if attacked by Germany, that she was prepared to extend to France and Belgium.

The French, then and later, followed precisely the opposite line. They took the position that the safety of the republic involved the maintenance of the status quo everywhere in Europe. Therefore, they deemed British friendship insufficient of and by itself to protect French interests and supplemented the entente with London by alliances with Poland, Czechoslovakia, Rumania and, latterly, Soviet Russia.

• • • •

THEORETICALLY France's policy regarding Europe remains unchanged from what it was in the past. The alliance with Belgium has been broken, by action of the Belgian government itself; the alliances with Poland, with Yugoslavia, with Rumania and with Czechoslovakia remain.

Actually, however, France is in no position to act on behalf of any of these allies without the approval and the support of Great Britain and that approval and support the present British government is extremely loath to extend in advance.

The furthest that Neville Chamberlain has been willing to go to meet French wishes in this particular is to point out that British neutrality in the event of any German aggression in central and eastern Europe cannot be taken for granted.

• • • •

IN OTHER WORDS the price which France has been forced to pay for the tightening of the links with Great Britain is the adoption of the British program of limited liability to replace the old French program of collective security.

This does not mean that Great Britain is prepared to make a present of Czechoslovakia to Hitler. If Czechoslovakian independence can be maintained by peaceful means Great Britain is all in favor of its maintenance. And within the limits imposed by the system of imperial preferences which she still favors, Great Britain is prepared even to work hand in hand with France in helping Czechoslovakia fight off economic strangulation by the Third Reich. Beyond that, however, the present British government is not prepared to go.

At the same time France now has no alternative but to follow the British line in making peace with Mussolini, regardless of what effect this may have on the ailing fortunes of republican Spain. And France must also show a willingness to join Great Britain in seeking a truce between the Paris-London and the Berlin-Rome axis.

• • • •

IT MAY BE that the British gamble for peace, for that is what Chamberlain's policy amounts to in the last analysis, will win out. It may be that the new Concert of Europe which he is seeking to establish on the ruins of the League of Nations will give the continent a badly needed breathing spell.

That remains to be seen. What the formidable Franco-British alliance is primarily intended to preserve—the status quo on the Rhine and in western Europe—neither Hitler nor Mussolini are at the moment ready to challenge.

On the other hand the Franco-British combination which could, if it would, serve as an insurmountable barrier to aggression in central and eastern Europe is not, by British definition, intended to have any such desire. This fact Hitler may seek to capitalize while there is still time.

• • • •

FOR IN THE LONG RUN the Franco-British alliance may be employed in a manner quite out of line with Mr. Chamberlain's views.

That has happened to other alliances in the past. Bismarck never intended the Austro-German alliance to be used by the Hapsburg monarchy as an instrument of policy in the Balkans. But this is precisely what happened at the time of the annexation of Bosnia-Hersegovina in 1908. The Franco-Russian alliance of before the war was wholly defensive in its nature. Yet it was used aggressively by the Czarist regime in 1914 in a quarrel with Austria in which France had not the slightest direct interest.

And so, some day, the Franco-British alliance may possibly be employed in areas far removed from the Rhineland and the Channel ports. The fact of the matter is that at London this week Messrs. Chamberlain and Daladier have forged a new weapon whose ultimate uses may be far different from those intended at the moment. After all, Mr. Chamberlain is not going to be premier of Great Britain forever and his successor may have very different ideas of what Franco-British co-operation may mean to Great Britain, Europe and the world.

West in the East

By Aage Krarup-Nielsen

Lost Souls.

SINCE the dazzling days of Marco Polo the East has cast its curious spell over the imagination of the western world. "Why do you ever come back?" some friend will ask me as I am packing for another journey to a remote corner of the earth. "If I could spend my life wandering about Asia and the South Seas I would never return to civilization."

These friends of mine have all had the same dreams—of a free, primitive existence or of romance under swaying palms—and I have often wished I could show them some of the strange fates I have encountered: men and women into whose blood the tropics year after year have dripped the soporific poison of the glamorous, treacherous East.

White men—and women too—have cast off civilization and gone to the tropics for many reasons; for romance, adventure, wealth, marriage, forgetfulness, solitude, escape. Few have found what they sought. For in the East success comes harder than in the West. The white man is handicaped by manners, customs and morals strange to him. Against him are arrayed even the enervating air he breathes, the sun that beats out ambition and the soft moonlit nights when memory stabs and there is a whisky bottle near. That is why I always come back; it is dangerous to live too long in the tropics.

I have seen them from Suez to the South Seas, the men and women who have wandered into the East and stayed there, buried among the yellow, brown and black peoples. There are thousands of them, all lost to their own world.

Roosevelt Merges Austrian, German Immigrant Quota

By the Associated Press.

President Roosevelt opened United States gates to a potential flood of refugees from Hitlerized Austria yesterday by incorporating the Austrian immigration quota figure in that of Germany.

It added 1,413—the former Austrian immigrant quota—to the 25,957 allotment for Germans who may enter the United States.

During the fiscal year ended June 30, 1937, only about half the German quota was filled. On that basis there would be room for thousands of Austrians in the new, combined Austro-German quota of 27,370.

Shifting from a Democratic banquet to a 6-month jail sentence is quite a jump, but it's interesting to note that the long arm of the law reaches just as far for illegal duck hunting as it does for No. 1 rats. The Department of Agriculture reports that out in Illinois a man and two sons were sentenced to six months in jail for assaulting a Federal and State game agent. A fourth member of the family, also involved, is in the hospital and will be arraigned later. The report failed to explain the nature of the fourth member's "illness."

According to the report, a game management agent of the Biological Survey with an Illinois State game investigator confiscated ducks and guns belonging to the three sentenced men and a few hours later the men returned with a fourth member of the family. They accosted the wardens and at gunpoint, recovered their guns—and ducks. They were arrested later by the wardens, accompanied by peace officers of the State.

"Penalties for interfering with agents of the Survey," W. E. Crouch, head of the game management division, said, "are the same as for interfering with other Federal officers."

B. J. Lewis to Open D. C. Relief Study Early Next Week

Investigation of the District relief situation will be begun early next week, it was indicated yesterday when Burdette J. Lewis, recently appointed director of the survey, met District officials for a preliminary discussion.

Lewis, economist and statistician of Plainfield, N. J., was appointed by Chairman Thomas, of the Senate Subcommittee on District Appropriations, and Chairman Collins, of the House Subcommittee on District Appropriations.

A provision in the 1939 District appropriation act carries $10,000 for the investigation and directs that it be completed by August 1. Lewis will be paid $35 a day for each day actually engaged in investigation.

Gals Steal Bill In Fun Frolic At the Earle

Screen and Stage Are Dominated by the Feminine Stars.

"COLLEGE SWING." Paramount presentation of a screen play by Walter De Leon and Francis Martin based on an idea by Ted Lesser, adapted by Frederick Hazlitt Brennan, featuring Burns and Allen, Bob Hope and Martha Raye, with Edward Everett Horton, Florence George, Ben Blue, Betty Grable, Jackie Coogan, John Payne, Cecil Cunningham, Robert Cummings, The Rhythm Brothers, Jerry Colonna and Polly Rafferty. Directed by Raoul Walsh. Reviewed by Pitts, afternoon by Mary Harris, at the Earle Theater.

It's femme fun week at the Earle. For the way the rowdy-dowdy and riotous girls lay it over the rest of the show on both stage and screen is something to send telegrams about.

There's a motif-riddled old statement to the effect that women are never really funny. This fool idea is stood on its head and has its ears boxed by Gracie Allen and Martha Raye in "College Swing," while Arlene Harris and Tizzie Lish are the laugh aces of the stage show. This quartet of wicked hoydenes pretty completely submerge the male comics although that varnished smoothie, Bob Hope, and the benignly rascally Al Pearce manage to come up and shake the water out of their ears once in a while.

Both the development and tempo of "College Swing" are eminently adolescent, but the speed makes up for the thinly spread plot. Some pretty fruity (Sample, "You kiss like a vacuum cleaner.") and rollicking situations also help to enrich the mixture. There are a couple of panicking bedroom scenes presided over by Martha Raye and Gracie Allen, the latter little lady delivering herself of an astounding paraphrase of that famous remark of Mark Antony's when he entered Cleopatra's tent. Add on Martha Raye's teaching the entirely willing Master Hope how to make love and you have enough completely riotous fun for any man's picture.

Coogan Scores.

Many, many people will take a special interest in Jackie Coogan's appearance in "College Swing." It is pleasant to report that Jackie is a very delightful-seeming lad, much better looking than his newspaper photographs. This is probably because of his animation and shining smile; also he's tall as anything and built like a taxicab. After seeing Jackie in action no one will blame pretty Betty Grable for hanging onto him, dough or no dough, even though the WPA looms over the hill. Betty and Jackie do a dance, one of these collegiate swing numbers, very brightly.

Contagious and beautifully done musical numbers are thick as raisins in a plum pudding. First is "Back to School," done by St. Brendon's Choristers, a flock of boy sopranos. Gracie Allen gives a feathery touch to "You're a Natural," and Martha Raye and Bob Hope polish off "Would You Like to Love Me?" with magical comic touches. For pure music, though, first award goes to ingenue Florence George singing "Love Without You." This lovely girl has one of those lyric sopranos that rise as lightly as a star.

Those study troupers, Edward Everett Horton and George Burns, contribute large quotas to the show's success. As for Ben Blue, to us there is a strong suggestion of salami about Mr. Blue—dated salami.

Hundreds of personable and lively young people build up the collegiate background with their caperings at proms and in campus hangouts.

A "Fat" Stage Bill.

Al Pearce and his gang offer a show that is positively obese with entertainment. We can't remember back to when any stage show has offered such a plethora of laughs, not to mention excellent musical interludes. Also remarkable is the stage technique of this radio outfit.

Arlene Harris and Tizzie Lish top an array of entertainers that are all the tops. Miss Harris is one of the most poisonously funny ladies you'll ever encounter, with a style reminiscent of those female hellions of "The Women." As for Miss Tizzie Lish—such an unspeakable rogue of a great-grandmother! You'll love her recipe for "Black Alice" pudding—one bite and you turn black. The audience just couldn't get enough of these two redoubtable dames.

Al Pearce, husky and red-headed, is not only a swell performer, but the first of M. C.'s, since he bears not the slightest stigmata of a M. C., but is more like the jolly fellow at the next table who likes to get funny on a night-club floor after the eighth drink time.

A too-hasty listing of the other smart Pearce-ites includes Andy Andrews, notable singer-comedian, who is better than his material; "Lord Bilgewater," writer, big-game hunter and lecturer, who will tie car owners in knots when he tells how an accident took four years off his car in two seconds; Dancer Danzi Goodelle, the blonde, graceful, who used to be with Dave Apollon; the Three Randall Sisters, loved by the audience, but a pain in the ear to this critic; Paul Robinson, harmonicaster, and his three State harmonica "champeens" (that's the way he said it). The West Virginia kid is an embryo Gable.

Frank Wead, retired, adapted to the screen by Vincent Lawrence and Waldemar Young, costarring Clark Gable, Myrna Loy and Spencer Tracy, with Lionel Barrymore, Samuel S. Hinds, Marion Marsh, Ted Stanley, Gloria Holden, Leon Ames, Jean Rouse, Virginia Grey, Priscilla Lawson, Claudia Coleman and Arthur Aylesworth. Directed by Victor Fleming. Presentment Tuesday, April 19, at Loew's Palace Theater.

There is terrific nervous tension in every scene of "Test Pilot," the unique picture dealing with a heretofore untouched aspect of aviation, now on view at Loew's Palace Theater. It manifests itself from two opposed sources—those who take to the air on hazardous trial flights, and their loved ones who remain on the ground and die the thousand deaths that anxiety can impose.

BELL.

There is, therefore, a double appeal in the development of this exciting and flawlessly produced subject. One is physical, the other emotional. The combination results in one of the most gripping screen plays that have come to a local screen in this or any other season. Commander Wead, author of the original story, having been an aviator of the first rank himself, of course, has a peculiar penchant for this sort of thing, but never before, I think, has he compiled so completely engrossing a film tale as this.

"Test Pilot" embodies the story of those preliminaries to flying with which too few of the public are aware. Certain ships are designed for certain services, stresses, loads, speeds and whatnot and the measure of their efficiency must be determined before they are intrusted with the actual functioning as air carriers, whether for Army, Navy, commercial or private use. That is whee the test pilot comes in—and that, needless to say, is where "Test Pilot" gets its name.

Lost Record; Won Girl.

The test pilot in the present work is Clark Gable, pictured as a wild-living, reckless, young man with an overpowering predilection for beautiful women and high-proof liquor. But he always bets his ship up and usually brings it down. When the wings strip off he "bails out." When the oil pump "blows," he does the best he can. That was pretty well, when he was forced down on a Kansas farm and met the girl who altered the whole course of his life. It took her quite a while, but she altered it eventually.

Jim being the kind of chap he was, didn't mind losing the transcontinental record so long as he won this particular girl. So after the pump had been replaced and he was well on his way to New York and that record, he turned around and flew back to the farm outside of Wichita to retrieve Ann.

From that point on, the story is one of tense emotional climaxes and thrilling stunts in the air, with the speed races at Cleveland marking not the least impressive of the incidental episodes. The great impact of the senses, however, comes when the four-motor bomber crashes after too much adventurous spirit and too heavy a load have been carried 30,000 feet high by Jim and Gunner, his chief mechanic and steadying balance wheel. This is comparable to that memorable scene in Frank Capra's production of "Lost Horizon," which should identify it as another demonstration of the cinema's ability to capture complete realism when it needs to.

Is Perfectly Cast.

"Test Pilot" has been perfectly cast. As the reckless gentleman of the title, Clark Gable brings to the screen the best performance I ever have seen him contribute to a picture. The same is true of Myrna Loy, in the role of Ann, who made the best of a bad marriage bargain and later made the best of "her man." Spencer Tracy, as Gunner, turns in one more superlative example of supremely effective acting in the utterly naturalistic school. Tracy, by a rare gift of repression, is able to make his most placid scenes his most effective. And then there is Lionel Barrymore, in the role of the airplane manufacturer, to add still another splendid characterization to an acting ensemble that seems to be capable of nothing else.

The other members of the cast are proportionately competent in assignments that vary in importance from mere "bits" to the conspicuously excellent impersonation of Gen. Ross, of the Army, by Samuel S. Hinds.

"Test Pilot" should do much for aviation by reassuring the public mind in the matter of the reliability of flying craft. It may, on the other hand, tend to discourage any but the most courageous from wishing to become test pilots. It is a jumpy business.

The chief supplementary feature of the new bill at the Palace is Robert Benchley's latest adventure in "solving" problems for his public. This item is called "Music Made Simple." In Mr. Benchley's droll way music is not made so simple as it is convulsingly hilarious. He finally even has to give up himself, when a symphony orchestra drowns him out.

A cartoon comedy, "Little Bantam Weight," and a new issue of the "News of the Day" further augment a program that is unreservedly recommended as a fine example of the screen's power to provide unparalleled entertainment.

The Man Who Takes Up the Ships

as he appears in the title role of "Test Pilot," now on the screen at Loew's Palace Theater. Gable is costarred in this subject with Myrna Loy and Spencer Tracy, with Lionel Barrymore leading the support. He does the best work he ever has brought to the screen—as do most of the others in the cast, for that matter.

In Hollywood

With HEDDA HOPPER

Hollywood, Calif., April 29.—Lucky dollars instead of pennies for Charlie Farrell, the day Irvin Cummings walked into the Racquet Club, in Palm Springs, and said: "You so-and-so, where have you been? I've got a part for you in "Lucky Penny," Shirley Temple's picture.

HEDDA HOPPER.

Charlie, who hasn't had so much screen luck for the last six or seven years, said: "Now don't you try to fool me. Fox would never take me back. Have you forgotten I got out of my contract with them?" Irving said, "All right, you'll see"—telephoned Darryl Zanuck that he wanted to make a test of Farrell, that he looked better than he did 15 years ago. Zanuck said, "Well, what's holding you back?" They made it. When they ran it Darryl said: "You know the thing I like best about that guy is his voice." Which slayed Charlie, because that was his great weakness.

I asked Charlie what he'd been doing. He said, "You know I did pictures in Australia, Germany and England. I did one with Marie Tempest, and was fresh enough to call her Tootsie. She didn't know what it meant. But when she found out, she laughed like anything and we became great pals."

"But that still wouldn't account for the change in your voice," says I. To which Charlie replied, "You know how scared I was when sound first came in. They forgot all about acting and concentrated on your voice. Well, we have a microphone system down at the Racquet Club and I've been making speeches and fooling with that, and talking above the noise. At night, when the place was crowded and the voices went higher, mine got lower. I even did a bit of singing and got away with it, too."

I wouldn't advise you to start a club, as he did. You might not be so successful. Charlie did a bit of pioneering in Palm Springs, and is as much a part of it as the sage brush. When you work up a membership of a tennis club from $100 to $350, and the place only open four months a year, it comes under the heading of big business.

Last summer when he returned from England, he stopped off for a season of stock, at Skowhegan, Me., where he got $50 a week. And the other night he ran into John McCormack, who took him home and made a record of his voice. And now John wants to give him music lessons.

But the important thing is that he's back at the studio which made him famous in "Seventh Heaven," and is starting a new career with America's sweetheart, Shirley Temple. Ain't life funny?

Had a cup of tea and visit with Herbert Marshall on "Enemy Territory" the picture he's making at Metro.

His Easter sunrise at the Hollywood Bowl was the most awe-inspiring thing that's ever happened to him. "In looking over that sea of faces," he said, "a rosy glow seemed to come over their heads right up to me and envelop me." He hasn't been invited to it next year, but hopes he will. He loved it.

His man, Barry, who made the tea, looked so much like Edward Everett Horton that I almost said, "Thank you, Eddie."

Mary Astor and Virginia Bruce were doing one of those tested and torn scenes. I blurted out: "You can't always find two women who look like that fighting over you, can you?" Bart shook his head, "America is such a wonderful country," he said.

RKO-Keith's

"MAD ABOUT MUSIC." Universal picturization of a story by Marcella Burns and Frederick Kohner, adapted to the screen by Bruce Manning and Felix Jackson, starring Deanna Durbin and Herbert Marshall, with Gail Patrick, Arthur Treacher, William Frawley, Marcia Mae Jones, Helen Parrish, Jackie Moran, Elizabeth Risdon, Nana Bryant, Christian Rub, Charles Peck, and Sid Grauman. Directed by Norman Taurog. Reviewed Friday afternoon by Sally Stroud. At RKO-Keith's Theater.

Perhaps we are slap-happy from an overdose of over-dressed musical shows but "Mad About Music" seemed to us the best musical we have adjusted our spectacles to see. It makes those befrilled extravaganzas turned out like clockwork seem slightly coo-coo, by merit of its youthful verve, its pleasant pretending and its fresh spontaniety.

Most of the credit goes to Deanna Durbin, who makes singing a lark and not an exercise in contortion. She seems to enjoy being a movie actress, and has the extreme good fortune to be able to draw the audience into her confidence and make her movie roles seem like something which might happen to the nice little girl next door.

For once, there is an element of newness in a music-studded story. Glamorous movie queen has 14-year-old daughter in Swiss school and cannot let her fans know she is a mother, for fear their smashed illusions will shrink boxoffice receipts. Child's father is dead, so she invents one, makes him a wild game hunter and explorer, writes letters to herself, imbues this dream father with all the courage and virtues she would have admired in a real one.

One of the school smart slecks bring on a climax, and the child lies to produce a father, so she picks Herbert Marshall, and there she did not err. Developments are pathetic, joyous, humorous and, eventually, happy. Mr. Marshall lends quiet dignity and charm to a role upon which depends the force of Miss Durbin's interpretation. Both of them are adequate. Gail Patrick as the mother is outstandingly good in a sympathetic role for a change. William Frawley and Arthur Treacher add salt to the broth.

Songs, which are introduced naturally, and not dragged in by brute force, with no consideration for the plot, are well-written and tuneful. Gounod's "Ave Maria" represents the classics and two new hits, "Serenade to the Stars" and "I Love to Whistle" are outstandingly good in their presentation.

Deanna has a swain in this new picture, young Jackie Moran, replete with blushes and manly politeness. He seems too young for her possibly because Deanna is a young lady who has all the aplomb of a grown-up Hollywoodite and all the charm of a younger sister in a Sunday mood.

Definitely worth seeing is "Mad About Music," even for those who do not like child stars and who do not care for movie music. We assure you there is no sentiment to make you squirm, no romancing to make you smirk and no gushing to make you snicker.

The newsreel has lots of good bits in it but no news. Donald Duck presents his three bodacious young nephews in a Disney short. Huey, Dewey and Louie scoot around on their cycles playing polo all over Donald's home and give him no time at all for reading up on child psychology.

'Her Jungle Love' Is Fine Example of Technicolor.

"HER JUNGLE LOVE." Paramount picturization of a story by Gerald Geraghty and Kurt Neumann, adapted to the screen by Joseph Kenneth Marsh. Directed by Louis Gasnier and Robert Welsh, featuring Dorothy Lamour, Ray Milland and Lynne Overman, with J. Carrol Naish, Dorothy Howe, Jonathan Hale, Archie Twitchell, Nigel de Brulier, Lumsden Hare, Ann Codee and Archie Heinemann. Reviewed April 29. At Loew's Capitol Theater.

As has been remarked by this department on an earlier occasion, those who are able to recall the picturisation of H. Rider Haggard's fantastic story of "She," as played on the screen by Helen Gahagan, will have a fair basis of comparison upon which to judge the dramatic merit of "Her Jungle Love."

This tale of American aviators brought down on a distant Malayan island is packed a little too highly with imaginative flubdub to sit well upon the normal amusement palate. It bristles with inconsistencies and yet is one of the most beautiful pictures that has come along in many months, due to an exquisite Technicolor treatment that brings to life all of the spectacular magnificence of a luxurious tropical locale.

With all of the authorial talent that was brought to bear upon the fabrication of this fable, it is surprising that it should not have had a more sound dramatic foundation. The whole affair rather gives the impression of being a consolidated serial with most of the climacteric incidents omitted.

Not Cast's Fault.

Not too much fault can be found with Dorothy Lamour, Ray Milland and Lynne Overman, who play the leads. None whatever can be found with the late Jiggs, foremost of the chimpanzee actors, or the lion cub that frolics about through the piece. They do practically perfect work. Miss Lamour and the Messrs. Milland and Overman are not so bad, either, considering the feeble material with which they have to contend.

Miss Lamour once more is reduced to that sarong and a monosyllable form of speech that comprises one of the gross blunders of the story. Miss Lamour is unable to speak English coherently until she is called upon to sing a song. Then she bursts forth into the most perfectly enunciated English lyrics you ever have heard. That, of course, was not her fault. The authors should have thought of it first.

Ray Milland has much the same sort of role that he played so well in "Ebb Tide" and does a comparably good job here, except that the story, somehow just doesn't hang together. Perhaps it is the authors who should do that. Lynne Overman more or less saves the day with a running fire of comic chatter that emphasizes his ability as a comedian of the first rank. Jiggs also was a comedian and that lion cub is an A-No. 1 juvenile—very juvenile.

The climax of the story—if any—is reached when a volcanic disturbance of some sort destroys all of the villainous figures in the yarn and permits only the virtuous to survive. This is after J. Carrol Naish, as one of the most consummate dastards ever seen on a silver sheet—he is an Oxford graduate, but a savage at heart—has performed a few feats of hypnotism, murdered a few people in cold blood and otherwise carried on after the manner of the world's public enemy No. 1. This volcanic business is remarkably discriminatory in its picking out of victims, but it also is tremendously expository of the films' capacity for achieving grandiose effects.

Jessel Saves the Day.

The stage bill at the Capitol this week is something else again. It consists of George Jessel's Hollywood radio unit and has that amiable and accomplished young gentleman as its master of ceremonies. As a master of ceremonies, Mr. Jessel occupies a peculiarly distinctive niche. I know of none better. And not only does he master such ceremonies as attach to the presentation of this revue, but he also delivers himself of a considerable succession of monologues, concluding with that famous telephone conversation with "Mama" and the brothers and sisters at home. It is a very elegant piece of work that Mr. Jessel does.

But he is not the whole show. Among those whom he introduces are some specialists of the first rank. Foremost of the crew, I should say, are Tommy Tucker, who conducts the stage orchestra; Amy Arnell, Ralph De Angelus and Eddie Leigh, vocalists; the dancing Theodores, and an acrobatic dancer whose name I understood to be something like Gertrude Hieseker—stop me if I'm wrong. All of these able people contributed generously to the enjoyment of yesterday afternoon's second audience.

The star of the revue, of course, is Norma Talmadge, former queen of the silent screen, who was radiantly beautiful in a cloth of gold gown and joined Mr. Jessel—her husband—in a bit of amusing cross-fire, as we say in the green room.

Mr. De Angelus, by the way, sang the "Figaro" aria from "The Barber of Seville" and Mr. Jessel also tore off several effective vocal numbers, including "Bie Mir Bist Du Schoen," in the original Jewish—a pleasant variation from the usual hackneyed lyrics.

The Fox Movietone News and customary house features supplement a bill that is principally indebted to George Jessel and Norma Talmadge and their associates for its eminence as agreeable diversion.

In Blue Book.

Harold Lloyd, film comedian now in the midst of production on his current release, "Professor, Beware!" is one of the few motion picture stars to be accepted by both film folk and local Southern California society. Lloyd's name appears again in the latest issue of the Southland Blue Book, which lists socialite families in Southern California.

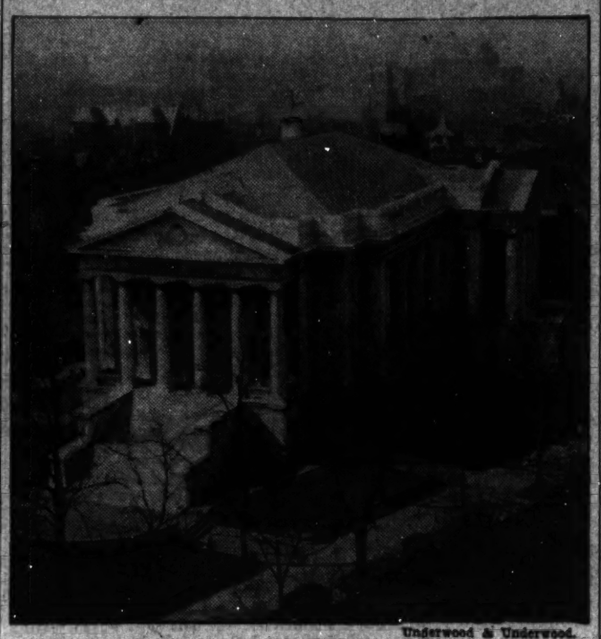
Mount Vernon Place Church Was Started in 1400 Block P St.



Underwood & Underwood.

Mount Vernon Place M. E. Church South.

Congregation Which 'Mothered' Southern Methodism Here Developed Itself From Group of Missions Between 1851 and 1863.

The Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church South is not only the mother church of Southern Methodism in Washington, it represents the national church of the denomination, constructed by the generosity of congregations throughout the South.

The congregation developed from a group of small churches and missions established between 1851 and 1863, the period of the schism in the Methodist Church resulting from the slavery controversy. In 1869 the group moved from a frame building on the north side of P street between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets northwest to the present site on Mount Vernon place, facing the Public Library.

Dr. W. V. Tudor, founder and first pastor of the church, selected its name. It is said that he was standing one day near the excavation for the new building when an acquaintance pointed to the street sign before it. He decided then that the name "Mount Vernon Place" in addition to locating the church would suggest George Washington and thus "win favor with all, even in those times of tense sectional feeling."

Dr. Tudor was responsible for building up the morale of the congregation and holding it together during the bitterness of post-Civil War days. His widow was honored by the church last year in connection with the seventy-first anniversary celebration, at which Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper was the speaker.

The present building, constructed of white marble along neoclassic lines, was completed in 1919. The marble came from Georgia and the wood from Louisiana and the Carolinas. Architecturally, its most interesting feature is the hexastyle Roman Doric portico of its main entrance, reached by a long flight of steps leading up from Ninth street. The building cost more than $500,000 and now houses the largest Methodist congregation in Washington.

The Rev. John W. Rustin, present pastor of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Episcopal Church South, has occupied the pulpit since 1936. Pastors since Mr. Tudor have been S. S. Roszell, A. W. Wilson, W. P. Harrison, Samuel K. Cox, S. W. Haddaway, John T. Wightman, I. W. Canter, J. M. Duffey, F. J. Prettyman, William French Locke, J. Howard Wells, E. V. Regester, Edward King Hardin, Clovis G. Chappell, W. A. Lambeth, W. A. Shelton, Forney Hutchinson and W. Angie Smith.

Dr. Dodd is one of the most colorful speakers in the Baptist ministry. Former president of the Southern Baptist Convention, he has conducted evangelistic meetings from Boston to Los Angeles and from Seattle to Miami. Under his inspiration the congregation of his church in Shreveport has grown from 582 members, when he took over in 1912, to nearly 5,000 today.

He has served as both officer and member of the State, home and foreign mission boards, trustee of Louisiana College, Southern Seminary, Southwestern Seminary, president of the Louisiana Baptist Convention, 1926-27, and the Southern Baptist Convention, 1933-1935.

The M. E. Dodd administration building at Baptist Bible Institute is named for him, and he is founder and first president of Dodd College, in Shreveport.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Deserted, After 16 Years, by Husband Who Elopes to Reno With Young Girl, Wife Asks Advice.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am deeply worried. I have been married 16 years and have a son 14 years old. My husband deserted us six weeks ago. While we were out, he came home, packed his belongings and moved out, leaving a note saying he had gone to Washington to take a job. Instead, he went to Reno, taking with him a 17-year-old girl of bad reputation. He will be 38 years old soon.

* * * *

We had a nice home, I was a devoted wife and why he did this thing no one can understand. He was a very quiet type. I didn't know he drank much, but have heard since he left that he did. He worked at night. Our son, now in high school, is very well thought of, and everyone thought well of his father until this happened.

* * * *

I could have him arrested for white slavery. Would you advise me to? I still love him dearly and we would love to have him come home. His people are very nice to me and he was always a good husband. I feel his son needs him worse now than ever. The shame he has brought on us is terrible. Please tell me what to do. DESERTED WIFE.

The Adult Attitude.

DEAR DESERTED WIFE: If you can bring your emotions under control and give reasonable thought to your son's happiness and social well being (or such remnants of it as you can salvage) you will not have his father arrested. The sense of shame the boy suffers today (as a result of his father's actions) would be doubled and trebled if that father were to be brought into court, at his mother's instigation, on the ugly charge you hypothesize.

* * * *

My advice to you is to summon personal pride, dignity and reticence to the rescue, and to discuss this affair with no one save possibly your son. I would suggest that you try as best you can to render understandable to him the vagaries of human nature; the mysterious, contradictory urges in human nature which tempt and provoke otherwise fine men and women into unworthy conduct which sometimes wrecks their own lives, but which need not wreck the lives of those to whom they were near and dear.

* * * *

In wanting his father back, I cannot believe you are thinking unselfishly in terms of your son's happiness. In view of what the father has done, I do not feel he could ever return to play a worthwhile role in his son's life. The greatest influence any parent can have in a child's life is the influence of consistently exemplary conduct. Once wholly betray your adolescent child's trust in you as an honorable, dependable adult and you have lost your influence for good as a parent. Thereafter he will suspect, despise and, at best, pity you.

* * * *

When a tragedy of this sort befalls a household, it behooves the remaining parent to meet the disaster with so much courage, calmness, dignity and strength that the child indirectly assimilates these qualities into his own character, and emerges from the domestic ordeal better fortified to meet possible catastrophes in his intimate, personal life in future. This is no time for breast-beating, for self-pitying, for cheap and sensational heroics, on the part of the deserted and betrayed parent. It is a time for him (or her) to show the child, by specific performance, that while human nature has its treacherous and disappointing aspects, it also has its steadfast, heroic and unalterably sound aspects. It is a time for the exercise of the noblest and strongest stuff of character on the part of the parent who retains the role of immediate guardian in the betrayed and deserted child's life.

* * * *

Furthermore, if you want your husband back, this is the performance guaranteed to win him back. Let him go. Don't seek after him, with agonized appeal or bitter vindictiveness. Leave the door open (if you must) for his return. Take him back, if back he comes, and you haven't the strength and wisdom to cut him out of your life as you would a cancerous growth discovered at long last. But remember that in so doing, you will be placing your son's respect for you in grave jeopardy.

* * * *

The wisest move you could make, in my opinion, would be to permit divorce, securing the decree yourself through filing a cross-petition in answer to his (since he apparently intends to seek divorce in Reno), and to move with your son at once to a new neighborhood, as far removed as possible from the one in which you now live. Give your son a chance to hold his head up once more in contemporary association, relieved of the pressure of sly, leering, speculative, or compassionate glances. Give him, and yourself, a chance to thread the looms of your lives to a new pattern that omits the snarled threads of shame and community pity.

* * * *

Incidentally, you may as well face the fact that your husband's desertion was not a transient brainstorm. It was, rather, a catastrophic explosion growing out of years of inner conflict between a sense of duty and a frantic urge to be free of family responsibility. I daresay that, for him, there will be no turning back from the road to which he has committed himself; that this is, for him, the beginning of another kind of life than the one he has known for 16 years. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

White Hat to Accent Dark Costumes

Deviating from the tremendous vogue for color that has invaded the spring style scene, smart women are now appearing in dark costumes with pure white accents. The white hat is appearing in large numbers wherever chic women gather—accented by white gloves, jewelry, and white handkerchiefs embroidered in dark tones like the one above by Burmel. Your first white hat to complement your dark spring ensemble may be either a huge cartwheel of felt, an exotic turban or toque of silk, or a quaint sailor of rough straw; all white or trimmed with the color of the costume. The white silk turban above is cleverly draped with a wide-meshed veil of black, echoing the frock color; a striking and appropriate costume for important Washington afternoon engagements.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, April 29.

THIS IS WHAT THE folks in the Big White House on the Hill call "the little season" here. I suppose the gentry call it little because it begins with Easter and ends as soon as they can decently excuse themselves and scuttle away from New York—one tiny hop ahead of their appalling boredom, or is it vacuum? Anyway, they can't wait.

Neither can our eager youths and maidens who rush off to the preacher as soon as Lent is over. Several tons of rice are being hurled here every day, right now, and the small clergy staff at "The Little Church Around the Corner" is booked absolutely solid for all the best marrying-hours of the day.

Society can call it the little season—I call it the big season, for the rash of fashion shows has subsided until the Dog Days, praise be.

Anyone interested in seeing authors on the hoof can always chisel a bid to the regular teas of the Authors League here. Why, writers walk around just as though they were human beings. Two or three are.

I stumbled into one of these literary debauches at the Ritz the other day, and there they were—all these magazine by-lines and book-jackets. I saw Martha Ostenso, Margaret Widdemer, Mignon Eberhart, and my dear pal, Mary Margaret McBride, who looked lovely in black, with big white collar and cuffs. This is the Mary Margaret trade-mark costume, and very becoming—for she has prematurely gray hair, pink cheeks and the snappiest of blue eyes.

Columnist Oracle Walter Lippmann, having just married a new wife, has also moved into a new house for his second stab at matrimony. The new Lippmann manse is a duplex apartment on East Sixty-second street (stylish neighborhood), where Walt can do all his heavy thinking amid luxury.

* * * *

Gadgeteers keep their brains on the hop day and night, seems to me—especially the lightsome lads who think up compact styles and tricks. The other day I was sent one which has a black moire cover, with a small but very practical clothes brush on one end to whisk away spilled powder from the clothing. That's a cutie.

Women Must Learn Coquetry To Wear New Spring Designs

By Ethel Ehlen.
The Post Fashion Editor.

PHILADELPHIA, April 29. — Women have taken this feminine-influence trend seriously and are not only going in for styles, materials, accessories and coiffures which stress this mode, but are getting downright flirtatious.

This fact was emphasized at the Fashion Congress here this week in which New York and Philadelphia shops, Paris and American designers, combined for one of the most gala fashion events of the year. Outstanding in the hundreds of daytime, beach, and evening costumes worn by the mannequins, were the "portrait dresses;" exquisite evening creations modeled after portraits by Romney, Winterhalter, Reynolds and others.

And, here is where the coquettish accents came in—fans were the accepted accessories with each gown shown, carried up against the face with only the eyes exposed.

In the color palette, blue was featured in all of its hues and tints; white was much in evidence; exotic prints appeared in numerous smart versions; brown, the "dark horse" in the spring color chart was shown for day wear; pale yellow was favored for formal evening; black for both formal and informal occasions; and gay tweeds and woolens for spectator sports and travel.

The hats, dramatized by unique originals from Lily Dache and John Frederics, ranged from immense cartwheels to affairs which were so small they could hardly be called hats at all; flower and veil trimming lead in the decorative themes. Rainbow skirts for evening gowns flaunting bouffant lines, and rainbow trains for those of sleek sophisticated styling, were highlights of many of the French presentations. Mantillas were also much in evidence as a formal evening headdress.

The five-hour fashion promenade included clothes for children, featuring peasant styles and materials; costumes for the debutante and business girl; and chic interpretations for the matron—one of the most popular phases of the showing. The finale was a lovely array of wedding gowns, showing the versatility of the mode this season in both styling and fabrics; starched chiffon and tulle were popular as bride's costumes, with either starched chiffon or marganza for the bridesmaids. An interesting feature of the Fashion Congress—each costume displayed was personalized by having its own identifications; a name suited to the style, material and color.

Plaids in Hollywood.

Bold plaids are among Hollywood's smartest spring style highlights. Dorothy Lamour, has a striking daytime outfit in her personal wardrobe. The fabric is a rich, crinkled crepe in the new mustard shade with a large plaid marking of dark green and red. The straight dress has short sleeves, cut severely, and a collarless, high neckline. A seven-eighths length coat of the same material, unlined, hangs loosely from the shoulders with a conspicuous absence of belting.

The GENTLER SEX

'Silver Threads Among the Gold.'

I fear I am getting a little older,
Stuffed shirts no longer make me impatient,
And strutting dowagers and overconfident matrons,
Do not irritate me as when I was younger.
I can even admit there is some good in Tories,
And that bigots instead of being shot should be pitied.

I suppose I am getting a little older,
Because I can accept with resignation,
The fact that my hats never do anything for me.
I can look blithely hideous in clothes that are "smart,"
And can calmly gaze at candid camera shots of myself,
And only think, "Well, what does it matter?"

I feel I must be getting a little older,
Because I no longer fall in love with men in books,
And Clark Gable and Robert Taylor never excite me.
I even say, "When you have been to one night club,
You have seen them all," and people en masse
Make me long for a nice little farm in the country.

I sense I am getting a little older,
I am no longer outraged when friends I have trusted,
Show the cloven foot or back-thrust with the rapier.
I cannot even work up any righteous resentment
Over talebearers, shirkers, buck-passers or turncoats,
But only think, "Oh well, we are all of us human."

I realize I must be getting some older,
For search through the world, I never can find
Any redoubtable St. Georges or haloed St. Joans
To gaze at with wonder; nor do I feel the high surging
To champion causes, but think, "Oh, well, I'm just one."
And am willing to let "George" undertake it.

Yes, I know I am getting a little older,
For when I sit very quietly alone in the park,
I find that I have a most sisterly feeling.
For trees and for grass and things that come out of the earth—
And return to it—and I sense a warm welcome

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

A Superstition Exploded.

That food causes indigestion.

It is perfectly natural when you eat something and have a stomach ache to blame it on what you ate, but usually the character of the food itself is of no consequence in the causation of an attack of indigestion.

Some foods have been tagged with the description of "indigestible." Ice cream used to be considered a ruiner of the stomach. So with hot bread.

I had an uncle who was born in Virginia and used to eat no form of bread except hot rolls, pancakes and waffles. He finally developed indigestion, to the great satisfaction of my aunt and all the rest of our relatives who were brought up in the cold, dry bread tradition. With one acclaim they all pronounced his indigestion as due to the hot bread which he ate when he was young. He was for years for me a horrible example and warning against such practices. The fact was that his indigestion was due to a collection of gallstones in his gall bladder, which had nothing to do with the food he ate at all.

In one particular respect, there may be something said for the theory that food causes indigestion. This is in the case that a person may be sensitive or allergic to a certain food which, when he eats it, produces digestive upsets, but in the majority of cases the good old stomach can handle nearly any kind of food that you want to put in it.

Your Figure Madame!

Count, Control and Cut Calories if You Would Lose Weight.

By Ida Jean Kain.

COUNT CALORIES AND you can have your own weight with a reducing diet. You can plan a reducing course that lets you lose three-fourths pound a week, or one and a half pounds. All you have to do is control those relentless little fat makers known as calories.

Body fat has a caloric value of 4,000 calories a pound. Your food supplies the calories your body uses or stores. By cutting your calorie intake to 500 calories less than you need, you can count on losing three-fourths pound a week.

For a more rapid weight loss, you can reduce your calorie intake by 1,000 a day and double your losses. For example, if you have been taking 2,400 calories a day and drop down to 1,400 calories, you are scheduled to lose one and a half pounds a day. On the 1,200-calorie daily menu, the average reducer will lose about one-fourth pound a day.

Results Not Always Quick.

Weight losses are not always registered as promptly as the reducer would like and the registered loss will not always come up to expectation, but in the long run the amount of weight you lose will be equal to the number of calories you have subtracted from your daily menus.

You can plan your own menus, but when you subtract calories from diet make sure that you do not also take out protein, minerals and vitamins. You have stored calories in the form of body fat, and by leaving the calories out of the menu you draw upon this fat. You cannot store the protective elements, however, and must have your supply daily.

Whether or not you are reducing, you need a fixed amount of protein, the minimum being 10 per cent of your normal calorie allowance. The protein is supplied in a liberal serving of lean meat, one or two eggs, one or two glasses of buttermilk or skim milk, together with the small amount of protein furnished in other foods.

A Model Menu.

If you include in the menu liberal quantities of fresh fruit and vegetables, a small amount of butter (one and a half pats), one or two glasses of milk and three slices of whole grain bread, you will be assured of your minerals and vitamins. These foods also contain bulk for satiety and elimination.

While the carbohydrate content of the reducing diet must be limited, it must still be high enough to maintain the nitrogen equilibrium and to burn body fat. A balanced diet contains all the carbohydrates—sugars and starches—the reducer needs.

To regulate the rate of your weight loss, count your calories.

Fat is the foodstuff which should be very low in the reducer's diet. All fats are high in calories and the less of them you take the easier it will be for you to draw upon your own store of calories.

The 1,200 balanced diet supplies all your nutritional needs and is low enough in calories to allow a satisfactory weight loss. Do not feel discouraged if at the beginning of your program you do not lose exactly on schedule. Water often replaces lost fat and delays the registration of the loss on the scales. If you follow a low- calorie, balanced menu, you are certain to get results.

Morgenstiernes Present A 'Norwegian Evening'

200 Guests Seem Thoroughly Pleased at Foreign Costumes and Program Gotten Up by Minister and His Wife.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

A "Norwegian evening" for a couple of hundred Americans was a high light of the social calendar last evening when the Minister of Norway and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne entertained at the legation.

Colorful native costumes worn by the hostess and those assisting her added a special note of interest to the event, which began with films in the spacious drawing room of the legation and ended with a buffet supper at a long, heavily laden table on one side of the dining room. From first to last, the program was designed to give the guests an idea of life in the far-away Scandinavian country.

HOPE R. MILLER.

"It's a kind of experiment," the Minister said. Its success could be judged by comments gathered here and there around the supper table.

"Why don't all the embassies and legations come across with 'a native evening?'" someone asked. "There's no better way to educate us on what's happening in other countries," someone else added. And still another guest observed, "For both education and entertainment—this type of party fits the bill."

The Minister and Mme. Morgenstierne received their guests in the paneled library, where drinks and hors d'oeuvres were served before the film began. The hostess wore a quaint frock, fashioned with a white wool skirt, embroidered in green, a green brocaded vest and a white blouse, very long — full sleeves—very fetching. Also in native costumes were Mme. Jorgen Galbe, her two daughters—Kari and Gret; Mme. Oluf Tostrup, wife of the first secretary, and Miss Alice Siqueland, of Chicago, fiancee of the Norwegian attache, Ditlef Knudsen.

Beauties of Norway Portrayed in Films.

Fishing, sleighing and skiing were portrayed in the motion pictures that had everyone wanting to travel Norway-ward. Following the film, the wide doors to the dining room were opened, and guests flocked into supper. The table, centered with a huge vase of white snapdragons and salmon gladioli and decorated with tall cream tapers in silver gladioli, was laden with choice dishes—herring, sliced ham, creamed shrimp, sliced turkey, green salad, ices, cakes and coffee. At a smaller table, champagne was served during supper and afterward.

Glimpsed among the guests were a number of Senators and Representatives, a sprinkling of State Department officials and heads of Government departments, several residential Washingtonians and a few diplomats. Mrs. George Thorpe was there, wearing a gold lame frock trimmed with a coral velvet scarf. Mrs. George T. Summerlin, jr., in a pale blue lace dress, arrived with her father-in-law, George T. Summerlin, of the State Department, and Mrs. Emory Sands, gowned in black lace.

Several Senators Glimpsed in Crowd.

Senator and Mrs. Robert M. La Follette were there; also, Senator and Mrs. Guy M. Gillette, she in a black chiffon frock cut on simple lines; Senator and Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, the latter gowned in a handsome white frock, set off with a gardenia corsage; Ralph Hill, Miss Pauletta Guffey, in white satin; Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, Senator Clyde L. Herring, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Cumming, Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom, and Miss Vera Bloom.

Also, Mr. and Mrs. Pierrepont Moffat, the Minister of the Union of South Africa and Mrs. Ralph William Close, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. March, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Houghteling, the latter in gray chiffon, made on sculptural lines; Capt. and Mrs. O. M. Hutsvedt, the Czechoslovak Minister and Mme. Vladimir Hurban; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sims, Miss Dorothy Tirrell, and many others.

Dancing Class Has Guest Night

The Friday Evening Dancing Class held its final meeting of the season last evening on the tenth floor of the Willard Hotel.

The last gathering of the year is always "guest night," and there were some 300 present at the party. Guests were seated at small tables centered with bouquets of tulips, freesia and other flowers.

The receiving line was headed by Mrs. Parker West and included Mrs. William C. Culbertson, wife of the former Ambassador to Chile; Senora de Baron, wife of the Counselor of the Cuban Embassy; Mrs. Ralph Brewster, wife of Representative Brewster, and several others.

Everything was gayly informal, with an orchestra playing through dinner and singing led by Mrs. Louis Owsley, who wore a becoming frock of flowered chiffon.

The many guests included Mrs. John Allan Daugherty, Mrs. William Jennings Price, Judge and Mrs. Ernest van Fossan, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gregor, the latter wearing a gown of white satin with a shirred bodice; Baron and Baroness von Pagenhardt, Mr. and Mrs. William Niller, Herbert Blankenhorn, Senator and Mrs. William King and Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja, whose party included the Undersecretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Roswell Magill and the Solicitor General and Mrs. Robert Jackson.

Envoy and Mrs. Close Return From New York

The Minister of the Union of South African and Mrs. Ralph William Close returned yesterday from New York, where they went to bid their daughter, Mrs. W. S. Mann, goodby. She sailed Wednesday on the Queen Mary.

French Envoy Luncheon Host

The French Ambassador, Count Rene Doynel de Saint Quentin, entertained at a luncheon yesterday at the embassy in honor of Count and Countess Rene de Chambrun, who arrived here yesterday for a stay. Count de Chambrun is the son of Gen. Count Adelbert de Chambrun and Countess de Chambrun, the former Clara Longworth.

Guests yesterday were the former Ambassador to Spain and Mrs. Irwin Laughlin, Mr. and Mrs. F. Lammot Belin, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Meyer and Count and Countess Ginoux de Fermon, who are staying with the Countess' brother, Bond Cochran.

Also Pierre de Lanux, noted French journalist; Mrs. Stanley Woodward and Jacques Dumaine, Mme. Emmanuel Lombard, Mme. Norbert Champsaur and M. and Mme. Charles Lucet, of the French Embassy.

Count and Countess de Chambrun will leave today to spend the week-end in Williamsburg, and will then go on directly to New York.

Messersmiths Give Dinner Attended By Troyanovskys

The Soviet Ambassador and Mme. Alexander Troyanovsky were ranking guests at the dinner given last night by Mr. and Mrs. George Messersmith at their home in Georgetown. The Secretary of Labor, Miss Francis Perkins, also was among the 18 persons present.

About The Town

With Dudley Harmon

DUDLEY HARMON

THERE'S nothing like a ball to get society interested in church. Local Protestants had been working like beavers for the dance given last evening for benefit of Church of St. Nichols, and they put everything over in a big way.

In fact, practically everybody in Washington was at the Sulgrave Club last evening. Russians. About a hundred of these expatriates live here, but many of them don't possess those so-important white ties and tails, and others are scrimping too much for such things as bread and butter to scrape up the wherewithal for a ticket.

* * * *

THE RUSSIANS present last night could be counted on both hands. There were Prince Leonid Oursoff, chairman of the men's floor committee; Mrs. Illarion V. Mishtovt, who is a grand-niece of Tschaikovsky, and a distant relative of the late Rimsky-Korsakoff; George and Basil Mishtowt, Boris Timchenko and Princess Petery and Dmitri Wolkonsky.

White was the color motif of last night's ball, although it was not carried out a hundred per cent. Gardenias and white blossoms were placed in great bowls and vases in the ballroom and other rooms of the club, and members of the committee wore white gowns.

The big feature of the party was the dancing of the waltz from the opera "Eugene Onegin." The troupe, which had been rehearsing daily, went through its paces with American verve, the only Russians in it being Prince and Princess Wolkonsky and George Mishtowt.

THE LADY WALTZERS wore flowing white gowns. Particularly lovely was that of Mrs. Creighton Peet, made of chiffon with a tucked bodice. The other dancers were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Stratford, the Misses Nora de With, Ivy Bacon, Dolly Corbin, Laura Tuckerman, and Mary Wilson, and John Calliher, William McComb, Edward Palavicini and James Parks.

Prince Oursoff and his American wife entertained a number of friends at dinner before the dance, and all had a table together at the club. Their guests were the Misses Cynthia and Helen Davis, Mr. and Mrs. George Howe, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. C. Smith, Charles Ritchie of the Canadian Legation; Robert Coe, Boris Timchenko, and Michael Vyvyan of the British Embassy, who is soon to depart for England.

SEEN here and there during the evening: Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burling, jr., the latter in a white crepe gown, simply made; Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Parker, jr., dinner hosts beforehand, as were Lieut. and Mrs. Hubert Chanler, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Spencer, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene B. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Achilles, Mr. and Mrs. James Bonbright, George Williams, Mrs. William T. Mann, Frederick Nichols, and many many more.

Here for the week-end was Mrs. John Trafford, daughter of Mrs. Ingalls Sard. She had a party with her at the club last night, as did Miss Anne Perin.

A hundred per cent American supper of scrambled eggs, sausages, turkey and ham concluded the festivities.

Switching from White Russians to Japanese, we call attention to the profile of Ambassador Hirosi Saito appearing in this week's New Yorker. Titled "Diplomat in the Doghouse," the sketch calls him "wispy" and says among other things he is an expert on slang. Seems that since he stopped going out socially, due to the Chinese-Japanese unpleasantness, the envoy has been devoting his leisure time to copying Japanese poems on silk and has dropped in weight from 100 to 90 pounds. This loss of poundage is unlike his silk-painting activities, not due to social retirement.

Archaeological Society Holds Session at Dominican Legation

Senor de Pastoriza Gives Illustrated Lecture on Native Land; Dr.. Rowe Speaks on Columbus Memorial Lighthouse.

By Elizabeth Ford.

Members of the Archaeological Society last evening discovered the new world, with Columbus built a cathedral, a university and fort in old Santo Domingo, lived through a hurricane and finally arrived at the new Santo Domingo of today. At least they did all these things by proxy as the Dominican Minister, Andres Pastoriza, gave an illustrated lecture at the legation on his native country and its capital city.

One of the high points of the evening was the presentation to Dr. Frederick L. Benton, of the Dominican Order of Juan Pablo Duarte, a handsome blue and white cross with a blue and white ribbon. Messages were read from President Roosevelt and the President of the Dominican Republic.

Guests were received in the gold and red hung salon by the Minister and Senora de Pastoriza, who was gowned in a softly draped dress of deep, rich blue; the president of the Archaeological Society and Mrs. Wade H. Ellis, the latter dressed in gold, and Mrs. Mitchell Carroll, director of the society, who was attired in light blue lace.

Following the Minister's lecture and Dr. Leo S. Rowe's talk on the "Columbus Memorial Lighthouse," the group adjourned to the buffet table, where all sorts of elaborate tidbits were busily served.

Among those invited to the event, which was a white-tie affair, were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Herrick, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. E. W. Sturdevant, Mrs. Charles B. Walcott, Mrs. Thomas H. C. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carroll, son and daughter-in-law of Mrs. Mitchell Carroll; Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Greenough and Mrs. James M. Beck.

Also Judge and Mrs. William J. Price, Mr. and Mrs. John Leonard Proctor, Mrs. Hugh M. Southgate, Mrs. Robert E. Lee 3d, Miss Margaret Gage, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Duncan, Mrs. John C. Tremont, and many others.

Editor Sees Trend Back To Sewing

Women Adapting Fashion to Selves, Home Economics Group Told.

Miss Caroline Hutchins Practices What She Preaches.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
Post Club Editor.

There is a trend back to the sewing machine in America, and fashion is the dictator responsible, Miss Caroline Hutchins, editor of the "School Sewing Service News," told the Home Economics Women in Business whom she addressed at their dinner meeting last night at the Admiral. Dressmaking at home is becoming more popular, she said, as women find they can plan clothes of many uses and choose materials which suit them best.

Miss Hutchins, dressed in a trim blue rayon alpaca suit, which she had made herself, explained that she practiced what she preached. She was introduced by Mrs. Faith Rasmussen, president of the group.

Showing smart frocks modeled by girls from Woodrow Wilson High School—Ann Yates, Bettie Ragle and Betty Houghton—Miss Hutchins pointed out the ease with which they could be made and the many unusual combinations the designs afforded. One was a basic dress in two colors with a full overskirt, laced up the front, which could be transformed into a cape over the shoulders according to the wearer's whim. Another was a resort dress of black and white zebra-striped pique made with a sun back. This could be worn also with a bolero of the same material over the dress or with a geranium-colored blouse, with or without the bolero. There also were washable cotton evening dresses and beach costumes.

Miss Caroline Hutchins, editor of The School Sewing Service News.

Miss Hutchins drew a distinction between the terms style and fashion, designating the one as fundamental and the other as reflecting the mode of the moment. The well-dressed woman, she said, will not follow blindly after fashion but will study her type and attain distinction in appearance by wise adaptation of the trend in fashion to her wardrobe requirements.

"The question is often asked where fashions come from," said Miss Hutchins, "and this is one of the mysteries of the century. A little surprise package in the guise of a front page personality may set a fashion overnight or inspiration may come from nature, politics and world events. This year, fashion seems to be taking a geography lesson since we have color from the deserts of Mexico, embroidery from the Tyrol and the peasant silhouette from Sweden."

The need for economy was one of the reasons she assigned for the increased interest in dressmaking among women who have time to make their clothes. Home economics departments of high schools are fairly being stormed by girls eager to learn how to to their own sewing, she said.

Among the guests at the head table last night were Mrs. Walter B. Fry, president of the D. C. Congress of Parents and Teachers; Mrs. Maury Middleton, chairman of badges and awards for the D. C. Girl Scouts, and Mrs. O. D. Rush, supervisor of home economics in the public schools. Ann Sullivan Hagen was chairman of the program for the evening.

At 4:30, a sleuth hunt will be staged.

Mrs. Sara Root, group activities secretary at the International Center in Baltimore, will lead folk dancing at the May Day eve festival at 8 o'clock, appearing in Czechoslovakian costume.

Tomorrow, the last day of the conference, worship will be led by Miss Cook at 10 o'clock; at 11 o'clock there will be a sing and at 11:30 "Spring Styles at a Minimum Cost" will be presented by Miss Amy Veerhoff. Posture and poise will be stressed as equally essential to style as dress.

At 3 p. m. the girls will assemble again to hear Miss Elsa Peterson talk on "Martha Berry of 'Possub Trot'." Martha Berry is a school in Rome, Ga., for mountain boys and girls which Miss Peterson has recently visited. Supper will be served at 6:30, and at 8 o'clock the closing ceremonial will take place.

The girls of the Y. W. C. A. Strong Residence will entertain at an informal dancing party tonight from 9 to 12 o'clock, in the living room of the residence.

Sudeten Shot, 4 Arrested by Police in Clash

Nazis Putting Up Swastika Posters Roughed Them, Czech Officers Say.

By the United Press.

Prague, Czechoslovakia, April 29. A Sudeten Nazi was wounded and four of his companions were arrested, it was disclosed tonight, in a clash with government policemen in a suburb of Bratislava along the Czech-Austrian frontier.

The clash occurred early today, as 3,500,000 Sudeten followers of Konrad Henlein prepared to celebrate Sunday's German holiday coincident with the twentieth anniversary of the founding of the Czechoslovakian republic.

The Sudeten leader, Karl Potzy, later removed to a hospital, was shot in the leg when two Czech policemen attempted to prevent him and his companions from posting election placards.

Potzy's condition was not serious.

The official Czech version said one Sudeten German started the row by hitting a Czech policeman on the head with a folding stepladder when he was asked to show a poster he was pasting on a billboard.

Self-Defense Claimed.

The incident threatened to produce serious repercussions when Sudeten Party headquarters asserted the charges on which the Nazis were said to have been seized were untrue and that the police officers wore plain clothes.

Czech authorities said two policemen intervened when four Sudetens attempted to post placards emblazoned with the forbidden Nazi swastika.

Berlin, April 29 (AP).—Tension in German-Czechoslovak relations was increased today by publication in Der Angriff, organ of Propaganda, Minister Paul Joseph Gobbels, of a charge that Czechoslovak army officers had plotted a "monstrous attempt" on the peace of Europe.

Over a dispatch from Liberec, Czechoslovakia, Der Angriff printed these headlines: "Frivolous Officers' Plot in Prague; 'German Putsch' Planned for May 1; Criminal Attempt on the Peace of Europe."

The newspaper asserted a group of officers of the Czechoslovak army belonging to the so-called war party had been preparing a plot which failed to materialize at the last minute only because of the watchfulness of a member of Konrad Henlein's Sudeten German party.

Grin and Bear It — By Lichty

"Mr. Truffle, I can't tell from my notes whether you said !!★ or ★!!!"

What's new about the pre-canceled stamps? William Stuart tells you in Sunday's Post.

Britain, France Seal Entente to Head Off Nazis

London

Paris will embark on a plan of financial help for the Danubian countries—not alone Czechoslovakia—to offset Germany's influence.

Czechoslovakia will find increased economic aid from the Anglo-French "fortified" entente, but will be urged to make every effort toward obtaining a peaceful solution of the Sudeten Nazi crisis.

France, although still firm on her military alliance with the Czechs, agreed the military understanding with Britain canceled the necessity of any British commitment regarding Czech independence.

It took less than 12 hours of negotiation for the French statesmen, sitting with Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, to transform a policy of friendship into a mailed fist and accomplish what other Anglo-French statesmen had failed to do in nearly 20 years.

British and French diplomats hailed the conversations as a turning point in European diplomacy, uniting the fighting resources of Europe's two richest and most powerful nations to provide a joint army of nearly 1,250,000 men and 16,000,000 reserves in the event of war.

Daladier announced general staff talks among the heads of the British and French armies, navies and air forces will begin immediately, probably in Paris.

110 Warplanes Fight Orient's Greatest Battle

Japan

huge Japanese bombers attacked the Hanyang arsenal from the northeast, at 3 p. m.

The reorganized Chinese air service had received advance information of the raid and had concentrated the bulk of its best combat pilots. A force of 70 pursuit ships, flown by Russian pilots and including British planes piloted by Chinese, darted from cloud banks north of the Wu-Han cities, Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang, to greet the invaders with a hail of machine gun bullets.

Guns Fell Bomber.

The Japanese bombers flying at 6,000 feet were met with a heavy fire from anti-aircraft batteries. A Japanese bomber was an early victim of the anti-aircraft fire.

The Chinese war office claimed the raid was beaten off and that 20 Japanese planes were shot down while the Chinese lost only eight planes.

A Japanese naval spokesman in Shanghai denied the Chinese claims of victory. He stated the "military objectives" of the raid were bombed successfully.

An area about one mile in diameter around the arsenal was devastated and a strip of crowded city blocks about a half-mile wide from the Yangtze River front to the arsenal virtually leveled.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

Conventions Vital to Slam Bidding.

Accurate slam bidding is a virtual impossibility without the aid of control-locating conventions. This fact has been demonstrated time and again in expert circles. Those few players who stubbornly deprive themselves of the proper tools, such as the four-five notrump convention, have no right to complain if they "guess" wrong about the best final contract.

North, dealer.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
Pass	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	6 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

South was a player whose skill in actual card playing is indisputable but, claiming a deep-seated aversion to conventions, he insists on relying upon that half-myth, "card-sense." In this hand, as in countless others of a similar nature, that vaunted card-sense was not completely satisfactory. Obviously with no means of actually locating the spade ace in North's hand, South could not reach the laydown grand slam with any degree of safety. From South's point of view North might hold something like the K-Q of hearts and a good club suit, with even the K-Q of diamonds to boot. All of these values, however, would not shut out the spade ace if the opponents held it. Hence, after North's two club response South was in the position of a blind man groping for the best contract. Without the four-five notrump convention, that would actually determine whether or not North held the spade ace, South could do nothing but bid the hand very strongly and pray that if North held the ace he would go to seven.

North did hold the spade ace, but I do not think his failure to bid seven can be criticised. He had been forced to "strain" in order to make his two club response. Surely it would have taken additional strain to have gone from six to seven. But whether North, merely on the strength of the spade ace, should have bid seven, is not very much to the point. The true point is that North should not have had this onerous decision thrust upon him! Use of the four-five notrump convention would make matters so easy that novices could reach the proper grand slam contract.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

THE NO. 1 DESK.

President Roosevelt's desk is not nearly the biggest desk in Washington, but I have never seen one that is equipped with more contrivances and paraphernalia or adorned with more gadgets and knickknacks. It holds more than 50 things on its surface, not to mention what's in the drawers; haven't looked there yet.

* * * *

He is, I judge, a great sentimentalist to cling to so much gear. Three of his desk accoutrements are ornamented with spokes, like a ship's wheel — his desk clock, barometer and cigarette lighter. This last is a miniature ship's wheel with its barrel mounting. In his oval office, the "ship of state" is more than a mere metaphor.

Sec. McIntyre ... sentimental?

I have counted as many as 15 memo pads on his desk, of different sizes and shapes, on which he scribbles notes and reminders he doesn't bother to dictate; perhaps something like "Admiral Leahy: Do we need any more battleships this month?"

"—Looking at the President."

Oddly enough, there is only one telephone, at the near left-hand corner . . . Some of the captains of industry who call on him, accustomed as they are to 6 or 8 phones, must wonder how a man can save the country with just one phone.

* * * *

Lately there has been at his right hand a deep, slightly bent wire basket, holding letters, reports and sheaves of papers to a depth of 5 or 6 inches. Often there is another stack of letters and documents at his left hand as well, and occasionally the right hand sliding shelf of his desk is pulled out, holds a stack, too.

* * * *

"The President's Program" for each day is typed and inserted in a leather frame which stands near the far right-hand corner, dividing his day into engagements ranging from 5 to 30 minutes, rarely longer. On an average day he has 10 or 12 such appointments; usually a few extras are squeezed in; sometimes he falls a few minutes behind. But callers are willing to wait.

* * * *

Near his right hand are two letter openers (one of them the old-fashioned long-handled, short-bladed type), a long pair of scissors and an eraser. It is difficult to imagine him using the eraser much. There's also a round pin cushion, neatly studded with plain pins, a pile of rubber bands, and a heavy crystal paper weight.

* * * *

Not one, but two large inkwell stands dominate the far center; one is a massive, elaborate creation with a heavy mottled marble base. From each one protrude two fountain pens, and besides these four pens there's usually another fountain pen or a plain "horse and buggy" pen (for Supreme Court appointments) and several pencils. One of the inkstands has a rotary cylinder which reveals the day and date. There is also a calendar in a frame.

"F. D. R. looking at you."

Usually there are 4 or 5 ash trays, most of them small chromium ones, but one is a huge silver tray surmounted by a globe holding plain matches. There's a modernistic cigarette box, and often an open package of cigarettes and several small boxes and papers of matches as well, and a cigarette holder. You rarely see many ashes in the trays.

* * * *

A tray at the near right holds a thermos carafe and three tumblers; there's a tall vase holding 9 or 10 roses or sometimes pink carnations, and a metal desk lamp of medium height with a mushroom top. Right now at the end is an 8-inch length of shiny wire cable more than an inch thick, mounted on a polished wooden base, with an inscribed brass plate—reminder of TVA?

* * * *

Often in one far corner is a pile of leather-bound, loose-leaf notebooks, brief cases, portfolios and leather folders, sometimes topped by two or three books. Yesterday there was a red copy of the Congressional Directory near at hand . . . Occasionally there's a newspaper folded to the middle, maybe the editorial page; there is not the stack of 7 or 8 papers that used to rest on a table behind Herbert Hoover.

* * * *

And, of course, there's the row of mascots you hear much about, most conspicuous of all; two or three little donkeys, a gray cloth elephant, very meek, a crockery green rooster and a crockery pig, and an overflow collection of mascots and ships' models on a big table to the President's left.

* * * *

I wonder what would happen if Secretary Marvin Hunter McIntyre were to clear that desk off some fine morning early, leaving only one document and one fountain pen with the engagement calendar; if the President would miss his implements and impediments, what expression would be on his face, and what'd be handy to throw at Mac.

Business Tax Retention Seen In Revenue Bill

Palmisano's Probable Colleagues Believed Loath to Kill Levy.

Despite pressure from Maryland business interests and opposition of Chairman Palmisano of the House District Committee, indications yesterday were that the 1939 revenue bill for the District of Columbia will be enacted with the business-privilege tax provisions intact.

Palmisano will not be able to get the support of Representatives Nichols and Dirksen to kill the measure, it is believed. Under ordinary House procedure, they will be his conferees on the subject.

Nichols, it is known, would not like to see the revenue bill die in conference and the Commissioners thus forced to raise the real estate tax to $1.90 or $2 to offset the resulting deficit. He fathered the bill in his sub-committee on fiscal affairs and aided in pushing it through the House.

Dirksen was out of the city yesterday when renewed efforts against the business tax started, but it is not generally thought that he will join the kill—although he was a strong opponent of the business tax in its unrevised form and fought for an income tax to take its place.

If either Dirksen or Nichols should join with Palmisano, a deadlock probably would develop and the revenue bill die with the adjournment of Congress—leaving the Commissioners to boost the real estate levy, which has already been boosted to $1.75, or 25 cents above normal.

The House did not vote the business privilege levy, which has met with general disapproval from business and civic groups of the District. It was revived by the Senate, in revised form when the House-proposed income levy was stricken out, and passed without debate.

Score of Citizens Complain of Noise At Uptown Hotel

Assistant Corporation Counsel Milton Korman continued the case for a week to permit further study.

Miss Anita Rennoe, manager of an apartment house at 1616 Sixteenth street northwest, said it had become impossible to sleep because of the noise during the spring months when out-of-town high school students stay at the hotel while on sight-seeing tours. She said an injunction might be sought.

Hotel officials at the hearing claimed that most of the disturbance around the hotel was caused by young Washington men who sought to meet the visiting high school girls.

D. C. Officer Dead Of Heart Attack

Luther E. Allen, 44, policeman stationed at the Tenth precinct, died yesterday of heart disease on a visit to the apple blossom festival at Winchester, Va.

Policeman Allen, who lived at 634 South Carolina avenue southeast, was found dead in bed by Pvt. Carl D. Schamp, of the public relations squad, who had accompanied him to the festival.

Allen was appointed to the police force in August, 1908. For several years he was station clerk at the Tenth precinct, and recently had been assigned to a patrol car. He is survived by his wife.

3 Youths Who Paid For Gas With Gun Get 8 Years Apiece

On the night of December 23 an automobile bearing three Philadelphia boys of high school age drove up to E. J. Jarvis' filling station in Berwyn, Md. Jarvis filled the tank of their car and asked for $2.25.

One of the youths pointed a gun at him and said:

Yesterday the trio—Charles Sheldon, 18; Fred Hartung, 17, and Lawrence Billerback, 17—stood in Circuit Court at Upper Marlboro facing Judge William Loker.

"Now you are standing before a court of justice," said Judge Loker, "and this is the way we pay."

He sentenced each of them to serve eight years in the Maryland Penitentiary, three years on a charge of armed robbery and five on a charge of assault to kill. The maximum sentence for the two charges is 40 years.

The boys pleaded guilty when arraigned last Monday.

Back Fusion Party, Charles King Asks

Charles E. King, who resigned several months ago from the Montgomery County Board of Commissioners to become county road inspector, yesterday appealed for support of a Fusian Party in the election next fall.

Denying recent published reports to the effect that he had forsaken the Fusion Party banner, King asserted:

"I believe the only hope for Montgomery County is for the voters to return a Fusion government this fall."

King was elected to the board of commissioners on the Fusion Party ticket four years ago.

2 CCC Camps Will Be Set Up On C. & O. Canal

Action Believed Taken to Prepare for Restoration of Waterway.

Two CCC camps will be established soon in Montgomery County along the old Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, which the National Park Service will set up as a Federal Park area, Third Corps Army headquarters announced yesterday.

At the same time, four CCC camps at Army posts in Maryland will be abandoned and enrollees in two camps, one near Ocean City and the other at Beltsville, will be transferred to other camps in the State. Army posts from which CCC personnel will be moved are Fort Hoyle, Fort George G. Meade, Aberdeen Proving Grounds and the Indian Head experimental unit.

Judge Frank G. Wagaman at Hagerstown, Md., yesterday appointed Edgar W. Young, R. S. B. Hartz, of Baltimore, and G. L. Nicholson, of Washington, receivers for the C. & O. Canal Co. They were given authority to contract with the Government for sale of the 186-mile waterway, unused since 1924.

No mention was made of the price to be paid for the canal, though it was understood an agreement had been reached on terms.

Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes said last month the department contemplated restoring the canal for recreational and historical purposes, with the old lock houses, the taverns and the towpath. Announcement that the CCC camps would be established on the waterway was taken to indicate this work would proceed on schedule.

Blonde Divorcee, Lost 2 Days From Beauty School, Is Hunted

Clara Sharpe, 25, of 128 C street northeast, attractive blonde divorcee and student beautician, yesterday was reported missing since 1:30 p. m. Thursday when she was sent by the Mabelle Honor School of Beauty Culture in response to a call from a woman customer. Her brother, Alfred S. Troutman, who reported her disappearance to police, said no record was kept of the address to which she was sent and it could not be learned if she arrived there safely.

Last night a radio lookout covering three States was broadcast by police and Lieut. Horace Lineberg of the Public Relations Squad assigned two detectives to the case.

Troutman said the girl came to Washington from Indiana four years ago after divorcing her husband, whom he had not seen since then. He said she was in excellent spirits when she left for the school Thursday morning and could assign no reason for her disappearance.

Officials of the school told police she was sent to a "fashionable section" in northwest Washington in response to a telephone call from a woman. They said the address was taken by a telephone operator who noted it on a paper form and gave the form to Mrs. Sharpe.

She was described as being 5 feet, 5 inches tall, weighing 135 pounds and wearing a dark brown suit with a brown hat to match. She wore brown shoes and had an onyx ring with a diamond setting.

Japan Lauded For Payment Of Damages

Panay Case Is Cited at International Law Convention Here.

Interest Stimulated in Reparations Courts, Eagleton Says.

It is to the credit of Japan that she accepted responsibility for the bombing and sinking of the American gunboat Panay and made full payment of the claims of the United States in reparation, Prof. Clyde Eagleton, of New York University, told delegates to the convention of the American Society of International Law at the Carlton Hotel yesterday.

Dr. Eagleton took as his topic "Responsibility for Damages to Persons and Property of Aliens in Undeclared War."

"There could be little doubt of the responsibility of Japan for the bombing and sinking of the Panay," he said.

Reparation Courts Urged.

"It is to the credit of Japan that she accepted the responsibility, and paid over $2,000,000 in compensation for the injuries inflicted," said Dr. Eagleton.

"All the more would the bombardment of historic monuments, hospitals, missions and schools be prohibited. The difficulty in these cases lies in establishing that the buildings upon which the bombs were dropped were not being used for military purposes, or close to military objectives."

Dr. Eagleton asserted that recent examples of such a bombardments, "as, for example, at Barcelona," have stimulated the "conscience of mankind" in support of tribunals which may award such reparation.

Other Speakers.

The use of force resorted to since the World War has "often been a convenient camouflage to relieve a party of legal responsibility and leaves at the end of the conflict an era of uncertainty," Prof. George Grafton Wilson, of Harvard University, told the session.

Other speakers yesterday and last night were Dr. Wallace McClure, assistant chief of the treaty division of the Depastment of State; Irvin Stewart, former vice chairman of the Federal Communications Commission and Howard S. LeRoy, New York and Washington barrister.

'Service' Sweeps G. W. Voting With 7 Out of 8 Posts

Electing seven of eight successful candidates, the Service Party swept George Washington University's student council election yesterday. It was the first held under the new constitution, which materially increases the council's powers.

Cap Gardner, of the successful party, captured the council's presidency with 500 votes. George Pughe, Independent Voters League, was elected advocate, the only successful non-Service Party candidate. No candidate of the Nonpartisan League won.

All three parties hurled charges of ballot-stuffing, which temporarily clouded results. Investigation, however, showed only one student was suspected of voting more than once. He was reprimanded by election officials.

In addition to Gardner and Pughe, successful candidates were Barbara Harmon, program director; Jack Shulman, publicity director; Jay Samuel, student controller; Tom Johnson, forum director; V. deAngelis, intramural director; Betty Griswold, secretary-treasurer.

Judge Takes Stand To Convict Curser

Judge Hobart Newman yesterday stepped out of his usual role at Police Court to take the stand as a witness against Raymond Starke, colored 33, who, the jurist said, cursed him when Newman parked his car near Fourteenth and U streets northwest. Starke said Judge Newman took his parking place.

Judge McMahon fined Starke $25 for disorderly conduct.

Autopsy Is Ordered.

An autopsy will be performed today on the body of Eva M. Mettler, 69, 1303 Fairmont street northwest, who was found dead in her apartment yesterday. Police found a small, empty bottle near her bed which apparently contained sleeping tablets.

Girls Invade Y. M. C. A. Sanctums

All didn't seem natural last night when girls, for the first time in the Y. M. C. A.'s history, invaded recreation areas heretofore reserved strictly for the males. Each Friday night, recreational facilities will be available to both girls and boys from 16 to 20. Upper picture shows (left to right) Virginia Tagaglo, Perry Chamblin, Catherine McCarthy, Carol Alexander and Ruth Burros at a billiard table, the boys just a little amazed by one of the girl's shots. Lower, Pete Pineran says "May I cut in?" to Eugene Crozier and Estelle Fines at the dance.

Prohibition Didn't Fail, Pastor Asserts—It Never Was Tried

Today's Society Deems It Correct to Drink, the Rev. Peter Marshall Charges Before Bible Class Association.

Prohibition did not fail, "for how could anything fail that had never been tried?" the Rev. Peter Marshall, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, last night told the District of Columbia Organized Bible Class Association at its ninth annual banquet at the parish hall of Cavalry Baptist Church.

"We are living today in a society that deems it socially correct to drink," the speaker told his audience of more than 600 persons, representing 30 local congregations.

"In this very city young women are being feted at cocktail parties while the church bells are ringing. Thus the modern mother has to face the new problem of waiting up for an inebriated daughter."

Referring to today's vote on suffrage, Mr. Marshall said, "Let me remind you that the right of franchise, like the privileges of religious freedom and other privileges we have in America, is a blood-bought privilege." He urged all his listeners to cast their ballots.

Other speakers were Dr. W. L. Darby, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches; Dr. Charles E. Resser, George E. Harris and Dr. Horace E. Cromer, who delivered the invocation.

Dr. William E. Harward headed the banquet committee, and William R. Schumaker led group singing. Page McK. Etchison, president of the Bible Class Association, was toastmaster.

Music was provided by the National Brass Quartette, Robert Ewing and Mrs. Etchison.

Minton Bill Is Denounced By Dr. Walsh

Proposal to Punish False Reports Strikes at Rights, He Says.

Roosevelt Declines Comment on Indiana Senator's Plan.

Legislation to make it a felony for a newspaper to publish, as a fact anything known to be false was characterized as "an invasion of the inner citadel of our inalienable rights" by Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., last night.

President Roosevelt, at his press conference, refused to say whether he favored or opposed such a bill, introduced Thursday by Senator Sherman Minton (Democrat), Indiana. The President said he thought the matter would have to be referred to the prison commission, then added that he did not want to have to build any more prisons.

Dr. Walsh, who is vice president of Georgetown University, called the bill "a seven-league advance toward the ideals of Mr. Stalin, Mr. Hitler and Mr. Goebels." His statements were made in a talk on "The Future of Democracy," the last in a series of lectures at Memorial Continental Hall.

"A bitterness of invective and un-American threats of reprisal against those who may differ on certain Governmental policies," he said, "have threatened to divide the citizenry of the land at the precise moment when unity of heart, of mind and physical resources is demanded if popular government is not to perish entirely and everywhere."

"You cannot have freedom," Dr. Walsh declared, "without many inequalities resulting concomitantly from a free exercise of the natural endowments attaching to sex, talent, health, personal charm, courage, perseverance, luck, ambition, vision and creative imagination. All these are gifts of nature—not of government. . . ."

"Education," he said, "should never become a governmental function. Education should often repeat and vindicate the guaranteed freedom of citizens to criticize any administration, Republican or Democratic."

Yanks Win, 6 to 4; Even Bosox Series

Boston Errors Big Help to New York; Gehrig Hits Twice.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 29.—By way of celebrating the promised return to action of Joe DiMaggio tomorrow, the Yankees won a 6-to-4 decision over the Boston Red Sox today—but they were just about handed the game on a platter.

The Red Sox committed four errors and were sloppy afield all the way, and, as a result, three of the Yankee runs were unearned.

Beating DiMaggio into the lineup by one day, Bill Dickey came off the hospital list and set the pace for the Yanks' eight-hit attack. He singled in the second, he doubled in the fifth to drive in two of the three runs the Yanks made in that frame, and his deep fly in the sixth scored the final Yankee run.

Otherwise, the Yanks' offense was featured chiefly by the fact that for the first time this year, Lou Gehrig managed to get two hits in one game.

Johnny Murphy's effective relief flinging earned him credit for the win.

Rookie Slugs, Indians Beat Browns, 3-2

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, April 29.—Bob Feller wasn't the puzzle to the Browns he was ten days ago, but his teammate, rookie third baseman Ken Keltner, was poison as Cleveland nosed out St. Louis today, 3 to 2.

The Browns made eight hits off the phenomenal hurler who held them to one scratch safety April 20, but nine were strike-out victims. Keltner accounted for all the Indians' runs with a fifth-inning homer with Hal Trosky on base and a seventh-inning single which scored Trosky, who had tripled.

Keltner got another single in the ninth, after Trosky's third safe blow. But Rollie Hemsley hit into a double play to end the inning.

Beau Bell, Browns' slugger, who has been in a terrific slump, slammed out three doubles off Feller after fanning his first time up. His first was wasted. Billy Sullivan drove Bell home with the Browns' first run after his second double and the third scored Harlond Clift.

Trosky's error and Pinchhitter Buster Mills' sacrifice put the tying run on second with one out in the fifth, but Feller got Sammy West and Don Heffner on infield taps.

Francis Ryan, Columbia's oversize shotput champion, eclipsed the Penn Relay record in his event here yesterday with a heave of 51 feet 6 1-4 inches. The old standard was 50 feet 2 3-4 inches set by Elser of Notre Dame in 1935.

Three Meet Records Topple As Stars Open Drake Relays

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Des Moines, Iowa, April 29.—The legs of four runners from Rice Institute, Houston, Tex., driving into the cinders with the precision of pistons in a machine, carried them to a short-lived American record in the opening of the Drake relays today.

The Quartet, composed of Freddie Wolcott, E. Y. Steakley, Calvin Bell and Ivan Jones, wiped out the record for the sprint medley when they reeled off distances of 440, 220, 220 and 880 in the remarkable time of 3:25.3. This eclipsed the mark of 3:26.4 hung up by the University of Pittsburgh a year ago.

Rice's great mark, however, stood as America's best performance less than an hour. Out at the Penn games, Pittsburgh came back to the top-ranking position in the event with a scorching 3:24.5 race.

A crowd of 8,000, half filling this sun drenched stadium, saw four Drake records fall in the afternoon of thrilling races and field events. Judging by performances, officials predicted more records would go in the finals tomorrow.

Wisconsin, anchored by Chuck Fenske, holder of the fastest time for an intercollegiate mile ever run indoors, broke the four-year-old Drake record for the university distance medley, whipping Missouri and Notre Dame, which finished second and third, in 10:06.1. John Munski, Missouri sophomore, gave Fenske a battle until reaching the backstretch on the last lap. Then the big ten-mile champion made his move and won by five yards, running the mile in 4:10.2.

Other meet records were set in the college sprint medley, university sprint medley, and in the first heat of the university quarter-mile. The University of Texas, with Hugh Graves, Jud Atchison, George Morris and Milo Cox running, established a mark of 41.5 in a heat of the 440 university relay.

Tommy Nelson, long-legged Negro sprinter from Fresno, Calif., State Teachers College, is favorite to win the 100-yard dash tomorrow. He led the qualifiers with a :9.8 performance.

The feature of the day's play was the 69 that Buddy Sharkey, Gonzaga ace, turned in over the Washington course, despite a 6 on the par four third hole. The Indian Club champion was out in 35 and holed a 11-foot putt on the final green for a 34. He won 3 and 6 over Porter, of Anacostia.

Texas State Relay Team Sets Record

Shatters Medley Mark; Pitt, Lions Shatter Former Times.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, April 29.—North Texas State Teachers College, with Blaine Rideout running the anchor mile in 4 minutes 10.8 seconds, today broke all records for the distance medley relay as it covered the distance in 9:39.4, to win one of the feature events of the Penn Relay Carnival.

The Denton, Tex., foursome's time not only bettered the relay mark of 10:04.7 set by Indiana last year, with Don Lash as anchor man, but also bettered Indiana's subsequent 10:00.3 performance on June 13, 1937, at Columbus, Ohio. There is no world record listed for the event.

The Rideout twins, Wayne and Blaine, were responsible for the Texans' triumph. Wayne, running the three-quarter-mile third leg, pulled up on even terms with Indiana and brother Blaine, after shadowing Hoosier Jimmy Smith for two laps, moved past him and away rounding the turn into the bell lap to win by a good 40 yards.

Smith barely lasted to give Indiana second place ahead of Maryland, with Michigan fourth and Ohio State, leader in the first leg, fifth.

Pitt Runners Win.

The sprint medley championship also produced a new record as the University of Pittsburgh, anchored by Olympic 800-meter champion, John Woodruff, retained its title with a brilliant 3:24.5 performance. The time bettered all existing collegiate records for the event, and lowered Pitt's 1937 relay mark by one and nine-tenths seconds.

Woodruff, moving as effortlessly as always outdoors, ran his half-mile leg in 1:48.9. Manhattan, with Howie Borck as anchor man, was clocked in 3:28.3, while Princeton placed third, Prairie View College of Texas fourth, and New York University, with Slim Jim Herbert as lead-off man, fifth.

Columbia University sprint relay team, anchored by I. C. 4-A. champion Ben Johnson, today won the quarter-mile college relay championship. The fleet New Yorkers—Herb Weast, Jack McMahon, Archie Sheeran and Johnson—won in 41.7 seconds.

Yale, with Gardner Millett running anchor, was less than a yard behind, followed by the Xavier University quartet of New Orleans, coached by Ralph Metcalfe, and Cornell. Navy was disqualified for faulty baton passing.

Ryan Cracks Mark.

Columbia added another title as Francis Ryan, husky national and I. C. 4-A champion, took the shotput with a relay record heave of 51 feet 6¼ inches. Bill Watson, of Michigan, second with 51 feet 3⅜, also bettered the previous mark of 50 feet 2⅜, set in 1935 by Don Elser, of Notre Dame.

Don Kinzie, of Duke University and Altoona, Pa., winner of his 120-yard invitation high hurdles heat in 14.9 seconds, cut a tenth of a second off that time in taking the final with a 3-foot margin over Frank Fuller, of Virginia. Jack Donovan, of Dartmouth, outdoor I. C. 4-A champion and favorite, ran third after barely missing elimination in trials.

A new prep school medley relay mark of 7:41.8 was set by the Seton Hall foursome, of South Orange, N. J. Their effort, which brought them home 90 yards in front of St.

Cubs Defeat Reds, 6 to 4

Dizzy Dean Hurts Arm; Mates Hit 3 Homers.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 29.—Dizzy Dean, the Chicago Cubs' $185,000 plus three-player pitching acquisition, returned to the "sore arm brigade" today after starting his third game, but the Cubs defeated the Cincinnati Reds, 6 to 4, to sweep the two-game series.

Dean retired from the game after hurling three and two-third innings and allowing two hits and a walk. He said he pulled a muscle in his arm while pitching to Lou Riggs in the fourth, but that he could go on. Manager Charley Grimm, however, removed him from the game as a precaution against further injury.

Dizzy announced afterward that he expected to be able to take his regular turn on the mound.

Jack Russell, who replaced Dean, limited the Reds to two hits until the ninth. Then the Reds put on a rally and Clay Bryant had to come to the rescue for the second successive day.

Dodgers' Winning Runs Forced Across

By the Associated Press.

Brooklyn, April 29.—The Dodgers put a typically dizzy finish on a typically dizzy Dodgers-Phillies ball game today by scoring on a walk with the bases loaded for a 5-to-4 decision in 12 innings.

As usual when this doleful duo meets, the game dragged on for no reason except that neither team had the punch to push over the tally to break it up. In the twelfth, however, with two out, Ernie Koy walked, Leo Durocher doubled and Woody English was purposely passed.

Jimmy Wilson replaced Wild Bill Hallahan with Harry Kelleher, and the latter gave Pinch-hitter Buddy Hassett the walk that forced in the winning run.

Almada Escapes Penalty; Umpire Reports 'Accident

Melo Almada yesterday escaped without penalty in the kicking incident at home plate on Thursday, when the Mexican outfielder booted Umpire John Quinn on the shins during his wild protest of a called third strike.

After banishing Almada from the game, Quinn relented and in his report to League President Will Harridge termed the affair an accident. The lenient report by the umpire removed the prospect of a heavy fine and suspension for Almada, who could have been accused of assaulting an umpire, one of the most serious crimes against the league regulations.

Dean Strains Arm Muscle

Cub Star Retires From Card Game in 4th.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, April 29.—Dizzy Dean, the pitcher for whom the Chicago Cubs paid the St. Louis Cardinals $185,000 and three players, pulled a muscle in his salary arm and had to be taken out of the Cubs-Cincinnati Reds game in the fourth inning today.

Dean, attempting to win his third victory this season as a Cub against no defeats, retired in the fourth frame after pitching to Ernie Lombardi, Red's catcher. Dean said in the dressing room he hurt his arm pitching to Lou Riggs, but expressed the opinion the injury would not prove serious.

Manager Grimm took no chances, however, and sent Jack Russell to the mound. The Reds scored one run in the fourth. Up to the time he retired, Dean had allowed only two hits and had walked one batter in three and two-thirds innings.

In Dean's first start for Chicago this year he beat the Reds at Cincinnati and last Sunday he shutout the Cardinals with four hits.

Tigers Whip Chisox, 5 to 1

Detroit, April 29 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers drove John Rigney from the mound in the seventh inning today to defeat Chicago's White Sox 5 to 1. Cletus Elwood (Boots) Poffenberger scattered 7 Chicago hits.

Gerald Walker, traded by the Tigers to the Sox last Winter, was trapped off first base in the first inning by a quick throw from George Tebbetts, Detroit catcher. "Gee" drove in the only Chicago run in the sixth with a long double, only to be thrown out trying for a triple.

Fred (Dixie) Walker, who came to Detroit in the trade, set off a game-winning rally in the seventh inning with a home run scoring Pete Fox ahead of him. Clint Brown replaced Rigney and finished the game.

Virginia Boy, Snap Wrack Pay $1,624 Daily Double

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Philadelphia, April 29.—This may be an early date to start typing about the major league All-Star game scheduled for July 6, but the evidence that Washington will have at least one of its ball players on the American League team is beginning to pile up.

POVICH.

And we don't mean that the Nats will be represented through that courtesy arrangement which specifies that the manager of the American League forces must have a representative from every club in the league on his squad.

We mean that the American League club which takes the field will have in its starting lineup a highly valued fellow in a Washington uniform—not a substitute who has been named as a sop to the Washington public as has been the case for the past three years.

The fellow we are talking about is John Kelly (Buddy) Lewis, the boy who is doing a man's job for the Nats at third base. Unless all signs fail, Lewis will be out in front of all other American League third basemen by the time the picking season rolls around in late June that he can't be ignored again.

• • • •

We say ignored again, because that's what happened to him last year when Joe McCarthy, of the Yanks, arbitrarily chose his man Red Rolfe, as the American League's third baseman. He chose Rolfe despite the fact that Lewis was outhitting him by 20 points, and Lewis certainly yields nothing to Rolfe in defensive play.

There is no quarrel with what Rolfe accomplished in that All-Star game at Griffith Stadium last July. He played a flawless game at third base and figured potently in the American League's attack on Dizzy Dean, Carl Hubbel, et al. Unquestionably, McCarthy had confidence in his own third baseman and was motivated by that fact in choosing him over Lewis.

But getting around to the naked facts, Lewis was a superior third baseman last season. He finished the season by outhitting Rolfe by nearly 30 points and won acclaim as the best defensive third sacker in the league.

This year nothing has occurred to disturb the belief that Lewis isn't still tops among the league's third basemen. Again he is outhitting Rolfe, and after that pair is checked off there isn't another third sacker in the league worthy of the All-Star job, including Boston's Pinky Higgins, who, during the past two seasons, has left much to be desired in both his fielding and hitting.

Higgins was complimented by being named to the third-base job on three consecutive All-Star teams before Rolfe was picked by McCarthy, but the esteem in which he actually was held was tipped off by the fact that Jimmy Foxx often was assigned to handle third base in an attempt by the American League managers to get more power into the line-up. There was also the suspicion that the A. L. would be sacrificing little in a defensive play.

Young Lewis, who batted .294 in 1937 and won rank as one of the rookie sensations of that season, successfully withstood the second-year test last season. He proved that he was no flash in the pan by slugging at a .314 rate.

• • • •

This year the lad from Gastonia whom Clark Griffith picked up for a $21 investment in train fare has been the downright sensation of the Washington club. The suspicion had been that Ossie Bluege, with his decade of sensational play at third base for the Nats, had spoiled Washington fans. Bluege's successor was naturally regarded with skepticism.

But Lewis rapidly dissipated all doubts that he wasn't capable of the job, even though he followed the great Bluege into it. His play around the bag has been the pinnacle of form and when his batting prowess is considered he may take rank as Washington's greatest third baseman of all time. An honor that is flattering considering that Bluege's predecessor was the late Eddie Foster.

If John Kelly isn't out there at third base for the American leaguers on July 6, something awful will have happened to his play. Either that, or there ain't no justice.

Red Pepper, Workman Up, Easy Winner

D. C. Jockey Takes Big Lead in Battle for Honors.

By Walter Haight,
A Star Correspondent.

Havre de Grace, Md., April 29.—The longest priced daily double of the Maryland season and a victory by a $2.90 shot were the high points of racing at this plant today. Those in the crowd of 9,000 who invested $2 in the "2 and 11" combination of Virginia Boy and Snap Wrack collected $1,624.40 in the twin wager. Those who backed Red Pepper, as hot a favorite as the name implies, collected a few bags of peanuts.

Red Pepper, running in the cerise and white of the Vanderbilt Stable, performed in The Modesty, the feature event of the day. Giving Jockey Sonny Workman a 13-10 lead in the jockey battle with Al Shelhamer, the son of Pompey and Oroya carried 122 pounds and flashed to the finish line just a length in front of Ral Parr's Hypocrite only because his rider was pulling up in the final stages. H. R. Bain's Sir Bevidere was third, with Jolly Tar and Carnage completing the field.

With Vanderbilt horses already having a first and a second to their credit on the program, the crowd of 9,000 played Red Pepper as if the race had already been run. The colt cheered his backers by taking the lead in the opening furlong and it was "kitty bar the door" from that point to the imaginary wire.

Despite his easy victory, his second of the season, Red Pepper was clocked for the six furlongs in 1:12 4-5.

C. R. Fleischmann's Virginia Boy, with seven horrible races on the books, flip-flopped in the first race and came sailing home by two lengths. Turkish Brand chased him in a field of nine Maryland foaled 3-year-olds. Town Car, installed the favorite, wound up in third place. Both Virginia Boy and Turkish Brand came from far back in the fild to gain contention but the former finished with speed in reserve. Named for the Preakness, Virginia Boy pand $22.40 in $1.500 claiming company.

Snap Wrack, a son of the once popular Petee Wrack, proved a winner in his first track appearance in the second race, bringing a few hilarious backers a $3.90 mutuel. The victory was a blow for the favorite players who made the Vanderbilt Stable's Company Halt, an odds on choice. Snap Wrack won in a photo finish while under the direction of Jockey Al Schmidl, a Baltimore boy.

Abrams Goes Full Distance; Ready for O'Boyne Monday

By Lewis F. Atchison.

George Abrams went the full eight-round distance yesterday in finishing up heavy work for Monday night's bout with Boston Johnny O'Boyne, and was puffing as smoothly as a sleeping babe at the finish. He looks like a million dollars with change to spare.

The youthful middleweight boxed Howard Scott two rounds, went two more with Buddy Thomas, who battles Fred Wellymyer Monday, and completed the grind at a double-quick pace on the heavy and light bags. He looks fit enough for 15 rounds, weighs around 158 pounds, and expects to come in at 160.

"George should put on a little more weight with each fight from now on," Manager Syd Fishel said. "He's growing all the time and it does him no good to make 158 or 159 pounds, when his normal weight should be at least 160. He's a legitimate middleweight, and I expect to get him up around 165 pounds during the summer, when he'll need it to combat hot weather."

Abrams himself likes the idea of added poundage, and claims he feels better and more like fighting at 160. He was a little too finely drawn at 158. His mental attitude seems improved, too, and he has assumed a killer complex almost overnight. The boy's body-punching, something he picked up from two engagements with Jimmy Jones, is vastly improved, and will bend a couple of Mr. O'Boyne's ribs, if he connects.

Meanwhile, with an addition here and there and subtraction in the same spots, Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn has completed the card. Lou Transparetti faces Jerry La Bella in the six-round semi-final. Tommy Hoover meets Charley Gilley; Tommy Long battles Addie Gorman, Thomas will oppose Wallmyer, and Frankie DeAngelo battles Henry Peterson in a quartet of four-rounders.

Peterson, incidentally, is a featherweight who formerly campaigned for Columbus University and the Jewish Community Center.

By Perry Wilkinson.

Al Kidwell, crack Eastern High shortstop, poked out a dubious fifth-inning home run that proved the death sentence for Woodrow Wilson High, and Eastern triumphed yesterday, 9-5, on the diamond at Eastern Stadium.

With Walter Stockwell pitching shutout ball during six of the nine innings, Eastern stepped into a first-place tie with Western, a team which had a difficult time in disposing of Anacostia, in the race for the interhigh title.

Herman Byer, Wilson's ace flinger, gave his own ball game away by walking ten batters over the seven stanzas he toiled. He allowed only seven hits, one less than Stockwell gave up, but the hits that rattled off the Lincoln Parkers' bats always popped up when Byer had deposited two or three of Chief Guyon's boys on the sacks with bad pitches.

Buck Barbee, scrappy little catcher and a chatter-box behind the plate, led both teams in hitting by getting three hits in as many times at bat. And incidently, his performance both in catching and in his ability to direct team play stamps him as one of the best receivers in the series.

The surprising Wilson attack started to function in the second, and when the Presidents added one in the fourth to tie up the ball game, it looked as though the tilt was to be a nip-and-tuck affair. But Eastern, who had shoved across three runs in the first frame on Byer's wildness, came back in the fifth to clinch victory.

With Kober and Stockwell on the bases, Kidwell stepped to the plate and whacked out a hit that seemed labeled for a single or not more than a double, but Dave Maloney, playing leftfield for Wilson, slipped in the soggy turf, and the ball carried deep into his territory for a home run and the ball game.

Anacostians Also Get Most Hits but Lose, 10 to 8.

In a game marked by continual bickering between players, coaches and the umpire, Western High's baseball team won its second consecutive interhigh game at the expense of Anacostia, 10 to 8, yesterday at Western Stadium.

Although outhit, 12 to 8, the Georgetowners possessed a timely scoring punch, which, coupled with six Anacostia errors, was responsible of their victory. Handicapped no end due to the inability of Toby Bright, its ace pitcher, to stop the Indian bats, Western was forced to a deadlock created by Anacostia as late as the sixth inning.

Anacostia stepped to a 1-0 lead in the first inning on Eddie Smith's double and an infield error by First Baseman Ray Wrenn. The Red Raiders tied the count in their half of the initial frame on the strength of two doubles by George Oertel and Dick Lynham.

Although threatening to do so many times, the Anacostians never led in any part of the game. The closest they got to overhauling the Westerners was in the sixth inning when they pieced four hits to score three runs and tie their rivals at 6-6.

Bright, visibly off form, was constantly in danger, although he struck out ten men. His control was in his favor, however, as he walked only two. Hutchinson, a converted outfielder, tried earnestly to make a successful debut on the mound, but was distressed by the Georgetowners' ability to hit with men on bases.

Navy Sports Slate Today Is Heaviest

Teams Face 13 Events; Crews in Spotlight This Afternoon.

Annapolis, April 29.—With the crew races against Cornell and Syracuse holding the feature position, the Navy athletic card for tomorrow, with 13 events, is the largest of the season.

The varsity lacrosse team will take a day off and the field and track men will be entered in the Penn Relays at Philadelphia.

Both Cornell and Syracuse are frankly challenging the Navy's position as outstanding Eastern crew and the rivalry will come to a test in tomorrow's races. Both squads arrived here early this afternoon and were on the Severn, as were the Navy crews.

Cornell and the Navy will have varsity, junior varsity and freshmen crews on the water tomorrow, while Syracuse brought only its varsity and jayvee. The distance of all races will be a mile and three-quarters.

Though Cornell has the heaviest crew in each of the three classes, there will be no great disparity in poundage among the contesting crews. Cornell's varsity, averaging 182½ pounds, will be the heaviest crew on the water. The Navy varsity average 177 5-8 pounds, and that of Syracuse 176⅛ pounds.

Baseball with Pennsylvania varsity is the next biggest event on the Middies' program.

Events will start as follows:
1:15 p. m.—Tennis, plebes vs. Western H. S.
1:45 p. m.—Baseball, varsity vs. University of Pennsylvania.

Geo. Washington Riding Club Holds Its Show Today

The George Washington University Riding Club will give its annual horse show at the Meadowbrook show grounds this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Riders from Arlington Hall, Gunston Hall, Maryland University, National Park Seminary and the National Cathedral School will join with the George Washington University riders in the events.

There will be three hack classes, three jumping classes and a number of championship classes. George Washington University fraternity and sorority members will compete in one of the jumping classes.

Favorites Survive In Prep Net Play

Favorites dominated the scene as prep school racqueters swung into their annual tournament yesterday at Georgetown Prep School. Of the four seeded entrants, three of whom played, only Dorian, of Landon, experienced difficulty winning, and he was carried three sets by Gover, of the host school.

Landon, St. John's and Gonzaga qualified three men each for the second round, and Georgetown Prep came through with two. Friends was the lone school failing to advance a contestant.

"Snooks" Titus, Georgetown Prep, seeded No. 3, defeated Dave Walsh, Gonzaga, 6—2, 6—0; and Bill Ogus, St. John's, seeded No. 1, trounced Tomkins, of Friends, 6—0, 6—2.

A half dozen remaining first-round matches will be played today, with semi-finals and finals scheduled next week-end. The results:

Titus (G. U.) defeated D. Walsh (Gonzaga), 6—2, 6—0. Graham (G. U.) defeated Lincoln (Landon), 3—6, 6—4, 6—3. Joers (Gonzaga) defeated Morris (St. John's), 6—4, 6—2. Bravo (Gonzaga) defeated Amussen (Landon) by default. Maulding (St. John's) defeated Marland (Friends), 6—2, 6—2. Morrias (Landon) defeated Gover (G. U.), 6—3, 6—2, 6—3. Sheridan (Gonzaga) defeated McCadden (G. U.), 6—3, 2—6, 6—1. Hughes (St. John's) defeated Honenstreet (Landon), 6—2, 6—1. Perkins (Landon defeated Jones (Friends), 6—2, 6—1. Adams (Landon) defeated Walsh (Gonzaga), 6—3, 7—3. Ogus (St. John's) defeated Tomkins (Friends), 6—0, 6—2.

Nats.

Finney, who had stumbled as he broke for the ball, finally made a complete mess of the hit by juggling it on the pick-up.

But that long stretch of running around the bases evidently sapped Weaver of his strength because when the A's came to bat, they proceeded to pound him.

Weaver suffered from double trouble in that fourth. First Hasson doubled against the score board in right center and then, after Weaver had hit Lodigiani on the arm with a pitched ball, Hayes doubled off the leftfield wall. Ambler then doubled to center. Finney and Werber followed with singles and the A's had four runs for the inning and a 5-3 tie.

Connie Mack saw no further need for Buck Ross after the Nats' big fourth inning and he had young Ed Smith, the blond little southpaw, flinging at the Nats for the remainder of the game. And Smith did an excellent job of it, holding Washington to five hits in those last five innings.

Rare Dogs To Be Shown

With the final listing of the dogs entered in the ninth annual National Capital Kennel Club show today in the Packard Auditorium, it is announced that many champions in various breeds will be on hand to compete for the prizes and honors which will be given at the one-day show.

Frank Downing, president of the club, reports that there will be ample parking space on the bottom floor of the air-conditiotned Packard Auditorium. Seating facilities for 1,000 people will be available to watch the judging which begins at 10 a. m. and which will continue throughout the day at 2 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon and at 8 o'clock at night. The show will close at 10 p. m. with the selection of the best in show.

Among the famous dogs which will be seen are five outstanding Irish setters with Champion Ses Girl of Knockagree to be shown by Miss Laura F. Delano, cousin of the President; some of the finest cairns in the country, belonging to Mrs. Lindsley Tappen, of Wilton, Conn.; Champion Nornay Saddler, smooth fox terrier from the Wissaboo Kennels, Westbury, L. I., who has won best in show several times.

Rumpelstiltskin, the great French poodle from the Pillicoc Kennels, which created such wide interest at the Westminster show this year and the winner of the American Kennel Club's award for the most group wins in 1937, will be one of the strongest contenders for points in his class.

The recent selection of best in show at the Wheeling (W. Va.) Dog Show, Champion Shepton Dolly Grey of Mobile, an Old English sheepdog, also will be in the show.

According to the final listing of dogs, the largest entry of any breed will be the Boston terriers, followed by fox terriers, with cocker spaniels a close third. Other large entries will be Shetland sheepdogs, Scottish terriers, collies, poodles, pekingese and Irish setters.

Among the unusual breeds on exhibit will be the Kuvasz, a recent importation; toy black poodles and Mexican hairless dogs.

The best dogs of the various groups will be judged beginning at 8 o'clock at night. The three largest groups are the terriers, working dogs and sporting dogs.

National Training Team Wins, 9 to 7

National Training School defeated Jefferson High, 9-7, in a baseball game played at Falls Church, Va., yesterday.

Jefferson made 13 hits while the Trainers were getting seven but it still proves the old saying that they don't pay off with hits.

Randle Horses Capture Honors at Fairfax Hunt Club Show.

Honors on the first day of the Fairfax Hunt Show went to U. S. Randle's splendid stable of horses with Sport Marvel and Randle's Way taking numerous firsts and the entire string coming in for many lesser places.

After a hailstorm that scared off some of the audience, a big crowd gathered to watch most of the top Virginia horses, with D. C. and Maryland represented by some good entries, compete over stiff courses.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Llanghollen stables entered a number of hunters and gave Randle good scores to shoot at. Mickle, a newcomer to local rings, won the Model Hunter class and it is entirely possible that this grand youngster will give the seniors in his stable a lead today and make the Randle string look to it's laurels.

The $100 stake class was snapped up by Billy Do, Capt. Luebbermann's tried and true fencer, in an easy win over an intricate course.

The opening women's club event of the season, an 18-hole handicap play, was held yesterday afternoon at Columbia Country Club.

Mrs. Joseph Marr, with a 90, won low gross; Mrs. Franklin Gross, with 91-12—79, won low net and Mrs. E. S. Gardiner won low putts with 27.

Central High Wins, 16 to 3

Behind the six-hit pitching of Dizzy DeZerne, Central High School defeated Briarley Military Academy, 16-3, yesterday on the latter's home grounds.

DeZerne fanned 12 cadets, only walked two and emerged the batting hero by banging out a three-base hit to help win his own ball game during the early stages. Every Central starter got at least one hit except Clark, Mount Pleasant leftfielder.

Lee Lodge pitched shutout ball in the third and eighth frames, but during the other seven he pitched direct strikes at the boys holding the Central bats, and the base hits rebounded to all sections of the lot. M. Lodge led the batting attack for the losers.

$20,000 Wood Memorial Tops Racing Card Offered at Four Tracks

Walter Haight

The late Admiral Cary T. Grayson loved thoroughbred horses but he also loved a horse deal. The "physician to Presidents" and the head of the American Red Cross liked to see his purple and white colors borne to victory, he liked to see all horses run and he was one of those rare persons who could sit all afternoon at Laurel or Pimlico without making a wager.

HAIGHT.

I have done that, but it was because I had run out of fresh betting money.

Admiral Grayson, however, delighted to be in the atmosphere of racing.

But his real joy was in selling or trading a horse. Somehow, he was always reluctant to make a sale or a trade outright and preferred to keep a small percentage of almost every horse that passed through his hands. This gave him, in turf parlance, a "rootin' interest" when the horse went to the post. I'm told that a list of the big stake winners in which Admiral Grayson had a "piece" would raise the eyebrows of the average turf fan.

It was believed in some circles that Admiral Grayson, due to his prominent national position, did not want to be too closely identified with actual racing in recent years. This is not true. With him, it was a question of lacking time to personally supervise the training of his horses and therefore he raced only a modest stable.

As far as is known, his last tie with the racing of horses will come at Belmont Park on May 19. On that day, one of the Fasig-Tipton auctioneers will ask bids on 21 horses. They are being transferred now from Admiral Grayson's training center at the old Benning, D. C., track to New York.

Stars Swing Into Action in Stake Events

Five Derby Hopefuls to Get Test in Feature Race at Jamaica.

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 29.—Five stakes and an allowance race, topped by the $20,000 Wood Memorial, bring many of the turf's top ranking stars into action tomorrow as Suffolk and Churchill Downs join Jamaica and Havre De Grace in presenting one of the best-balanced programs of the year.

Five Kentucky Derby hopefuls are among the nine named for the mile and 70 yards of the Wood Memorial at Jamaica. Four others meet in a $1,000 6-furlong allowance race at Churchill, scene of the Derby where the $5,000 Clark Handicap tops the card.

Suffolk Downs opens the New England season with the $5,000 Plymouth Rock Handicap while Havre de Grace closes it spring session with the $10,000 Philadelphia Handicap.

Three of the Derby contingent in the Wood rate high in the future books—William Woodward's Fighting Fox, W. S. Kilmer's Nedayr and Hal Price Headley's Bourbon King, surprise winner of the Chesapeake Stakes. Myron Selznick's Can't Wait and Mrs. W. P. Stewart's Pasteurized complete the group.

Jamaica also offers the $5,000 6-furlong Jamaica Handicap, featuring Merry Lassie, stablemate of Fighting Fox, Walter A. Carter's Clodio, W. A. Harris' Black Look and Mrs. E. Graham Lewis' Little Miracle.

The Derby test at Churchill finds Herbert M. Woolf's Lawrin, Flamingo Stages winner, and Maxwell Howard's The Chief matching strides for the first time. The Chief, stablemate of the Derby favorite, Stagehand, has not raced since Howard brought him last fall out of the C. V. Whitney dispersal sale for $14,000. Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Mountain Ridge and the Valdina Farms' Lassator complete the field.

The mile and a sixteenth of the Clark has drawn 13 older horses headed by Howard's Sceneshifter, full brother of Stagehand. J. B. Respess' Main has been allotted top weight of 124 pounds, two more than Sceneshifter. Kirby Ramsey's Mucho Gusto and Mrs. R. H. Bartlett's Fleet Zevson, a former $1,500 plater, also figure well.

Ten high ranking handicap horses meet in the mile and a sixteenth of the Philadelphia Handicap. Topping the field are J. A. Manfuso's Aneroid, Masked General from Donald Ross' Brandywine Stable, the Shandon Farm's Burning Star and Tom Healey's Tattersemalion. Aneroid is top weight under 126 pounds.

Mrs. Pray started with a six and then played the next seven holes of the woods nine in a three and six fours. She finished with a 6 on the long ninth hole for a 39. On the back nine, Mrs. Pray continued her fine scoring, and despite missing short putts on the last two holes, finished with a 40 for the 79.

Stop-loss Selling an Effort to Avoid Accepting May Deliveries.

By the Associated Press

Chicago, April 29.—Outbursts of stop loss selling attendant on efforts to avoid acceptance of deliveries on May contracts plunged Chicago wheat prices down 2 cents late today.

The tumble carried May to a new four-year bottom price record, 79 cents a bushel. Suggestions the domestic winter crop this season would exceed any yield since 1931 accompanied the fall. Estimates of European purchases totaling 800,000 bushels of United States wheat and 1,500,000 bushels of corn failed to act as a stimulus.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1⅛ to 2 cents lower, compared with yesterday's finish; May, 79@79⅛; July 78⅛@78⅝. Corn, ⅜ off to ¼ up; May, 58¼@58⅜; July, 60@60⅛. Oats, ¼ to ¾ down. Rye showed 1 cent to 1⅜ setback, and provisions 2 cents to 12 cents declined.

Spring Trade Gains In Fifth District

Richmond, Va., April 29 (AP).—The Federal Reserve Bank at Richmond said today that business in the Fifth Federal Reserve District in March and the first half of April showed some seasonable advance over the preceding month, but the rise was less than normally occurs. The volume of trade and industrial activity continued far below the level in the spring of 1937.

Preliminary reports indicated retail trade in department stores in the first half of April exceeded sales in the corresponding period last year because of the late Easter, but sales in March were 13 per cent below March 1937 sales. Total sales in the first quarter of 1938 fell nearly 8 per cent below sales in the first quarter last year.

New Financing.

New York, April 29 (AP).—New financing for the week amounted to $10,848,540, compared with $74,604,500 a week ago and $37,806,911 the corresponding week last year, a compilation by Poor's Publishing Company showed today.

Am. Woolen Reduces Wages in Its 28 Mills

New York, April 29 (AP).—The American Woolen Company, largest manufacturer of worsteds and woolens in the world, announced today a wage reduction in all its 28 mills. The announcement by Moses Pendleton, president, said the cut was being made to meet competitive conditions brought about by a general reduction of wages in the industry.

The extent of the reduction was not made public. Normally, the company's mills employ around 25,000 workers, but the current number of workers is considerably smaller. The reduction followed a similar move yesterday by other New England textile companies.

Employment Takes Upward Turn in Month

Increases Are Noted in Agriculture, Building and Trade.

New York, April 29.—A slight decrease in unemployment was registered between February and March, bringing the number of unemployed in the latter month to a total of 10,408,000, according to the latest estimate of the National Industrial Conference Board. Included in this total of unemployed in March are 2,802,000 workers attached to the Government emergency labor force, as represented by the WPA and CCC.

The conference board estimates show a decline of 142,000 unemployed workers from the revised February estimate for this year. The decline in unemployment during the month was due primarily to an increase in employment in agriculture, construction and trade, which more than compensated for the declines in employment in manufacturing, mining, transportation, utilities and in the service industries.

Employment in agriculture showed an increase of 138,000 between February and March; employment in construction increased 122,000; unemployment in trade, distribution and finance increased 26,000. Employment in manufacturing declined 48,000 between February and March; in the service industries, 25,000; in extraction of minerals, 14,000, and in transportation and the public utilities, 9,000 and 6,000, respectively. In all enterprise taken together there was an increase in employment between February and March of 192,000 workers.

Taking into account the increase in population, the conference board estimates that the total labor force of the country, including both employed and unemployed workers, has been increased by the addition of 5,152,000 persons since 1829 to a total of 53,440,000.

New York, April 29 (AP).—The Great Northern Paper Co. today announced that newsprint will be $48 per ton for the second half of 1938, $2 per ton less than was announced for the period late in 1937.

When the announcement was made late in 1937, the price was quoted as $48 for the first six months and $50 for the second period. Other producers have quoted $50 per ton for the entire year.

New York, April 29 (AP).—Sales of R. H. Macy & Co. up to April 23 of this year were 7.7 per cent below the same period of 1937, Percy S. Straus, president of the large department store, told stockholders at their annual meeting today.

Easter business, he said, was "disappointing," but added that post-Easter business has been "slightly more encouraging."

The Market

Stocks Rally at Close After Further Decline; U. S. Government Bonds Hold Steady.

New York, April 29.—United States Government bonds were steady, helped by another enormous addition to excess bank reserves, reported by the Federal Reserve Board for the week, but the more speculative markets were unsettled. Stocks declined and closed lower, although they were able to improve somewhat toward the close. Stock sales volume was around 550,000 shares. Wheat prices had another slump to the lowest in four years. July futures closed 1⅝ cents lower at 78⅝ cents a bushel.

Under the influence of the selling movement which gained considerable headway before the close yesterday, stocks opened 1 to 2 points lower for leading issues and then held near those levels for the remainder of the trading. Steel, Chrysler, duPont, Montgomery Ward, Bethlehem, General Electric and a number of others moved within an arc of less than a point during the greater part of the trading.

Railroad shares showed some improvement, possibly on the final decision of the railroads to make formal request for a 15 per cent reduction in wages, but few important price changes were recorded. The market continued under the adverse influence of another fall in freight carloadings and of no early prospect for a rise in traffic.

Business Is Spotty.

Henry Ford's words, although a trifle Delphian to those who do not understand how a businessman's mind works, especially when he considers himself a good American and has never considered the relationship of business to government as one of co-operation or non-co-operation, provide a refreshing contrast to the mush and chaff supplied by the heelers of the New Deal, and even to those businessmen who express a willingness to help the President, when no one had suspected that they ever were trying to do anything except attend to business. Meanwhile the nature of business statistics is far from reassuring and suggests that perhaps the Government may be about ready to say it is willing to "co-operate" with business.

Before Boiling.

For those who desire an insight into the businessman's way of looking at things and who wish a few more details than Mr. Ford supplied will find much of interest in the yearly report of the Diamond Match Co. As usual the company's report is a veritable book, a printed record of some 250 ordinary sized pages, including appendix, which gives an exhaustive record of the company's operations and outlines as well the businessman's philosophy of economics.

For all its detailed information, the report continues to omit figures on sales volume and cost of sales, but everything else is given. Coming to general conditions, the report says:

"Commercial, industrial, or financial enterprises do not run themselves, despite much opinion (that should be better informed) to the contrary. A business moves forward, or backward, by virtue of the decisions of responsible executives on major policies. If general uncertainties create a condition where rational choice is impossible, business is quite as apt to move backward as forward.

What Causes Fear.

"The depressing atmosphere surrounding industry and business in general is not self-created, nor is it the result of unfounded and baseless fear. Business leaders have today just as much courage, initiative, and vision as they, or their predecessors, had in the past. The plain truth is that the conflicting pronouncements and antagonistic policies emanating from Washington have immobilized business activity and discouraged even those who are outstandingly progressive, and they operate to deaden those worthy qualities that make for, and are essential to, leadership. The country has now reached the stage where a basic prerequisite to any real recovery is some firm and unwavering decision, with the promulgation of sound policies affecting business, taxes and the future economic trend.

Dream or Nightmare.

"The dream of a stable and balanced price level is one that has haunted the minds of many visionaries whose sole contact with the world of business realities has been through the medium of books. It is not a realizable dream, nor, in all probability, is it a desirable one. Industry progresses by a series of continual, individual adjustment to a naturally changing system of prices. Enterprises which refuse to adjust themselves will eventually give way to competitive pressure—if the Government does not interfere. Where a government—by threatening inflation or other means—does commit itself to a policy of increasing prices deemed to be too low, it is merely encouraging a firm stand on the part of those business enterprises that have failed to adjust themselves. Your management believes that the proper governmental policy on prices is to let them severely alone. The alternative is, it would seem, a State-controlled business economy."

Communism Marches On.

The progress of Communism in Mexico, as guardedly outlined in the bulletin of the Mexican National Bank, controlled by the Mexican government, which seems to be trying to ride the labor union communistic horse and remain Uncle Sam's friend at the same time: "The general economic situation took an unfavorable turn in the last part of January. Business, usually bad at this time, met with difficulties that originated from causes other than economic. In the opinion of many, such forces will continue exerting an unfavorable influence. It is not the projected strikes that produce the feeling, but the attitude taken at the present time by labor organizations, relative to problems which for many reasons remain unsolved."

Silver Futures.

At first blush it seemed as if the revocation of the various silver orders might permit re-establishment of trading in silver futures. It was quickly discovered that the President had not suspended the tax of 50 per cent of any profits anybody made trading in the white metal. So long as such a tax is imposed it is foolish to assume that anyone will risk money trading in a commodity where he will pay half his winnings if he wins and all his losses if he loses.

Commodity Notes 9 Times Subscribed

The Treasury said yesterday that subscriptions for the new $200,000,000 offer of ¾ per cent notes of the Commodity Credit Corporation totaled $1,839,000,000. In addition to the cash subscriptions, holders of $58,000,000 of a maturing issue of the corporation will be granted permission to exchange their matering securities for equivalent amounts of the new issue.

Late Buying Rallies Curb

By the Associated Press.

New York, April 29.—The Curb market uncovered buying support for pivotal issues in late trading today after a general decline in the forenoon that sent leaders down fractions to more than a point.

Prominent on the comeback were such active issues as American Gas, International Petroleum, Electric Bond & Share, Pan American Airways, Pennroad & Niagara Hudson, all of which finished unchanged to fractions higher. United Shipyards, in demand early following announcement the Bethlehem Steel Corporation would acquire control, finished ½ up at 8⅞. Montgomery Ward "A" was 1½ up at 135 on light demand.

Pepperell Manufacturing was depressed 5 points on news of a general wage reduction in New England textile mills due to poor business. Others losing fractions to around a point included Babcock & Wilcox, Draper Corporation, American Cyanamid "B" and Sherwin Williams.

Transfers of 108,000 shares compared with 111,000 the day before.

Bob Burns Says—

You never know the strength of a person's character until you find out how much suffering and sacrifice he will endure for his principles.

Two of the worst old gossips we ever had down home made a bet early one mornin' that they wouldn't open their mouths for 24 hours. At 10 o'clock that mornin', some fella eloped with another man's wife. Along about noon, one of the gossips died of apoplexy and at 2 o'clock that afternoon, the other one jest naturally blew up.

THE NATIONALLY ADVERTISED PRICES!

Read the top of this page again! Then look at the price! Then ask yourself when in your lifetime you ever bought so much downright quality, style, fashion and value for a mere nineteen dollars and seventy-five cents! We've had some amazing clothing sales in our time, but we actually can't remember anything that touches this one. In fairness to the maker, we promised not to advertise his name or label, but it's a buy-word in the clothing industry. We emphasize the fact that these suits are in fabrics, patterns and weights suitable for year-round wear . . . and we have every size from thirty-three short to fifty-two stout. Once you see the great assortment you'll get two or three of these nationally famous suits. It's the most important, the most impressive, the most dramatic sale of men's clothing in our entire forty-two years of business . . . and we urge you not to miss it!
